Manhunt under way in slaying of 9

VICTOR, Calif. (AP) — Authorities say the nine persons slain in a luxury ranch home near here were executed in "professional style." They want to question two men being sought on an Arizona murder warrant.

The victims, including two children, were all shot in the head and left in a bedroom and closet of a new $60,000 home surrounded by vineyards in the San Joaquin Valley 80 miles east of San Francisco. The seven adults had been bound and gagged.

San Joaquin County Sheriff Michael N. Canlis said the bodies of the adult victims were found Wednesday in a semicircle in a blood-splattered closet. He said powder burns indicate the killer or killers pressed high-powered weapons against the heads of some of the victims and pulled the trigger. The bodies of the two children were found in a bedroom.

San Joaquin County Sheriff's Lt. Donald Morrow said two men who are sought on a two-count murder warrant by Phoenix, Ariz., authorities are also wanted for questioning in the Victor case.

Morrow said the crimes are similar, and that one of the two men, Willie Luther Steelman, 28, lived in Lodi, about four miles from where the nine bodies were discovered in the home of the Walter Parkin family.

However, Morrow said, "We have no evidence at this time to show that they have been here." The other man sought on the Arizona warrant is Douglas Gretzler, 22, of New York City.

The victims were identified as Parkin, 33, who owned a food market two miles away; his wife, Joanne, 31; their children, Lisa, 11, and Bobby, 9; Richard A. Earl, a neighbor and accountant; Earl's wife, Wanda; their son, Ricky, 15; their daughter, Debbie, 18; and Mark Lang, 20, who was identified as Debbie's boyfriend.

Canlis said an undetermined amount of cash is missing from a floor safe in Parkin's market, and that there may be a connection between the slayings and the theft. He said there is no evidence that force was used to open the market safe.

Carol Jenkins, 18, a roomer in the Parkin home, discovered the slayings. Canlis said she told deputies that she came home after a date at about 3 a.m. Wednesday and went directly to bed, suspecting nothing.

But he said she was awakened at 6 a.m. by two friends of Lang, who were knocking on the door because he had not come home the night before and his car was parked in front of the Parkin house.

Then she discovered the bodies of the two children on a bed in the master bedroom, and called authorities. Canlis said investigators found the other bodies.

Booster repaired

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space agency technicians begin replacing eight defective stabilizing fins on the Skylab 3 rocket today, hoping to avoid an additional launch delay.

Discovery of hairline cracks in the fins forced officials Wednesday to postpone the launching of the three astronauts by five days, from Saturday until next Thursday. Officials said the cracks most likely were caused by salt air corrosion.

The technicians planned to work around the clock in hopes of completing the job in time to start the final countdown on the Saturn 1B rocket Monday.

But Skylab program director William C. Schneider said, "We want to get well into the changeout before we make a definite decision. It's a reasonable bet we'll launch on the 15th, but it's certainly not a sure thing."

The Saturn 1B rocket is to loft astronauts Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson toward a rendezvous with the Skylab space station, now orbiting unmanned 270 miles high.

Jaworski free to sue President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly appointed Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said today he had been given assurances by the White House that he had the right to "sue the President," if necessary, in conducting his investigation.

Jaworski told a House Judiciary subcommittee the assurances were given to him by Alexander Haig, President Nixon's chief of staff, before he agreed to accept the assignment to replace Archibald Cox as special prosecutor.

"I wanted assurances beyond those that had been received by Cox," Jaworski said.

He said Haig used the words "sue the President" as an example of the complete independence Jaworski would have.

"Haig discussed the matter with the President and then told me I had that absolute assurance," Jaworski said.

Jaworski was questioned about his belief that he had absolute independence to carry out the investigation in view of Nixon's press conference statement on Oct. 26 that he would not provide presidential documents to a special prosecutor.

U.S. and European allies seek to patch up quarrels

BRUSSELS (AP) — The United States and its main European allies, at odds over the Middle East, are struggling to preserve the North Atlantic alliance to serve its basic purpose — joint defense against any Soviet threat.

Both U.S. and European diplomats are keen to keep the North Atlantic Treaty Organization alive. They point with satisfaction to its success in keeping them together at current conferences with the Soviet bloc on security, cooperation and reduction of forces.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is sending a deputy to receive his Nobel Peace Prize on Dec. 10 while he attends his first meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Brussels. A major topic will be a new statement on relations among the allies, a less pretentious version of the New Atlantic Charter Kissinger proposed last April.

The North Atlantic Council, made up of the allies' permanent representatives at NATO headquarters, has been meeting regularly to put the statement together. One diplomat at NATO headquarters, beset by recriminations among the allies on Middle East policy, suggested, "Events of the last few weeks certainly indicate that redefining the alliance might be a good idea."

The October Arab-Israeli war has underlined one thing: It is hard to get the alliance to operate beyond its original aim of defense against the Soviets and impossible to do so on short notice in a situation where the allies see their interests differently.

The European allies, especially France and Britain, argued that the United States does not depend on the Arabs for its oil but they do. So the United States could afford to support Israel, but they couldn't.

That is why only Portugal — and, in the beginning, West Germany — gave the United States any help in sending arms to Israel. Then the West Germans also refused after the United States embarrassed them by bringing an Israeli ship into Bremerhaven to load arms.

Rationing on horizon?

Nixon asks energy powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked Congress to give him emergency power to ration gasoline and oil, cut working hours, reduce highway speed limits, put the nation on year-round Daylight Saving Time and suspend antipollution programs.

Congressional spokesmen predicted Nixon would get the powers quickly. The President said Wednesday he wants them by mid-December.

In a nationwide broadcast outlining his energy proposals, Nixon set 1980 as a target date for the United States to achieve energy self-sufficiency. He called for research and development programs rivaling the all-out efforts that developed the atomic bomb and put American astronauts on the moon.

The President also departed from his text to say he had "no intention of walking away" from his office despite some demands that he resign.

With petroleum heading for 10 to 17 per cent shortages because of Arab oil cutoffs, Nixon warned that the nation faces "the most acute shortages of energy since World War II."

Consumers of home heating oil must get through the winter with only 85 per cent of the fuel they used last year, Nixon said.

Airline flights will be reduced 10 per cent through federal allocation of jet fuel, Nixon added.

He said a "contingency plan" for gasoline rationing was in preparation, but energy adviser John A. Love and an official fact sheet both said plans were being readied for the rationing of gasoline and heating oil.

Love said a decision on rationing must be made by December or January.

Gov. Robert B. Docking of Kansas, briefed with other governors by the President, said, "I wouldn't be surprised to see rationing after the first of the year."

Nixon said power plants now burning coal will be barred from switching to shortage-stricken oil or gas. Love said this regulation will be issued in about 10 days.

Nixon also asked for legislation allowing him to order power plants to switch from petroleum back to coal if they can do it.

Home heating oil, jet fuel, diesel fuel, kerosene and propane gas already are under mandatory federal allocation controlling their distribution at the wholesale level.

Love said mandatory allocation would be extended soon to all petroleum products under existing presidential authority.

Nixon's actions and requests for new authority were brought on during recent weeks by the Middle East war and the Arab nations' decision to cut off oil to friends of Israel.

Explaining the urgency of the administration's requests, Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, one of those briefed by the President, said: "I think the people of this country don't want to be blackmailed and don't want to be dependent on Arab oil."

Nixon ordered immediate steps already within his power, urged legislation to grant new powers, and proposed what he called "Project Independence" to get the United States moving under its own power by 1980.

See speedy action on energy bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders have promised prompt action on most or all of the energy-saving measures requested by President Nixon in his address to the nation.

Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson said his committee would hold public hearings on emergency legislation today and would report a bill out by Friday. Senate approval could be expected next week, Jackson said.

On the House side, Democratic whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., predicted action on the President's proposals before the December recess. "If he wants a bill, we'll give him a bill," said Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass., chairman of the House subcommittee on power.

In his Wednesday night address, Nixon accused Congress of failing to act on any of the energy measures he had sent to the Hill. The President said it was now "imperative" that Congress pass legislation establishing year-round Daylight Saving Time, authorizing relaxation of clean-air standards, the tapping of naval petroleum reserves and giving the government power to reduce speed limits nationwide and restrict working hours.

Macdonald said Nixon already had the authority to do most of what he asked and accused the President of playing "an absolute shell game" in blaming Congress for inaction.

Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., said he and other oil-state senators oppose one presidential proposal that would allow the federal government to regulate the intrastate production and use of oil and gas.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said the President's message "did not contain enough specifics in dollars or programs to do the job. The $10 billion mentioned by the President is considerably less than we spent on Apollo and probably only 10 per cent of what is actually needed," he added.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce said Nixon "has made a good — although belated — beginning in facing up to the energy shortage," and the National Association of Manufacturers said it "supports the general thrust" of the President's message.

Carl E. Bagge, president of the National Coal Association, said the coal industry would do its best to produce the additional coal needed for the President's proposed shift from oil and gas. But he added that it would require some commitment that mines would not be forced to shut down once the immediate crisis is over.

Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, offered "strong endorsement" of the President's proposals and added that one additional step not mentioned by Nixon would be to authorize the resumption of offshore drilling in California's Santa Barbara Channel, where production was suspended after a 1969 oil spill.

Gilligan orders conservation in state agencies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan ordered today all state agencies to turn down their lights and their thermostats to save as much energy as possible.

And, in another gesture he said was designed to comply with President Nixon's call to conserve energy, Gilligan said he would allow the lease on his gas-eating limousine to expire.

The governor met with reporters after a special cabinet meeting, during which he outlined steps state government can take to cut down fuel use.

Among the steps ordered by the governor were:

—Reduction of lighting in state buildings at night to the lowest possible levels commensurate with safety and security requirements.

—Elimination of unnecessary daytime lighting at state buildings. He estimated most large buildings are overlighted by 15 per cent.

—Reduction of temperatures in state buildings to 68 degrees during the day, 65 degrees at night and 60 degrees on weekends.

War power bill veto overridden

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has enacted over President Nixon's veto a bill limiting the power of the president to wage undeclared war.

The action Wednesday was the first successful override of a presidential veto in nine tries this year.

Termed unconstitutional by President Nixon, the bill bars the president from committing U.S. troops to combat for more than 60 days without specific approval from Congress. Congress can terminate such an engagement sooner by majority vote in the House and Senate.

Backers of the war powers measure, first introduced three years ago, attributed the vote to overwhelming public support in the wake of the Vietnam war.

The House voted 284 to 135 to override, four more than the two-thirds needed.

The Senate completed the action by 75 to 18, or 13 more than required.

In the House, 86 Republicans voted to override and 103 were against. Among Democrats, 198 were for and 32 against overriding.

In the Senate, 25 Republicans voted against the President's position and 15 supported it. Fifty Democrats voted for overriding and three against.

After the vote, Nixon said the bill "seriously undermines this nation's ability to act decisively and convincingly in times of international crisis."

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said that to involve Congress, with its cumbersome procedures, in war-making decisions would cause "rejoicing in the streets of Moscow."

Tower expressed hope that the constitutionality of the bill will be challenged in court "at the earliest possible opportunity."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., leader of Senate backers of the bill, denied that the bill changed the constitutional powers of either the president or the Congress, but simply provided "a methodology" by which the president and Congress can concur in war-making decisions.

Javits said recent events involving the President may have been a factor in the override, but Sen. Charles H. Percy, RIll., said there should be no interpretation that any vote in the House or Senate was influenced by Watergate-related incidents.

The congressional action, Percy said, reflected "a feeling deeply felt by the American people that there should be no further undeclared wars without the concurrence of Congress."

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., House Republican leader and vice president-designate, urged the House not to turn against the President at a time of diplomatic effort to attain a Middle East peace.

Nixon determined not to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, responding to mounting calls for his resignation, vows he has "no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do."

Nixon voiced his determination to hold onto his office in "a personal note" at the end of a television-radio address to the nation Wednesday night on energy problems. Speaking without notes, he said:

"... I would like to give my answer to those who have suggested that I resign.

"I have no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do. As long as I am physically able, I am going to continue to work 16 to 18 hours a day for the cause of a real peace abroad, and for the cause of prosperity without inflation and war at home."

While talk of possible resignation or impeachment has mounted sharply in recent days, Nixon seemed to place no great urgency on finding a way out of his current predicament, speaking of it as a long-range operation.

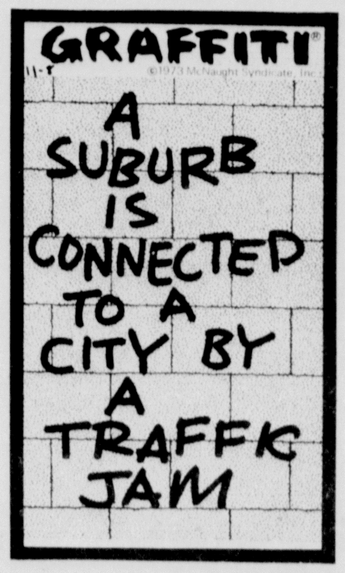

"I am confident that in the months ahead," he said, "the American people will come to realize that I have not violated the trust that they placed in me when they elected me as President of the United States in the past, and I pledge to you tonight that I shall always do everything that I can to be worthy of that trust in the future."

Since the leadership crisis exploded, presidential aides also have talked in terms of weeks and months, rather than days, in discussing Nixon's plans to rebut his critics.

Speaking of Watergate and related matters, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said earlier Wednesday:

"We are giving consideration to a number of steps that the President will be taking here in the coming weeks and months to clarify this matter and to put it into perspective."

The White House announced Wednesday the hiring of an additional legal consultant, Miami attorney Samuel Powers Jr., to help handle Watergate-related questions. Ziegler said there will be a further expansion of Nixon's legal team because "you cannot deal with over a hundred lawyers with five." The spokesman said the objective is to meet promptly and "in an orderly and effective way" the requirements of various investigative units including the Watergate special prosecutor's office, federal grand juries and the Senate Watergate committee.

Indicate compromise near in Middle East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger ended his mission to Egypt today and a top aide completed talks with Israeli leaders amid indications that a compromise had been reached on the Middle East crisis.

Kissinger flew to Jordan and Saudi Arabia after spending a day in talks with President Anwar Sadat in Cairo. Kissinger's assistant in charge of Middle East affairs, Joseph J. Sisco, emerged from talks with Premier Golda Meir in Jerusalem and told newsmen: "I feel optimistic." He had gone to Israel unexpectedly from the Cairo sessions Wednesday, apparently bringing with him details of the Kissinger-Sadat meetings.

One Israeli source close to Mrs. Meir said while Sisco was meeting with the Israeli leaders: "The talks are not going badly for Israel."

Earlier, another authoritative Israeli source indicated that Israel had accepted a compromise proposal worked out between Kissinger and the Egyptians.

The source gave no details, but the plan appeared to focus on how to continue supplying food and water to the Egyptian 3rd Army, encircled by the Israelis in the Sinai Desert.

In the background of these reported movements toward peace, however, were charges Wednesday from Israel that Egypt was preparing a new attack along the Suez Canal. The Egyptians said the situation on the canal front was "tense and explosive" and that their army was in position to crush the Israelis.

Kissinger's peace-seeking tour continued with a quick visit to King Hussein of Jordan in Amman and then a trip to Saudi Arabia, the big oil producer in the Middle East, for conferences with King Faisal in Riyadh.

Sisco met in Israel not only with Mrs. Meir but also with Deputy Premier Yigal Allon and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan. An Israeli communique said the discussions took place "in a good and constructive atmosphere."

There were indications that Sisco's mission was chiefly concerned with arrangements to prevent a resumption of fighting along the canal, rather than peace negotiations.

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said Kissinger and his aides in their talks Wednesday with the Egyptians "focused a good deal of attention on the immediate situation on the ground.... The form of eventual negotiations has not been settled." And when asked if the Americans were optimistic that the tension along the Suez front would be reduced, he replied, "We will perhaps know better after we have conversations with Israel."

McCloskey gave no indication of what was being proposed, but he denied that Sisco had been sent to pressure the Israelis.

Rebozo sues newspaper

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a close friend of President Nixon, has filed a $10 million libel suit against the Washington Post.

Attorneys for Rebozo filed the suit in federal court Wednesday, charging the Post libeled the Key Biscayne banker in an Oct. 25 article that claimed Rebozo cashed $91,500 in stolen stocks in 1968 after being told they were stolen.

Rebozo's suit charges the story was false and malicious.

The Post article was based on the sworn statements of an insurance investigator that are contained in a Miami court file.

George H. Riley Jr., the investigator, testified under oath that he told Rebozo on Oct. 22, 1968, that 900 shares of IBM stock accepted as collateral for a loan by Rebozo's bank were stolen.

The Post said that more than a week after Riley's visit to Rebozo, 300 of the IBM shares were sold for $91,574.

Rebozo's suit charges that Riley could not have told him on Oct. 22, 1968, that the stocks were stolen.

He said that E.F. Hutton and Co., the brokerage firm from which the stocks were stolen, and the Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York, Hutton's insurer, did not have such information until Dec. 5.

Watergate panel hears fund raiser

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief campaign fund raiser among the Spanish speaking is coming before the Senate Watergate committee to give his version of a charge he offered federal favoritism for a $100,000 campaign contribution.

The new allegations came before the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday. The committee is probing the financing of last year's presidential campaigns and took testimony from Florida home builder John J. Priestes.

The committee scheduled an appearance for today of Benjamin Fernandez, the man named by Priestes.

Wednesday night, in a televised address to the nation, the President said neither the continuing political crisis nor demands for his resignation will drive him from office.

Following the President's speech, however, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., predicted that Nixon will be forced to resign because "of the pressure from the press primarily ... and also from the public and Congress." Mills said he believed the President was sincere in saying he would not resign, but predicted that Nixon will do so "within a short period of time."

In a separate development, it was reported that Larry E. Williams, a former fund raiser for Watergate committee Sen. Edward J. Gurney, has agreed to plead guilty to two felony charges and testify for the government in a probe of Gurney's finances.

The Miami Herald also reported that Jim Groot, a former Gurney administrative assistant, has told investigators he handled envelopes from Williams for Gurney containing thousands of dollars in cash.

He said the money was spent mostly for travel and office expenses.

At the Watergate hearings, Priestes named Fernandez, head of the Nixon campaign's Hispanic Finance Committee, as the man who told him his legal problems with the Federal Housing Administration might be solved if he contributed $100,000 to the campaign.

Priestes said Fernandez, who will testify today, arranged a meeting with former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, the head of the Nixon campaign's finance committee.

He said Stans indicated he would discuss the Priestes problem with Secretary George Romney of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

In a statement read into the committee record, Stans denied any favors were ever arranged for Priestes.

Synthetic gas made necessity

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Columbia Gas System officials say they will have to rely on synthetically produced gas if they are to meet industrial commitments.

The comment came during testimony before the West Virginia Public Service Commission Wednesday on a request by Columbia to increase rates to its industrial customers.

Columbia's main gas supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., has estimated its annual deficiencies will range from 84 billion cubic feet of gas in 1973-74 to 316 billion cubic feet in 1977-78 if it relies only on supplies from Louisiana and Southwest pipelines.

The transmission corporation supplies gas to more than 75 affiliated companies in seven states, including West Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Columbia Gas representatives told the PSC they plan to alleviate any deficiencies in gas to its West Virginia customers by using other sources such as synthetic gas from a refining plant under construction near Green Springs, Ohio, a plant to be located near Marcus Hook, Pa., and another to be located near Baltimore as well as a liquified natural gas facility at Cove Point, Md.

Paul R. Bigley, vice president and chief engineer for the utility, said use of synthetic gas will allow Columbia to keep its deficiences to four per cent this year instead of the previously anticipated 7.7 per cent.

Sy Orlofsky, president and director of Columbia LGN Corp., of Wilmington, Del., blamed the Federal Power Commission for the energy crisis.

He said the FPC's control of wellhead prices was a major cause of the current shortage. "Natural gas has been artificially priced by the FPC at a value below its true market value," he said and as a result it has inhibited the exploration and drilling activities required to find new supplies of gas.

businesses were asked to achieve the equivalent of a 10-degree thermostat reduction by reducing working hours or heating.

—Fuel allocations to reduce air flights 10 per cent.

—An order to lower federal agency thermostats and forbid the 500,000 federal vehicles from being driven faster than 50 miles an hour except in emergencies.

—A recommendation to the Atomic Energy Commission to speed the licensing of nuclear power plants and an order to the Transportation Department to give priority processing to grant requests for purchase of mass transit buses.

Love said the President probably would not submit separate draft legislation but would work with Congress to develop legislation already introduced by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, predicted Senate passage of such legislation next week. House Democratic Whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., said it could be adopted by Congress by the time it recesses, around Dec. 15.

Nixon's legislative requests included:

—Authority to relax environmental programs by granting one-year waivers to power plants and factories from air and water quality standards.

—Authority to take emergency actions without first preparing and reviewing their environmental impact.

—Authority to limit commercial working hours, and to set a speed limit of 50 miles an hour on interstate highways.

—Clear authority to ration fuels.

—Approval to increase production from the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve in California, with any proceeds earmarked for development of another naval reserve on Alaska's north slope, the scene of major commercial petroleum discovery.

—Authority for regulatory agencies to alter transportation schedules, for the Federal Power Commission to suspend price regulation on new natural gas and for the Atomic Energy Commission to issue temporary operating licenses for atomic power plants.

Ford probers reject testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee has rejected the testimony of a former lobbyist who claims to have paid cash to Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford in exchange for "an ear at court."

But the former lobbyist, Robert N. Winter-Berger, said he stands by his story, even though conceding that his original version was wrong.

"We did not consider him to be a credible witness," Rules Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said Wednesday after the panel spent a full day with WinterBerger behind closed doors.

Cannon said the committee will review the transcript of Wednesday's session before determining whether to ask the Justice Department for a perjury investigation of the former lobbyist.

Cannon said Winter-Berger's allegations had been the only negative testimony against Ford. The committee is considering Ford's nomination to succeed Spiro T. Agnew, who resigned.

The chairman said it is conceivable that the committee will vote by late next week on referring the Ford nomination to the full Senate. Only one more day of public hearings on Ford is expected in the Rules Committee; the House Judiciary Committee plans to open hearings on the nomination next week.

By a unanimous vote, the Rules Committee agreed to make public next week the transcript of Winter-Berger's testimony, and decided against having the former lobbyist testify in public.

Cannon said Winter-Berger's oral testimony contradicted his sworn affidavit on several points, including the allegation that the former lobbyist gave Ford, the House Republican leader, $15,000 in cash in the late 1960s.

In addition, Cannon said, Winter-Berger's tax records made clear that the $15,000 could not have come from his own account.

Ford has denied ever receiving money from Winter-Berger, who claims to have been a close associate of the Michigan congressman.

Winter-Berger told reporters that he stands by his affidavit and everything he wrote about Ford in the book, "The Washington Pay-Off."

He said he paid the $15,000 "because I was getting an ear at court from Jerry Ford." But he could not recall any favors received from Ford.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The coal industry currently is operating at capacity and couldn't increase immediate production if it wanted to, says a spokesman for Consolidation Coal Co.

"You just can't turn coal on and off like a faucet," said Hazlett Cochran, director of corporate public relations for Consolidation, the nation's second-largest producer of coal.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska, one of the nation's energy hopes, is itself short on energy, says a state power official.

John M. Stern, Alaska Public Utilities Commission chairman, says the state should cut off exports to the lower 48 states and foreign nations if necessary to meet in-state power requirements.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A public hearing on proposed water pollution regulations has been scheduled for Dec. 5 in Columbus, the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency said today.

The proposed regulations would give the state EPA authority to control pollutant discharge into state waters by establishing a state discharge permit system, the agency said.

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — The West Virginia Court of Claims has set a March 18 date to hear the first of 59 wrongful death suits filed in connection with the December 1967 collapse of the Silver Bridge at Point Pleasant.

The claims total $6.3 million. The collapse killed 46 persons.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Public Utilities Commission Chairman Edmund J. Turk says it appears the energy crisis is "going to be with us a long time."

Turk said in an interview Wednesday night he thinks the fuel crisis is going to have one of the heaviest impacts on this country's economic and social life that has ever been seen.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation and the Ohio Civil Service Employes Association signed a work agreement Wednesday covering employes at eight prisons.

The pact covers overtime, grievance procedures, labor-management conferences and promotion and transfer procedures, but not salaries, spokesmen said.

State studies energy action

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The director of the state Environmental Protection Agency says President Nixon's energy proposals are "on the right track."

But Ira Whitman admits some reservations about the impact specific proposals may have on Ohio.

"Ohio already has proposed a two-year extension of the deadline by which coal burning industries must meet emission limits. We hope the President's proposals mean we will be able to implement the extension," Whitman said.

Car pools and increased use of mass transit are particularly attractive proposals because they help fight air pollution, Whitman said.

But Whitman said reducing state speed limits from 70 to 50 could wreak havoc with some state departments, including his own.

"My people have to cover 88 counties, and cutting speed is going to mean longer hours or less work. Either one could be expensive," the director said.

Whitman also said reducing office air temperatures is feasible, but that he is leery of replacing 100-watt light bulb with a 40-watt bulb.

"The success of a program to conserve energy may depend on our implementing it with common sense," he said.

Meanwhile an executive of the Ohio Petroleum Marketing Association called the President's proposals "too little, too late."

"I don't think he laid a glove on the problem," said OPMA vice president Roger Dreyer.

Dreyer said the proposals should have come two years ago.

"We've been converting from coal to oil for two years now and that's the crunch," he said.

Dreyer said the President should have pushed hard for an immediate start on the Alaska pipeline, more offshore drilling and construction of tanker ports.

Rationing is a "dead certainty" since the President offered no concrete proposals to overcome it, he added.

"The administration really mismanaged the energy crisis because it had its mind on other things—like Watergate," Dreyer said.

Stock market opens higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were higher today and brokers said President Nixon's address to the nation had helped lift some of the uncertainties that have been depressing the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead almost a point near opening and advancing issues held a broad lead over decliners on the Big Board.

Boeing, down ½ at 18¾, was the Big Board volume leader, followed by AMF down ⅝ at 27½; Cenco, Inc., unchanged at 15¼; and Gulf up ⅛ at 23⅛.

Stock market prices closed up Wednesday following seven consecutive sessions of heavy losses.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed up 7 at 920.08 and advancing issues led decliners 797 to 616 in moderate trading volume of 16.57 million shares.

Analysts said the rally basically was technical in nature after the heavy losses. They said Nixon's scheduled address to the nation almost might have helped the rally.

Colder air will be moving into Ohio today and tonight for a stay of several days, with some snow flurries expected, the National Weather Service predicts.

The latest weather map shows a cold front from northern Lake Huron through lower Michigan to northwest Indiana. The front is being pushed southeast and will be well east and south of Ohio this evening. Showers are predicted for today, changing to snow flurries tonight as the cold air continues to push into Ohio.

Temperatures are expected to drop into the 20s tonight, and only make it back into the 30s Friday. Snow flurries are expected in all parts of the state except the extreme northwest tonight. Friday will find the snow flurries confined to the northeast counties, especially those near Lake Erie.

Arctic air fans out over Plains

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Cold arctic air fanned out across the northern Plains today, sending temperatures below zero as light snow or rain lingered over widely scattered areas of the nation.

The mercury dipped below zero over much of North Dakota and northeastern Montana. Light snow dusted parts of Montana and areas near Lake Superior. There was rain in Lower Michigan.

Fog shrouded much of the Gulf coast states with some drizzle in eastern Georgia. Light drizzle also persisted in parts of Colorado, Kansas, the Texas Panhandle and Arkansas.

Some thunderstorms rolled over Arkansas and northwestern Mississippi. In all cases the measurable rainfall was less than half an inch.

Rain with snow in the mountains was scattered over the Northwest.

Cold wave warnings were issued Wednesday night for parts of Iowa and South Dakota and a freeze warning was posted for West Virginia.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 12 at Havre, Mont., to 76 at both Corpus Christi, Tex., and Key West, Fla.

Hostages escape, men surrender

WADENA, Minn. (AP) — Two jail escapees surrendered today after their three hostages slipped away from them during the night, authorities said.

The two escapees, one an accused murderer, apparently fell asleep in the farmhouse where they had held Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wegscheid and their 15-year-old son hostage since Tuesday night, an FBI spokesman said.

There were no reports of any injuries. The two gunmen, who had threatened to resort to whatever means necessary to escape, had been holed up in the farmhouse for 36 hours. They released three other Wegscheid children Wednesday night.

The FBI spokesman said deputy sheriffs captured the two gunmen but gave no further details.

The two gunmen escaped from a Wadena jail Monday night after wounding a jailer with a gun.

John P. Morgan, who had been jailed on murder charges in a double slaying, told police earlier today he would resort to any means necessary to escape.

"If I have to, I'll tape a gun to Mr. Wegscheid's neck to assure that police don't try anything on the trip to the airport," Morgan, 37, said. "That way, if I'm shot, my reflex action will trigger the gun and my hostage will be killed, too."

The other gunman was William L. Winans, 18, who had been jailed on a burglary charge.

The fugitives had been negotiating with law enforcement officials on details of a plan to have them flown to freedom today in a Minnesota Highway Patrol plane.

A snowstorm thwarted the escapees' plans to flee by plane Wednesday. They had said they expected to fly out of Wadena today under conditions they had negotiated with authorities for the release of Mr. and Mrs. Wegscheid and their son, Ed.

Wadena, a town of less than 5,000 persons, is about 170 miles northwest of Minneapolis.

John H. Roszmann to join Washington C. H. law firm

The law firm of Kiger and Ulrich, 132 S. Main St., is expanding to include another attorney, it was announced Thursday.

James A. Kiger, senior member of the firm, said that John Henry Roszmann, 32, son of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin H. Roszmann, 1235 Dayton Ave., will become associated with the Kiger and Ulrich office about Nov. 22. Roszmann received the degree of juris doctor from the Chase Law School, Cincinnati, this year and has successfully passed the Ohio bar examination.

Born in Cincinnati, he attended Washington C.H. schools through the junior year, is a 1960 graduate of Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., and received a bachelor of science degree from Ohio State University before entering law school.

A resident of 3549 Burch Ave., Cincinnati, he and his wife, the former Christine Schilling, daughter of a Cincinnati surgeon, will move to Washington C.H. later this month. They have two children, Elizabeth, 9, and Claire, 3.

JOHN H. ROSZMANN

ROSZMANN worked his way through Chase Law School at nights while an employe of the Kroger Company.

"We are very pleased to bring Mr. Roszmann into the firm", Kiger said, pointing out that the new attorney was selected from among 17 applicants on the basis of background and academic standing. "Washington C.H. is a growing city and we wish to grow with it," Kiger added.

Kiger, a graduate of the University of Kentucky and the University of Cincinnati, opened his law practice here 12 years ago. He presently is city attorney, has served two terms as president of the Fayette County Bar Association and has been admitted to practice before all courts, including the United States Supreme Court.

Ulrich, who joined the firm last year, is a graduate of Loyola University of Chicago and the University of Toledo.

Bankruptcy suits filed by dual firm

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Bankruptcy papers have been filed by two Cincinnati firms which earlier this week sued the Ohio Director of Commerce for $100 million and charged state officials were trying to drive them out of business.

Bankruptcy petitions were submitted Tuesday by Welfare Finance Corp. and its subsidiary National Finance Co.

The firms filed a $100 million damage suit Monday against Commerce Director Dennis Shaul.

The petitions state the two companies are unable to meet debts due to the actions of the Ohio Division of Securities.

The companies filed registrations in 1970 to sell $490 million worth of certificates. Last August the firms boosted their interest rate to 8 per cent on $10 million worth of certificates.

The Division of Securities ordered a halt in September of all sales on the 8 per cent certificates. Suspension of all previously registered and approved certificates of both companies was made last month.

Arab oil cutoff sparked crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It is no longer a problem," said Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers after meeting with President Nixon on the fuel shortage. "It is a crisis of major proportions."

"We are heading toward the most acute shortages of energy since World War II," Nixon told the American people in a nationally televised address Wednesday night.

Just three weeks after Arab oil nations cut off oil shipments to the United States, Americans have begun to realize just how serious the fuel situation may be this winter.

Nixon, seeking emergency powers from Congress to cut down on energy demand and preserve petroleum supplies, recognized the Arab oil weapon in his speech, saying it will mean more than two million fewer barrels of oil daily by the end of the month.

Petroleum supplies will be at least 10 per cent and maybe 17 per cent short of needs, the President said.

A few weeks ago, however, few people inside or outside the government saw the situation in the same grim light that Nixon saw it in his speech.

Before the Arab nations decided to wield the oil weapon, the administration was saying the nation would be able to survive the winter despite an already tight supply situation.

It didn't become clear to the administration until about a week ago just how serious the shortage will be.

Emerging from a meeting with the White House energy adviser John A. Love last Thursday, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the "crisis is much worse than all of us had anticipated a week ago."

Love conceded to reporters Wednesday night: "We have an emergency now." He and Nixon said the administration is going ahead with developing plans to ration gasoline.

The arithmetic of the crisis has changed dramatically in a few short weeks.

Less than a month ago, U.S. officials were saying that the nation gets only about 6 per cent of the oil used by Americans from Arab nations. But that amount, it turns out, is in direct shipments.

If direct and indirect shipments are figured, the shortages range between 10 and 17 per cent, according to Nixon. Some of his experts say it could be as high as 21 per cent.

Administration experts had expected an oil shortfall of between 100,000 and 800,000 barrels a day before the Arab oil cutoff was announced.

But they said the cutoff threatens the nation with a loss of between 2 million and 2.5 million barrels of oil a day on top of that. The nation uses about 17.4 million barrels daily.

The potential shortage could be as high as 3 million barrels daily if the Pentagon is forced to use only domestic oil sources for its supplies. The military now gets about half its supplies — or 300,000 barrels daily — from foreign sources.

Experts said the shortage would be more acute if the United States decides to help out its European allies, also hurt by the Arab oil weapon.

Frank Sinatra sets appearances

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Frank Sinatra has signed on for two appearances at Caesars Palace hotel here in his latest emergence from a self-imposed retirement.

In recent weeks, Sinatra taped a television special and appeared at a live performance at Fresno, Calif. He also has a new album and an upcoming television special.

Sinatra will make his first appearance here for one week starting next Jan. 25. The date for the second and the financial arrangements were not announced.

Saxbe nomination not yet submitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nomination of Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, to be attorney general, announced by President Nixon a week ago, has yet to be submitted to the Senate.

And, at the moment, there is a good deal of uncertainty about when it will be.

The hitch is over which is to come first—his nomination or legislation designed to make him eligible for the Cabinet post.

The Constitution provides that a member of Congress may not be appointed to an office for which the salary was increased during his term.

Saxbe was in the Senate in 1969 when Congress passed legislation increasing the salaries of all Cabinet members from $35,000 to $60,000 a year.

In an effort to get around this barrier to Saxbe's nomination, the Justice Department is reported to have drafted a bill to cut the attorney general's salary back to $35,000.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., of the Senate Judiciary Committee, told a reporter he has been advised the department wants the bill passed before Saxbe's nomination is submitted.

This is on the ground that it would be inappropriate to nominate him for an office for which he is ineligible.

Saxbe's nomination would be handled by Eastland's committee, but the pay-cut bill would be handled by the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee of which Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., is chairman.

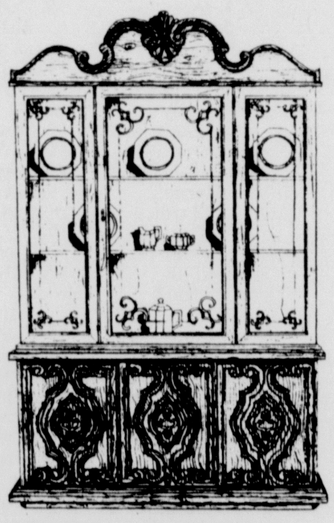

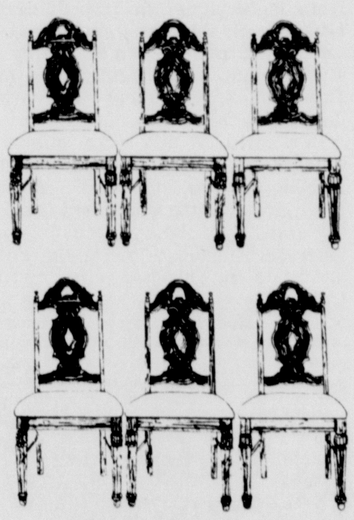

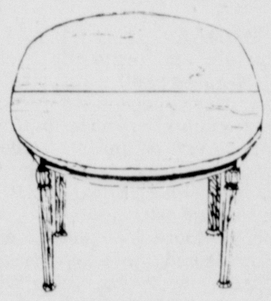

McGee's committee met in closed session yesterday, and aides said later he took the position he was not going to do anything about reducing the attorney general's salary until a nomination is submitted.

Saxbe's press secretary said the senator is just sitting and waiting to see what happens. He said he understood efforts were being made to see what could be worked out.

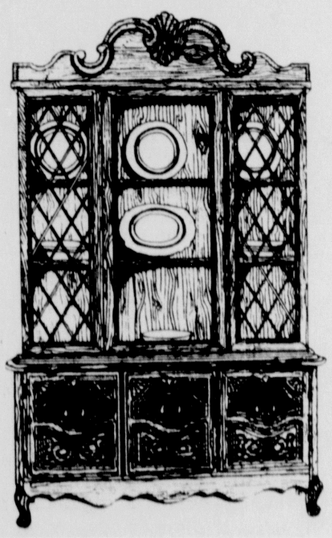

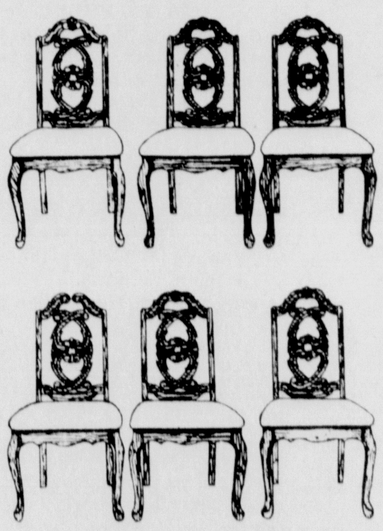

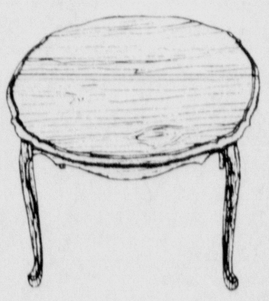

The impasse has made moot a controversy that erupted last week over whether the Judiciary Committee should interrupt its hearings on legislation for a court-appointed special Watergate prosecutor to consider Saxbe's nomination.

Noise: minibikes to jets

It is only in recent years that the public has been made aware of noise as not merely a nuisance but a health hazard. We have been told that prolonged exposure to sound above certain levels may cause temporary or even in some cases permanent hearing loss. There also are research indications that excessive noise may cause nervous troubles ranging from irritation to psychological damage.

Two items in the roster of harm done by noise came to attention recently. The Acoustical Society of America was told by Dr. Samuel R. Lane of the University of California at Los Angeles that jet transport passengers may be adversely affected by the noise of the big engines. In the magazine American Family Practice, Dr. R. Peter Oppenheimer writes that minibike riders may suffer damage to their hearing.

Oppenheimer notes that prolonged exposure to noise above 84 decibels will produce a hearing loss. At full throttle, he says, minibikes' noise ranges from an average of 92.4 decibels if muffled to 96.4 without a muffler. That much noise over a period of time may bring permanent hearing loss, he warns.

As to riding in commercial jets, Dr. Lane finds that cabin noise varies between 75 and 91 decibels, with the average at 80 to 90. That much racket over a period of several hours markedly dulls the hearing. Ear plugs, anyone?

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

The great oil fantasy

Logically speaking, there is nothing more difficult than proving a negative proposition. That is, demonstrating that if something didn't exist, something else wouldn't happen. The classic story in this regard is of a man who insisted on snapping his fingers every five minutes, day and night. His family finally took him to a psychiatrist, who inquired why he persisted in this eccentric behavior.

"I am," he said, "preventing the United States from being overrun by the deadly king cobra."

The psychiatrist chuckled genially and observed, "Look, except for those in zoos, nobody has ever seen a king cobra in this country."

"Naturally," the determined chap replied. "Why do you think I keep snapping my fingers?"

RIGHT NOW we are being exposed to a massive propaganda campaign which is founded on roughly the same irrefutable logic. We, and the Europeans and Japanese, are all going to revert to huddling around log fires because of the existence of Israel. Indeed, with one honorable exception, our alleged allies refused to cooperate in resupplying Israel because they are convinced that the Arab states will cut off their oil. To paraphrase Tallyrand, this was worse than immoral — it was stupid.

Without denying for a minute that the Arab-Israeli confrontation provided a catalyst for action, the plain fact is that the Arab oil producers are operating under principles formulated by that distinguised Moslem economist, Ibn Adam Smith. The key one, as any good capitalist can tell you, is that when a producer has a buyer on the rack, he turns the crank.

To put it differently, does anyone really believe that King Faisal, the Iranians, and assorted sheikdoms on the Persian Gulf have for generations been the world's leading philanthropists? That they have been selling oil well below obtainable market prices to the Japanese and the West because they are infatuated with our collective charm?

To ask the question is to answer it. The price of crude has been set in terms of the international market, and in the last decade there has been a startling growth in demand. The European and Japanese economies literally float on Arab oil, and suddenly over the past few years demand has jumped spectacularly. Prices have leaped accordingly.

THIS, as I observed recently, would have been predictable if Israel were located in Australia. Whenever items in the world market have been in short supply, those nations with the requisite resources — and national independence — have raised the ante to the limit. (An exception was last year's "great grain robbery" — in Sen. Jackson's phrase — where the United States summarily abandoned capitalism in favor of something called "detente."

But, as is well known in Asia, Americans are inscrutable.)

At any rate, let's keep our categories straight. The Arab oil producers are not idiots, dervishes or socialists. They are extremely hard-eyed characters who would feel right at home with the National Association of Manufacturers. All they had to do was to look at the supply-demand statistics and make the completely rational capitalist decision: nail the buyer to the wall. The existence or non-existence of Israel has in fundamental terms as much to do with this calculation as the phases of the moon.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Young voters lead impeachment drive

WASHINGTON — The ground swell across the country for the impeachment of the President or, failing that, for his resignation is a new phenomenon quite unlike the mass protests of the past. The young on the campuses are not burning down ROTC buildings or trashing university libraries.

Instead they are organizing teach-ins and seminars on the dilemma of a government headed by a crippled President. Many of the young are those who worked for Sen. George McGovern until they were disillusioned in the last phase of the campaign.

Their attitude today is different. Deeply concerned over the future of the country, they are determined not only on a serious inquiry into every aspect of the constitutional crisis but on pursuing through legitimate channels the drive to remove the President from office.

AT YALE UNIVERSITY, where a confrontation of massed thousands once threatened to burn down the campus, students and faculty members met to plan their program of letter writing, petitions and fund raising. Within three days 3,200 students had signed petitions calling for the President's impeachment. The chairman of the Liberal party of the Political Union reported that spontaneous activity had begun in the graduate, divinity and medical schools.

All eight Ivy League college newspapers printed an identical editorial headed: "Nixon Must Go."

"We will settle for nothing less than impeachment of the President," the editorial said. "Mere resignation is not enough." Students were urged to take part in peaceful rallies at courthouses throughout the country "to protest the clear and present danger to democracy in these United States."

The same thing has been happening on other campuses with petitions, letters and telegrams pouring in to Congress. This might be discounted as merely another manifestation of the smart aleck young on the Eastern seaboard, although the phenomenon is by no means confined to the East.

IN MIDDLE AMERICA — geographically and politically — the ground swell takes another direction. A popular lecturer doing one-night stands across the country reports that indignation centers on the President's huge tax deductions, reducing his payments for each of two years to reportedly under $800.

The White House has neither confirmed nor denied these reports and has declined to make public the President's income tax returns. A deduction of $570,000 came from the gift of his presidential papers to the National Archives, although the timing of the gift in relation to the law is in question.

Meeting hundreds of people each week who attend his popular illustrated lectures, my friend reports that while they may not be clear about the issue of the tapes they boil over on taxes. Why should he, with his salary of $200,000 and those other sources of income, get away with that, they ask.

MUTTERINGS of a tax strike can be heard. Probably no more than part of the angry talk, it nevertheless illustrates how deep is the blow to confidence in the integrity of the government. The federal income tax, with Draconian enforcement by an efficient service, has been considered, despite a few flagrant exemptions for the very rich, to be sacrosanct.

Those electing to stick by the ship, such as Acting Attorney General Robert Bork who in that capacity fired Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, are feeling the whiplash of anger. On leave from the faculty of the Yale University Law School, Bork was denounced for this action in a petition signed by 160 students and some faculty. The total Law School enrollment for various degrees is 585.

How much of this rising mutter of discontent gets through to the President? The answer is precious little. He is still the loner, finding solace at Camp David or Key Biscayne, and a loner surrounded by men who either are unable or unwilling to tell him the truth. With one or two exceptions they are dependents who do his bidding.

It is one thing to say this cannot endure. But it is quite another thing to say how it will end.

Ohio Perspective

Medical schools dispersed

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Unlike some other states, Ohio has escaped internal competition over where to locate its new medical schools.

"Everyone who has asked for a medical school got one," said William B. Coulter, vice chancellor for administration of the Ohio Board of Regents.

He pointed out that with the addition of the Wright State and Northeast Ohio Medical College—both recently created by the legislature—the state will have six medical schools. The combined enrollment of the existing four is about 2,300, and they have entering classes totaling about 700 a year, Coulter said.

The regents' official said Ohio has more medical schools, more widely dispersed, than most other states. He attributed that fact to the state's many large cities—eight with more than 100,000 population.

The two new schools expand the network even further, since each will be a consortium to serve three universities.

Wright State at Dayton also will serve Central State and Miami universities.

The northeast school will serve the University of Akron along with Kent State and Youngstown State universities.

Legislation creating the schools was politically popular in the General Assembly, Coulter said, "because it was stated that they would stress family practice, the greatest area of need in the medical profession."

The existing schools—the University of Cincinnati, Ohio State University, Case Western Reserve of Cleveland, and the Medical College of Ohio at Toledo—more or less lean toward specialty, the trend of the profession in recent years.

Dr. Robert Conley of Wright State said "we have a community-based medical school, and we are designing it so the community will participate and benefit."

He said that with the opportunity to start with the establishment of departmental units, it will be possible to structure in the emphasis on family practice.

Wright State or the Northeast Ohio College could get the benefit of a new Veterans Administration program to help establish eight new medical schools across the country.

Federal legislation still being implemented authorizes the VA to pay 90 per cent of faculty salaries at the eight schools for the first three years of a seven-year program, and 50 per cent during the remaining four. The new Ohio schools probably won't get their first students until about two years.

Conley said Wright State is "very much interested. We've watched the legislation from the beginning, but we want to see what the regulations and criteria are." He said these are being considered by the U.S. Office of Budget Management.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

She gets rebuff after dressing down neighbor

DEAR ABBY: A 40-year-old man who is a neighbor of mine, and also a friend, goes out to get his morning paper in the nude.

I have told him that this is against the law, but he says as long as he is on his property they can't arrest him. I told him, it didn't make any difference, it was still against the law.

I am afraid they will catch him and lock him up. Will you please print this. There are lots of children in the neighborhood, and I don't think this is very nice. Sign me

WORRIED IN FORT PIERCE, FLA.

DEAR WORRIED: Laws differ, but your neighbor should find out if he's within the law to be without clothes even on his own property in view of the neighbors. (What could they charge him with? Indecent exposure, or being an attractive nuisance?)

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote that she had been married 27 years, and all she was good for was sex. One is struck by her incapacity to realize that she must be one fantastically creative, imaginative, responsive female to have made sex so exciting for the same man for 27 years.

She says she's "the world's worst cook and housekeeper, and not good at anything except sex"-as if sex was a bad thing to be good at.

One could easily change the letter around. A woman may have written in saying all she was good for was cooking, and that's the only reason her husband married her, and now they are both overweight, and their lives are devoid of everything except the pleasures of eating. That would be worse, wouldn't it?

Or she might have said she was the world's greatest housekeeper, but since she didn't have a passionate nature, her husband went out and paid prostitutes, or kept mistresses to fulfill his sexual needs. Sadder, but more believable, right?

I was married for years to a man who found my sexual nature both irritating and intimidating. Since he really didn't enjoy either physical or emotional intimacy, and since he mostly wanted me to be an excellent cook and housekeeper (neither of which I am or ever will be), our relationship was singularly lacking in closeness, friendship, and love.

Luckily, I since have left that marriage and have found a man who appreciates a woman who is passionate, responsive, and sexually creative.

After six years of this fulfilling relationship, please tell that poor woman for me that I have been there too-both ways. And believe me, this way is better!

"LIVING" IN RIVERSIDE, CAL.

DEAR ABBY: We are studying about reproduction in school. The book says that a female can become pregnant only during a two to four day period every month, but it doesn't say anything about a man. Does the man have a certain time when he is fertile, too?

I am embarrassed to ask the teacher because I don't want to sound dumb.

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: First: There is nothing "dumb" about your question-in fact, no question is "dumb" if it's sincere, so never hesitate to ask. The male is fertile on a nonstop basis throughout his reproductive life.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A. Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope please.

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Hart, as a goodly number of kids, college students and general citizens know, draws the "B.C." comic strip, which is sort of a hipsters' "Flintstones."

Come Nov. 19, he'll have his first full-length cartoon feature on television, a half-hour effort on NBC called "B.C., The First Thanksgiving."

Most of it concerns a turkey who is uneasy at the idea of being dined on. Hart approaches interviews about the show approximately the same way the turkey contemplates the ax.

"I'm trying to get into the Guiness Book of Records as the worst interview of all time," he unhappily explained. Then he started laughing. "So you might as well prepare yourself."

Hart, a 41-year-old native of Endicott, N.Y., isn't a hostile witness. It's just that, well, a guy who draws ants that talk and anteaters that go "Zot!" as they dine is apt to be a bit strange upstairs.

In his defense, we'd point out that he's a great fan of the old "Roadrunner" cartoons, breaks up at the mention of Dudley Do-Right of the Royal Mounted Police and considers jazz trumpeter Jack Sheldon, a regular on the Merv Griffin show, one of the most naturally funny men of all time.

Hart, in short, is a normal cartoonist. His "B.C." strip has been nationally syndicated for nearly 13 years, but he's been a professional cartoonist since he was 19.

"I guess originally it was the only thing that I knew how to do," he said. "I started out just working nights and studying other people's drawings, then trying some of my own."

He continued drawing, even during a Korean war stint with the Air Force, but despite some success in magazines he didn't really hit until he happened to see Charles Schulz' "Peanuts" strip.

That prompted "B.C." and the rest is history. Now he wants to do more animated cartoons for television, but only on an irregular basis while continuing his strip.

"I don't like the idea of doing it for television every week, because you have to take so much away from it," he said, referring to time considerations that force reduction in cartoon detail.

"I'm of the old school. I like the full animation, like in the old days with the Warner Brothers stuff.

"But that's what I'd like to do," he said. "I think I have a talent for that. I think I have a good feel for sound, which you can't get on a page. I drive myself crazy trying to do it on a piece of paper, but, jeez, it's difficult."

Unlike many successful cartoonists, Hart still draws his own strip, seven days a week,365 days a year.

Chinese emigration at flood tide

HONG KONG (AP) — China is allowing more legal emigration than at any time since the Communists took over the mainland in 1949. This has created a serious housing and welfare problem for already overcrowded Hong Kong because the emigrants have nowhere to go from here.

Building up throughout most of the year, the influx hit what some Hong Kong officials privately call " ear crisis" stage late in October.

Some 7,000 Chinese with legal exit visas crossed the border into Hong Kong in October, and 2,191 crossed in the first five days of November.

Since the first of the year, more than 46,000 Chinese have been permitted to leave China. In all of 1972, there were about 5,800. And in 1971, 2,369.

These figures do not include the "illegal" Chinese refugees who flee China in fishing junks or other small coastal craft or by swimming to Hong Kong. Government officials and social workers estimated these at between 12,000 and 15,000 a year — but no one knows for sure. Once in Hong Kong, the "illegals" lose themselves in hillside squatter hut areas and jammed tenement buildings.

Social service officials say virtually all of the 46,000 legals emigrants so far this year are still in Hong Kong because they have no onward visas to enter other countries. There is a general feeling here that many will not be able to get these visas. "They are here. It looks like they are going to have to stay here. And if the influx continues at this pace, we are going to have very serious difficulties indeed in caring for them," said one social service official.

Officials here say they they don't know for sure why China has permitted so many more legal exits this year.

These officials do point out, however, that a considerable number are overseas Chinese from Southeast Asian countries who returned to China in the 1960s.

There are indications that many of these had become disillusioned with life in China and have wanted out for several years — but no explanation of why China has suddenly agreed to let them depart at this time.

Many came originally from Indonesia, Malaysia, Cambodia, and South Vietnam. When they left for China they lost their citizenship or residence rights in those countries.

"And," said one Hong Kong official, "those countries don't seem to want them back and other countries don't want them — and so Hong Kong has to absorb them."

Restructuring of securities industry not an easy project

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How does one go about restructuring the nation's sprawling securities industry into a modern, centralized model of efficiency?

Not easily, as it turns out. Efforts toward such a central market have raised a long list of interlocking issues that have surrounded the whole subject with controversy.

Almost everybody favors the idea of a central market linking the separate exchanges and markets into one coordinated network. But when it comes down to the specifics of who will take what role in that market, agreement has been scarce on Wall Street and in Washington.

Here is a capsule look at some of the major questions that remain to be resolved:

ACCESS: One group, led by the government, wants access to the central market for everyone in the industry. This would include specialists, who match orders auction-style on the exchanges, and dealers, who make markets by buying and selling from their own accounts. It would include all exchanges and markets, particularly the so-called "third market," where dealers serve banks and pension funds by trading in large blocks of stock listed on the exchanges.

The New York and American Stock exchanges and Securities Industry Association, by contrast, prefer a market operating through market-making specialists only.

The government says dealers should compete directly to offer potentially better prices and to provide the liquidity to absorb large blocks. The big exchanges, however, say the inclusion of dealers would destroy the auction market and turn brokerage houses into dealer firms, thereby creating a conflict of interest as one firm serves both as broker-agent and buyer-seller.

James Needham, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, wants the whole network to adopt the exchange's rule prohibiting market-makers, the entities which set prices, from dealing directly with institutions, as dealers do.

IMPLEMENTION: The Securities and Exchange Commission says the first step toward a central market is a composite tape to disclose all transactions. By showing discrepancies in prices in various markets, "the implementation would necessarily precipitate some restructuring of the way securities are traded today," the SEC claims.

The Big Board wants equal regulations and standards established before the tape begins operation, however. And the SIA feels that central administrative facilities are essential before any trading can be conducted over the network.

As conceived now the composite tape would reveal the price, quantity and location of all trades. Those who feel the system would create chaos if implemented, because of the price differences, say the SEC is using the tape principally as a threat to get the industry in line. Denying this, the SEC's central market architect, John Liftin, says, "All it will do is disclose what already takes place."

OPERATION: Who will run and pay for the national communications network is still in question. Some feel that the present Amex and NYSE could together handle the reporting of trades, while the NASDAQ system now in use in the over-the-counter market could provide a means of reporting bid and asked quotations.

The Big Board and Amex would like their present joint automation venture to run the total network, while the government, particularly Congress, is for a neutral or quasi-governmental body.

As to the cost of the communications network, estimates run anywhere from $50 million to $150 million depending on whom you talk to and whether they like the government's approach. "The cost will be astronomical and it's being forced down our throats," said Virgil Sherrill of Shields & Co., head of the SIA's central market committee.

LISTING: Presently stocks on many companies are listed on exchanges, while the securities of thousands more remain unlisted and are traded only in the over-the-counter market. And some of the listed stocks also are traded away from the exchanges in the "third market."

The Big Board and the SIA believe "publicly owned companies should have the option of choosing where to trade their securities," according to Sherrill. The government and the SEC would permit trading wherever competitive reasons make it profitable for the specialist or dealer to handle a given stock.

FIXED RATES: Nearly 200 years ago the New York Stock Exchange began to set the commissions that member firms could charge investors. This fall the SEC asserted its insistence on an end to all fixed rates by April 30, 1975.

Though the SEC decision has recently been termed a "fait accompli" by the Big Board's Needham, there is still much controversy on Wall Street over abolition of fixed rates, with some saying the decision may yet be reversed.

A House committee which studied the industry concluded that "the resolution of the commission rate issue is the key to resolving most of the major questions concerning the shape of our nation's securities markets."

In a recent report to directors, the Big Board's staff said fixed rates are necessary because without them the auction market would be undermined. Only the large brokerage firms would survive, the staff argued, and they would find it economically advantageous to withdraw from the NYSE and other exchanges. The core of this argument, the staff said, is that "open competition amongst a multiplicity of brokerage firms could not be sustained."

Those who favor competitive rates say fixed rates breed inefficiency and distortion. They contend that fixed rates and the exchanges' steps to safeguard them encourage an unhealthy exclusivity on Wall Street.

Model Railroad Show slated at Mansfield

MANSFIELD—The Model Railroad Show at Kingwood Center, sponsored by the Travel'n Trainmen of North Central Ohio, will be open to the public Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., and on Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Kingwood Meeting Hall. Admission is free.

The show will feature all the popular size model trains, including "O" gauge, "HO" and the "N" or pocket size gauge. Various phases of construction including scenery, wiring and operation will be displayed. The show will contain mobile as well as static model displays of both the new and old trains in all the popular sizes.

The first air transport of mail in Canada was made by Capt. Brian Peck in 1918. He flew from Montreal to Toronto with 120 letters on board.

Women's Day of Prayer observed by Baptists

Women from the Baptist Churches of Fayette County met together in the First Baptist Church of Bloomingburg on Monday evening for the annual Baptist Women's Day of Prayer.

Mrs. Arthur Stewart of the host church presented "Introduction-Purposes" and gave the purpose of the Women's Department of the Baptist World Alliance and reminded all of the privilege of joining women on six contenents as they encircled the golbe with prayer.

Following the singing of a hymn, Mrs. Marvin Crosswhite from Second Baptist Church of Washington C.H., read the message from the president, Mrs. R. L. Mathis. She stated that the "Baptist Women's Day of Prayer is the link that binds all together the world around . . . on this day to forget all lines that might tend to divide them."

The very inspirational message was read by Mrs. Lois Stills from Second Baptist Church of Jeffersonville. The message, "The city that was, but is no more" was written by Olivia S.D. de Lerin, executive secretary of the Women's Missionary Union of Mexico and president of the Latin American Baptist Women's Union.

"The city that was, but is no more" was an expression that was heard on Dec. 24, 1972, after the earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua, because in 30 seconds the city was completely destroyed like Hiroshima in World War II."

As Olivia de Lerin visited the Baptist churches she learned that many buildings were destroyed but with no loss of loves. She found it refreshing to see the people working instead of sitting down feeling sorry for themselves. She said she would never be able to tell all that she had seen or heard, but could tell of the experience with the people of Nicaragua, and how her faith and trust had been strengthened.

Mrs. Robert Bachelor of First Baptist in Washington C.H. read the offeratory and Mrs. John Baker of the same church gave the prayer.

Following the commitment service by ladies of the host church, all joined hands in a circle for the closing hymm, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." Mrs. Leona Terry was pianist.

Refreshments and a social hour followed. Due to illness, ladies from Immanuel Baptist Church were unable to participate.

Phi Beta Psi donates to Research

The Active Chapter of Phi Beta Psi was entertained with an original skit entitled "Tradition", written, produced and enacted by the pledges, Mrs. John Bryant, Mrs. Don Kirk, Mrs. Jim Kirk, Miss Fonda Fichthorn, Mrs. Richard Stinson, Mrs. Charles Tye and Mrs. Shirley Wisecup. Mrs. Paul V. Johnson's home, 506 Damon Dr., provided the setting.

Mrs. James McCoy announced that a profit of $197.00 from the rummage sale will benefit Cancer Research. According to Mrs. Willis Coffman, the third annual Antique Show will be March 28-31 at the Mahan Building. A new feature will be a craft bazaar booth in conjunction with the Fayette County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The Christmas and initiation party will be December 3 at Lafayette Inn. Inactive members are urged to phone Mrs. Don Wald 335-8398 or Mrs. Gene Elliott 335-5869 for reservations and details.

Mrs. William Hendren and Mrs. James Ward assisted Mrs. Johnson with refreshments.

Meatless supper: turn hot cooked cornmeal mush into a shallow baking dish and top with tomato sauce and grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until bubbly hot. Use homemade tomato sauce prepared with canned tomatoes, onion, green pepper, celery, carrot and seasonings.

'Drugs in Fayette County' is topic at Alpha CCL meet

Sgt. Bill Crooks of the Sheriff's Department was guest speaker Wednesday evening when members of Alpha Child Conservation League assembled in the home of Mrs. Merrill Lynch. His topic, "Drugs and Drug Abuse in Washington C.H. and Fayette County" was most interesting.

Sgt. Crooks had on display several packages of marijuana, amphetamines, heroine, barbiturates and hallucinogens which, at the time had been confiscated in the mail from the local post office, or had been found on various persons. He stated that if the drug addicts alone were taken from the streets, this would prevent nearly 75 per cent of the murders and burglaries, for most of these are done by drug users, or sniffers.

He also stated that drugs have been found in most of the junior high and senior high schools around the area, but the use seems to be leveling off or at least is at a standstill, instead of on the increase. A question and answer period followed.

Campaign financing bill dying?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It may be that the complexity of the problem as well as partisan bickering will result in the current special session of the legislature adjourning without a campaign finance bill.

Leaders have not given up hope, despite a fourth fruitless meeting Wednesday of a six-member conference committee seeking to resolve Republican and Democratic differences.

Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, speaker pro tem of the House, said that while no bill from the special session is "a possibility," he thinks a decision on whether to quit trying may come today or Friday.

He said there is no plan "at this time" to name a new conference committee—a normal move when a joint committee becomes deadlocked. "That hasn't been formally discussed, bu. I'm sure there's been some talk about it," he said.

Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, conference committee chairman, hinted he will not keep the members through any prolonged deadlock. "If we can't agree, I'll ask for a new committee," he said.

Although the committee has not discussed key issues, deliberations so far make it clear that numerous procedural problems are involved in legislation to limit campaign spending and require reporting of contributions and expenditures.

Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, a committee member, said "many people just don't realize the complexities of this type of legislation. Even if we could agree on a vehicle, it would take two weeks to do the drafting," he said.

The committee has to decide such things as who must file financial statements, when and with whom, how much can be spent on campaigns for the various offices, and also such imponderables as how limiting campaign expenditures could have the effect of "locking in" incumbents.

Organized crime said most serious

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The author of three major federal crime control measures said organized crime is the most serious form of law-breaking in the country, yet citizens are unconcerned.

G. Robert Blakey, professor of law at Cornell University, said organized crime influences our economic institutions, creates public corruption and causes 50 per cent of the street crimes — robberies to get money for narcotics.

"Yet our attitude towards organized crime is strangely ambivalent," he said. "A majority of our people probably do not believe that the Mafia exists. Others, particularly liberals, feels organized crime only services our moral failings."

He added, "Touched by corruption, many political leaders also minimize its significance."

Blakey, who wrote the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970, the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1970 and the Crime Control Act of 1973, addressed the Ohio Crime Prevention Conference in its third day. The conference ends Friday.

Earlier Wednesday, Herbert Edelhertz of the Battelle Human Affairs Research Center of Seattle said organized crime has entered legitimate business.

Even so, Edelhertz said, the Mob continues to operate in its traditional manner. "They don't change their spots," he added.

He said organized crime figures use stolen airline tickets to travel, stolen credit cards to have "business lunches," and equip their motels with stolen furnishings, like television sets.

Penelope the gorilla pregnant

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Penelope has been up to her amorous ways again.

The 19-year-old lowland gorilla, already the mother of three, is expecting again, the Cincinnati Zoo announced Wednesday.

The father, for the fourth time in four years, is 475-pound King Tut, who at 24 takes these things in stride.

Penelope and King Tut are believed to be the world's oldest pair of the endangered lowland species. They are among 10 gorillas at the zoo, which currently is tied with Basel, Switzerland for the most lowland gorilla births. Both zoos have six.

Penelope is a gift to the zoo from the famed Dr. Albert Schweitzer, who sent her to Ohio after Cincinnati school children presented him with a herd of goats.

Edward Maruska, zoo director, said the birth is expected in May.

He also said that the zoo's other producing pair, Hatari and Matari, may be expecting their fourth.

State fluoridation law faces test

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The City of Cincinnati, caught between a state order and a court injunction, plans to carry out a mandate from the voters by testing Ohio's 1969 fluoridation law in the First District Court of Appeals.

The action, to be filed soon, will ask the court to rule on the constitutionality of the mandatory fluoridation statute.

Tuesday night, for the third time since 1953, Cincinnatians defeated a referendum on fluoridating city waters.

In 1971 a Hamilton County Court judge ruled the state fluoridation law invalid and enjoined the city from complying with it.

Last August the state Environmental Protection Agency ordered the city to fluoridate. Solicitor Thomas Luebbers then appealed to the state Environmental Board of Review, and lost. Luebbers had said prior to the Tuesday voting that if the referendum passed he'd appeal no further.

But it lost, 50,444-36,969.

Philip Olinger, assistant to Luebbers, said Wednesday he was working on a notice of appeal against the board of review's finding and would probably file it today.

Olinger said the contradictory orders of the state and the county court left the city "not knowing where to turn."

"If the referendum vote had been in favor of fluoridation we would not have been as much in need of testing the law," Olinger said Wednesday.

Atty. Harvey Immerman, whose complaint last summer prompted the state's fluoridation order here, said he believes the state appellate court will uphold the validity of the fluoridaton law.

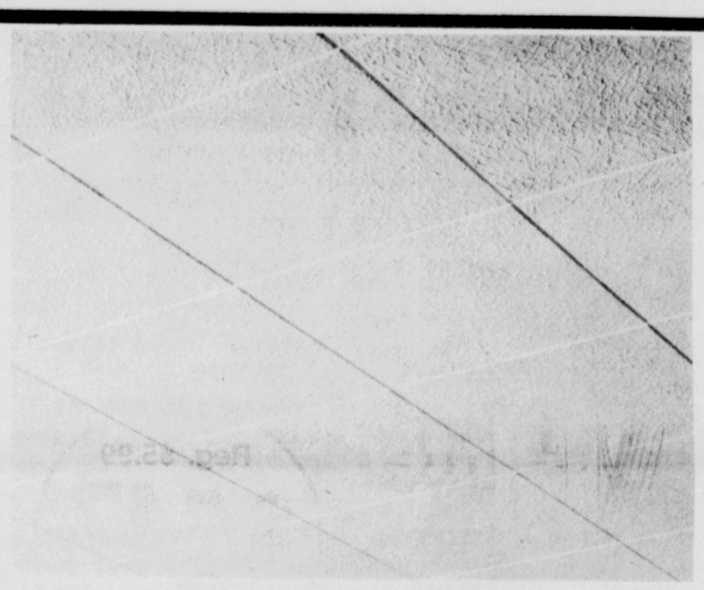

But J. Julian Bowman, president of the Citizen's Committee Against Fluoridation, said "the moment it gets into court it's laughable." He called fluoridation "the hoax of the century," and said his group will expand its efforts to other Ohio cities.

The anti-fluoridationists contend that sodium fluoride is a poison that has caused many deaths that are on record. They claim the scientific community has not adequately researched fluoridation.

And they say fluoridation violates the constitutional rights of people to decide what is taken into their bodies.

Olinger said that if the appellate court upholds the fluoridation law the City Council still will have to vote on whether to go along.

If they or the anti-fluoridationists decide to keep the fluoride battle going, it could go all the way to the Ohio Supreme Court, he said.

Seniors of Week

BY CHERIE WILSON

The first featured senior this week is Jane Ann Wackman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wackman, 442 Broadway.

The first half of Jane Ann's day is spent taking American Government, Shorthand II, Office Practice and COE courses and the rest is spent working at the Washington Savings Bank. She is a member of Senior Y-Yeens, AFS and COE and is also a 4-H Club member. Swimming, sewing, cooking, horseback riding, watching the Blue Lion football games and tennis are listed as Jane Ann's hobbies.

She plans to attend Columbus Business University following graduation. Her comments were, "I have enjoyed all my years at WSHS and I'm very proud of the Blue Lion football team."

BRENT THOMPSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stackhouse, 515 W. Elm St., is the second featured senior.

Brent, who plans to attend Purdue or Ohio State to study electronics or nuclear physics following graduation, is taking American Government, physical education, Humanities, Fundamentals of Writing, Advanced Math, NJROTC II and Physics. He is a member of AFS, Hi-Y, National Honor Society, the Sunburst staff, and is president of band and the Rotciteers.

His comments were, "At the end of school last year I hoped that my senior year would go as fast as my junior year did, but now that I am a senior I hope this year will be slow so I can remember all of it. Good luck to the underclassmen, I hope that their next years are as great as mine have been."

Dabblers busy

The Dabbler's Art Club, with the help of many volunteers enrolled in the art classes, has been busy with community projects.

Posters for Fayette Memorial Hospital's skating party, a turkey and ham supper at the New Holland United Methodist Church, and others for the Mother's Circle have all been done during the month. The Dabblers have decided to make seasonal greeting cards for a nursing home. The President of the club is Greg Huysman, vice president is Jeff LeMaster, treasurer is Vicky Straley and the secretary is Jeff Henry.

The waiteri, or fierce ones among Venezuela's Yanomamo people, resort to ritualized fights to relieve passions that might otherwise lead to aggression.

LETTERMEN LEADERS — Mr. Jon Creamer, left, an assistant Washington C.H. football coach, and Chuck Wilson, right, are the leaders of the WSHS Lettermen's Club this year. Creamer is the club advisor and Wilson is president.

Lettermen's Club has busy schedule

BRIAN GALLOWAY

The Lettermen's Club is one of many clubs at Washington Senior High, but few can boast a more complete schedule of activities.

These atheletes, some of Ohio's best, and their advisor, Mr. Jon Creamer, are very active. Their activities and projects include hanging of pictures on the wall outside the gym, sponsoring the annual student-faculty basketball game, selling booster buttons, sponsoring the homecoming bonfire, and attending professional sporting events. Their next activity will be a vist to "Big Time Wrestling" in Dayton.

The president is Chuck Wilson. Other officers include vice president Bill Shaw and treasurer Chuck Oesterle. Coach Creamer, when asked how this year's club was in comparison to the Lettermen's clubs of previous years, replied, "This year's club is more active and more exciting because of the quality of the leaders and the enthusiasm of the members."

He also said that having many members of Ohio's No. 1 Class AA football team in the club created more enthusiasm and interest. The only requirement for membership is that you must earn at least one varsity letter in any sport. The Lettermen's Club has about 30 members.

Council hoping to be a pacesetter

The 1973-74 Washington Senior High School Student Council is planning to be a pacesetter for future councils.

The Student Council president is Keith Stimpert, whose hard work is shown in fine results. The executive committee also consist of Mike Kimmet, Teri Mount, and Jill Willis. Mr. Gibbs is this year's new advisor with Mr. Moore being the assistant advisor.

So far this year council has undertaken traditional duties. The Homecoming festivities, they sponsored, ranked atop as to match the number one football team. Council held a Who's Who Assembly, plus ran all elections concerning class officers and the Homecoming Court. Other traditional duties that they will carry out during the school year are a Valentine Dance, sock hops, gym night, and Student Council elections.

The council has set high goals in hope of great accomplishments. One primary goal is to better student communication. Another goal is that of general improvement for the student body.

The opportunity for changes this year appear to be quite good. Mr. Gibbs, the advisor, commented to support this by saying, "This year's council is extremely good and leadership is excellent. Council will work for some changes, but due to leadership and quality of the people on council, they will go about it in an appropriate manner.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, NOV. 9

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
Shun a tendency to sidestep obligations in favor of more pleasurable activities. Set your sights high, establish day's pattern early.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
Control emotions. There will be tendencies to exaggerate, to lose temper. Be especially tactful in dealings with marital and or business partners.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
Avoid any tendency toward vagueness. Set sights calculatingly on your target and aim for it unerringly. Stellar influences helpful.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
Finalize pending matters, tie up loose ends, but do not rush anything that requires longer study and more attention. Work on agreements.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)
Don't rest on past laurels. You can meet and, in spots, surpass competition. Be careful not to push too hard or at the wrong time, however.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
Try not to set too fast a pace—either for yourself or others. You could find that you've expended a lot of time and energy to no useful purpose.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
Your competition will be strong now, but there is plenty of room for your talents. Display them with discriminating taste. There are benefits in the offing.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Some good news or friendly cooperation should aid you in perfecting long-range plans. Study new trends, developments.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
Keep at whatever you are doing since you seem to be close to achieving a special desire. Your intuition can be of great help.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Generous influences should help you to capitalize on your ideas instead of keeping them in the thought stage. A novel touch, a delicate approach will pay off.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
Do not start anything without knowing if you can follow through. All efforts and ambitions must be carefully directed now. Don't follow new trends blindly.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
Your intuition—AND your self-confidence—at a peak. Grasp any opportunity to show your ability. Travel plans favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are a mentally alert, enthusiastic individual, endowed with tremendous drive and initiative. Scorpio is a Sign of both creativity and practicality, so you can be equally adept in business interprises or an artistic career. You are gregarious, a born organizer and leader. Impulsive at times and quickly aroused to anger, you are, however, as quick to forget your resentments and hostilities, and usually "bend backward" to make up for hasty management. Also, there is no field of art which is closed to you—and some aspect of it should be taken up, even if only avocationally.

Observances Friday, Saturday

Veterans groups slate memorials

A second Veterans Day observance here this year is now well along in the planning stages.

The first one, on Oct. 22 by proclamation by Congress, created hardly a ripple on the surface with holidays by a few business places and a few flags fluttering.

The three veterans organizations—American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Veterans of World War 1—refused to go along with Congress' Veterans Day. Instead, they took the stand that Veterans Day should continue to be observed on Nov. 11, the date the Armistice ending World War 1 was signed (at 11 a.m. Nov. 11, 1918) in Paris.

Eventually that first Armistice Day became Veterans Day, and was generally observed as such, until the date was changed to the fourth Monday in October by Congress, presumably to create a longer weekend holiday. That's where the veterans organizations here (with support of the national organizations) balked.

So, the second Veterans Day will be observed here Friday and Saturday.

CLAYTON STARR, public relations director of the Ohio American Legion, will come here from his Columbus headquarters to address a student assembly at 8:20 a.m. at Miami Trace High School, at 9:30 a.m. at Washington Senior High School and at 11 a.m. at Washington Junior High School.

Starr, who became the Ohio Legion Department publicity director and editor of the Legion newspaper in 1965, also is the staff liaison officer for the Americanism committee. He is a 2½-year Navy veteran of World War 11.

Barracks of Veterans of World War 1, will combine to pay tributes to the veterans at the annual memorial service at the monument on the Courthouse lawn at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Members of all three organizations are to meet and the Legion Home and march from there to the monument. Plans call for one of the city high school bands and the Company C firing squad to join the marchers.

At the monument, officers of the Legion and Auxiliary, headed by Cmdr. Harold Dixon, will conduct the memorial ritual and the Rev. Cloyce C. Copley, a past commander of the Brunett-Ducey VFW post and chaplain of the state World War Veterans organization and Fayette County barracks, will deliver the eulogy. After Taps and a salute to the dead by the firing squad, the veterans will return to the American Legion home.

Udall says Americans 'energy pigs'

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Former Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall says Americans are "energy pigs" whose nation is operating on misguided assumptions that the energy crisis is a shortterm problem.

Udall told a University of Virginia audience Monday night that the energy crisis is so severe "you can expect your first cold shower in about 60 days."

For Americans to dream of relying on Arab oil or to depend on increased drilling in the United States are foolish, shortsighted solutions, he said. Udall said the United States already is the most-drilled country in the world and oil supplies are becoming increasingly inaccessible.

He said energy conservation is the only practical long range solution and that Americans must prepare themselves for the end of the era of cheap energy.

He predicted the demise of the automobile culture and called for the rejuvenation of public transportation.

He also warned of the possibility of gasoline rationing in a few months, and he predicted gasoline prices probably would reach $1 a gallon for the average motorist within a year.

Big synthetic molecules or polymers appear in everything from artificial wigs to nonstick frying pans.

School leaders assess defeat of bond issue

Members of the Fayette County Board of Education and school administrators have expressed disappointment that the proposed junior high school bond issue was defeated at the polls Tuesday.

Superintendent Guy M. Foster said the 47 per cent favorable vote was much improved over the 36 per cent favorable vote of May 1970, but the new proposal was edged by approximately 200 votes. Voters in five precincts passed the issue. Approving the issue were the precincts of Concord, Madison Mills, Lower Paint, Union East and Union South.

Foster suggested that the improved voting record could be attributed in large part to the dedication of many citizens in the community "who really made it their business to tell the story." He feels that the promotion committee, headed by Phil Grover and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Vanzant, did an excellent job in directing the campaign in an honest, professional fashion. The various subcommittees and interested workers are all to be congratulated and their effort was appreciated, Foster said in speaking for the board of education.

In reviewing the campaign efforts, the administration feels that, generally speaking, the proposed building plan and improvements for the elementary schools seemed basically sound to the citizenry. Although various reasons were given for voicing disapproval, no one reason seemed to be shared by a large segment of the voters, Foster pointed out.

What is the next step? Foster said he expects the total citizens committee to meet with board members and administration to review the results of the election. From this meeting will come direction for future efforts to improve the elementary schools in the Miami Trace School District, he said.

Chest $7,892 short of goal

The Fayette County Community Chest is now only $7,892 short of the $27,000 goal. This includes the $993.25 contributed in cash and pledges during the past week to bring the total up to $19,108.16.

Chest President Lee Lynch is sticking to the hope that the Chest will be filled—hopefully to overflowing—within a week. The directors at a meeting two weeks ago set their sights on Nov. 15 for completion of the campaign, which started more than a month ago.

That objective is considered attainable—if the solicitation is completed by four segments of the campaign. Of the 46 employe groups, 21 have not yet reported; of the 300 business, industry and professional groups 100 remain to be heard from; only a "few" contributions have been received from the mail solicitation in the rural area, and no reports have been received from the campaign in Bloomingburg and Jeffersonville.

Lynch repeated that anyone who was in advertently missed in the canvass may mail a contribution to the Community Chest, Post Office box 598, Washington C.H., Ohio 43160 or leave it in person at the chamber of commerce office.

Support for 10 local organizations' programs next year will come from the Community Chest.

Student auto ban proposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A national organization of high school principals called today for a sharp reduction in the use of student cars.

The National Association of Secondary School Principals, meeting here, said it anticipates a positive response from high school students.

Carey M. Pace Jr. of Columbus, president of the organization which claims 35,000 members, said hundreds of thousands of gallons of gasoline could be conserved each day if students would use available buses and other public transportation.

Bloomingburg women plan holiday event

BLOOMINGBURG — With the annual pre-election supper behind them, the women of the Bloomingburg Presbyterian Church are concentrating on their next major project — Christmas Walk '73.

Scheduled for 10:30 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1, this event features handmade Christmas decorations and gifts displayed and for sale in three homes near the church. Novelty items, baked goods and a wide variety of candy may be purchased in the church social room. Lunch will be served.

Homes decorated this year include those of Mrs. Howard Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Biddle and Mrs. Alice Cory.

Tickets in advance are $1; at the door on the day of the walk, $1.25.

Set big jet use on Florida trips

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — United Air Lines says it hopes to gain a 12 per cent greater passenger capacity on its flights to and from southeast Florida this winter by using larger aircraft.

United spokesmen said Wednesday that by Dec. 13 the airline will begin flying Boeing 747s to Miami from the Great Lake cities. Also added will be wide-body DC10 trijets.

The airline said it plans to increase its daily seating capacity into and out of Miami from 796 to 1,255.

'Mowery Memorial Fund' established

A resolution establishing a "Delmar Mowery Memorial Fund" was adopted at a meeting Wednesday night of the Miami Trace Athletic Association.

Mr. Mowery, a mathematics teacher, athletic director and former head basketball coach at Miami Trace High School, died Saturday of an apparent heart attack.

Principal Curtis E. Fleisher said the fund will be handled through a special account established within the high school activities account.

A special committee was appointed to study and make recommendations as to the appropriate memorial in tribute to Mr. Mowery who compiled an astounding record while coaching Miami Trace basketball teams. The committee will report to the athletic association and recommendations will be made to the Fayette County Board of Education for approval.

The committee consists of two head coaches, a board of education member, the booster club and Student Council presidents and Fleisher.

Fleisher said any individual or organization wishing to make a donation may send contributions to the high school in care of the "Delmar Mowery Memorial Fund."

Harrisburg seats vacant

HARRISBURG, Ohio (AP) — Harrisburg Mayor Delbert Johnson says he probably will have to fill four vacant village council seats by appointment because nobody was elected to the posts in Tuesday's election.

The appointment plan is tentative, pending advice from the county prosecutor, Johnson said.

The problem was created by a new state law that requires write-in candidates to file as candidates before an election.

Traditionally, this tiny village south of Columbus has had write-in elections for councilmen.

Johnson said the system had its advantages, one being that voters in the village of 400 had to know the candidates' names, not just recognize them.

This year, as usual, no one filed as a candidate. But, unexpectedly, no one filed as a write-in either. The result was that no one was elected.

The warm chinook wind of southern Alberta, Canada, can cause the temperature to rise as much as 80 degrees in a single day.

Sentence suspended after larceny plea

A young Washington C.H. man has waived his right to trial and pleaded guilty to grand larceny before Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman.

Walter D. Aills Jr., 1218 Rawlings St., was sentenced to 1-7 years in the Chillicothe Correctional Institution, but Judge Coffman, then suspended the sentence, placing the youth on probation for three years.

Aills was arrested by the police Sept. 28, shortly after he broke into Knisley Pontiac on Columbus Avenue. A nearby resident had reported seeing someone come from the firm carrying away two automobile tires which were latter recovered from Aills' car.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures

By SYD KRONISH

Dr. David Livingstone, the celebrated explorer and missionary who was responsible for opening huge areas of Africa to civilization, is honored on two new stamps by Botswana.

The stamps commemorate the 100th anniversary of Livingstone's death. Both adhesives are inscribed "Centenary of the Death of Livingstone — 1873-1973."

The 3-cents depicts a profile of Dr. Livingstone, seeming to follow one of his many expeditions on Lake Ngwami. The 20-cents portrays a full-face view of the man, while in the background is pictured the historic meeting of Livingstone and Stanley.

Many books and even a motion picture have delved into the life of Livingstone, his quest for the source of the Nile and his meeting with Henry M. Stanley after being out of touch with the world for three years.

Some observers have claimed that Livingstone was never lost and Stanley's reports of finding him were blown up out of proportion.

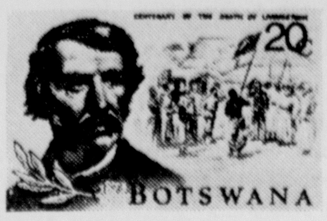

Nevertheless, Dr. Livingstone is known throughout the world and the new stamps from Botswana continue his fame via the hobby of stamp collecting.

SPEAKING of collectors, if you belong to a stamp club and wish to have a beautiful selection of stamp frames for displays or exhibitions, you can do so at no cost.

The World Wide Philatelic Agency is making available displays of such countries as West Germany, France, New Zealand, Indonesia, Republic of China, Tunisia and Israel. Most of the frames measure 3 by 4 feet. All are acetate covered and light enough to be leaned or tied against a pillar.

Requests should be made in writing, well in advance of the date desired, to the World Wide Philatelic Agency, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N. Y. 10001.

AUSTRIA'S new stamp commemorating the centenary of the birth of opera star Leo Slezak will look very familiar to many Americans. The stamp bears a portrait of Slezak who appeared on many stages throughout the world. But the picture will remind those who see it of Slezak's son, Walter, noted actor in American films.

The elder Slezak gained fame not only as a magnificent tenor but also as a writer and a philatelist.

The 4-schilling stamp has a drawing of the actor's mask in the background. The inscription above the portrait is: "Leo Slezak 1873-1973."

IF BUTTERFLIES are free, then the new government of Lesotho is glad to publicize its myriad varieties of the species at no cost. Seven butterflies of Lesotho are featured on a new series of stamps from that country.

The 4-cents shows the Mountain Beauty, 5-cents Christmas Butterfly, 10-cents Painted Lady, 15-cents Yellow Pansy, 20-cents Blue Pansy, 25-cents African Monarch and the 30-cents Orange Tip.

Thus, stamp collectors can become butterfly collectors just for the price of the stamps, which are available at your local dealer.

MANY LAPLANDERS live in Norway where their handicraft is on display and for sale in numerous stores.

Some of these Lappish works are seen on the latest set of stamps from Norway.

The 75-ore shows a segment of a knife carved from reindeer antlers. The 100-ore illustrates a detail from a woven ornamental belt. The 140-ore depicts a detail from the tin embroidery of a woman's handbag.

The musk ox, which once existed in many northern countries, today survives wild only in the Canadian Arctic and Greenland.

Net farm income estimate to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department will issue a new estimate on Friday of 1973 net farm income — and there is evidence it could top the currently estimated $24 billion.

Two developments this week point to a possible boost in the income estimate.

Farm exports, which have an important bearing on producer income, were predicted Tuesday to reach a record high of $19 billion for the fiscal year ending next June 30, up nearly 50 per cent from 1972-73.

The export estimate, although hinted for some weeks earlier, is much higher than many USDA experts believed possible.

Another hint was in a speech by Don Paarlberg, the department's director of economics, who told a crop production conference in Minneapolis Tuesday night that 1973 net farm income will be "in the range of $24 billion to $26 billion."

The department's Outlook and Situation Board will issue Friday a summary of a "Demand and Price situation" report telling the latest official estimate of 1973 net farm income and how various commodity prices are shaping up going into next year.

Paarlberg, in his speech, also indicated some of the department's thinking about 1974 and predicted it would likely be "the third good year in a row, albeit not as good as 1973."

The export situation not only has been a major factor in boosting farm income but has raised prospects of wiping out U.S. trade deficits entirely for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Compared with $19 billion worth of farm products expected for export this year, agricultural imports are esstimated at only $8.9 billion. The difference means a surplus of about $10 billion.

Thus, according to USDA, the $10 billion advantage in farm exports could eliminate entirely any overall U.S. trade deficit this fiscal year. In 1972-73, despite a $5.6 billion farm export advantage over imports, the total U.S. trade deficit — the difference between all exports and imports — was $3.5 billion.

Court gets fraud suit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thirty-one corporations and individuals were accused of scheming to defraud stock holders in a $64 million damage suit filed in federal court Wednesday.

The action is against the Ohio Real Estate Investment Co., the Ohio Real Estate Equities Co., the U. S. Capital Corp., their trustees and related companies.

Among the defendants is Ohio Commerce Director Dennis Shaul. The suit claims he and other Ohio officials had knowledge of the fraud, but failed to take action to stop it.

The class action suit in behalf of the corporations' stockholders alleges conflict of interest in violation of the Federal Securities Exchange Act among some of the corporate officers.

Plaintiffs listed in the suit are Gene E. and Mary E. Devoe of South Vienna, Clark County; Chester W. and Ruby F. Webb of Wilmington, Harry H. McQuigg of Zanesville and Theron Richards of Bay Village.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Concerned citizens and civic-minded groups seeking to better their communities now have a new, valuable reference to consult, a manual which focuses, clearly and sharply, on what they can do and how to go about it.

The book, "Help Your Community . . through Photography," (published by Eastman Kodak, Rochester, N. Y., $5.95), is a 160-page guide illustrated with more than 300 photographs. It discusses selection of suitable camera and film; gives tips on taking effective photos for picture stories, slide and movie presentations; describes special techniques and equipment; shows how to survey community resources and problems photographically, and explains how to use photos for publicity and promotion drives in newsletters, trade journals, annual reports, posters, photo contests and exhibitions.

What can a group do which has little or no money for photography?

Search for volunteer photographers and borrow cameras from the staff, relatives and friends of the group in all the haunts they frequent. Try to find a donor who will contribute a camera or someone who has bought a new camera and who may be persuaded to donate his old one.

Promote fund-raising projects to raise money for equipments. Consult the local Internal Revenue Service for possible tax deductible status for contributions.

WHEN A GROUP plans to buy a camera, it should consider these factors:

Will it be used by one person or by several people over a period of time? Will it require a fast lens for indoor pictures without flash? Are the pictures for publicity and display purposes? Will the camera be used by handicapped people?

Are accessories — wide-angle, telephoto, close-up lenses — available for possible future plans?

Answers to these questions will determine whether the camera can be a simple nonadjustable type, an automatic model or one with manual adjustments and whether it requires a fast lens or takes a film size that will produce good enlargements.

SOME BASIC RULES for taking effective pictures:

Plan the photos for the group's needs by deciding how and when they will be used. Have a committee or the chairman prepare a set of file cards listing each picture planned and what it should show. This procedure saves time and guesswork on the photograper's part.

At the same time he or she must be encouraged to shoot spontaneous pictures that present themselves at the scene and which add human interest or pictorial elements.

When taking pictures, always ask for permission and get a signed release from each recognizable person shown. When possible, a touch of humor adds pleasant relief to programs of serious nature.

Be accurate when dealing with social problems and make sure the photographs do not exaggerate the facts or lead to false conclusions. Inaccuracies may lead to later controversy which can weaken your group's position.

MORE INTERESTING pictures are made by including action, people doing things from an unusual viewpoint or by stressing personal feelings or emotions. Try to use positive, constructive photos which emphasize people's or children's abilities, not their weakness. Move in close to fill the picture frame because close-ups of expressive personalities have great visual appeal. And vary camera angles to present a different or offbeat perspective.

At times, for personal or legal reasons, it's necessary to conceal a person's identity in a picture. The usual way is to create valid activity with the person's back to the camera or with his face obscured by an appropriate prop or machine.

Sometimes, only a part of the subject need be shown — hands, feet, etc. — for storytelling impact. Another approach is to make a silhouette with the subject in meaningful action.

It can add mood or drama to a photograph.

Keep in mind the end result of photography . . . the pictures were taken to be used. A worthy cause and good pictures are wasted if people are not made aware of them, and the cause will not get the public support it deserves. Here are some ways to produce results:.

CHOOSE the best vehicles to show pictures, taken: slide shows, movies, news media, trade publications, newsletters, project record reports or exhibitions.

Some photographs can get extra mileage by a variety of uses: as a snapshots in the project record book, as a slide in a presentation and as a dramatic enlargement in an exhibition.

Edit the pictures severely to show only the best ones. The message becomes stronger and makes more of an impact. If necessary and possible, revise, update and improve the presentation.

Show the pictures to as many people as possible, as often as possible and in as many places as possible . . . until your objective is reached. Educating the public is a slow process which requires patience and persistence.

When the cause is a good one, however, the continuing effort is worthwhile and the community will eventually "get the picture."

HELPING HANDS for an infant's frail feet is an effective human interest picture. It is an example of good public service photography by the United Way of America from "Help Your Community ... through Photography."

Manual tells how to get more tips

VERMILION, Ohio (AP)—A restaurant operator here has written a training manual telling waitresses the history of the word 'tip'' and how to get them.

The booklet is proving popular. Its first 10,000 copies have been sold and a revised edition is being printed.

Ed Solomon, proprietor of McGarvey's restaurants here and in Sandusky, worked up the 71-page textbook over two years with the aid of four of his best waitresses, who shared a total of 50 years of experience.

Pictures and diagrams show proper place settings and waitress serving positions plus a number of French terms used in the food industry and other restaurant jargon.

School systems in Lorain, Willougby, Toledo and Milan have ordered it. A Fremont vocational school is using it.

And Solomon uses it to train newcomers to his staff of 30 waitresses.

Such training pays off, he says: "By training the waitress, you can increase your sales without increasing your overhead.

"Some restaurant owners spend millions of dollars to build their operations and then won't spend 10 cents to train their waitresses," he adds.

Salt water has leached from the soil into the Salton Sea and inadequate outlets make the "sea" waters more briny than the ocean.

The oldest surviving working clock in the world, at Salisbury Cathedral in England, was made in 1386.

Village blacksmith among honored guests

LONDON (AP) — Village blacksmith Bert Tidmarsh will be in Westminster Abbey next week to watch the wedding of Princess Anne.

But foreign ambassadors, like Walter H. Annenberg of the United States, will have to find out about the ceremony secondhand as far as is known.

The guest list of 1,500 for the Nov. 14 marriage of Queen Elizabeth's only daughter to Capt. Mark Phillips has provoked some dismay among the diplomatic corps, according to sources at foreign embassies.

Only Commonwealth countries — former British possessions — have been invited to send their official representatives. Even they were not on the original list, some sources say.

Many on the list live in the tiny Wiltshire villages around Great Somerford, Phillips' home town in western England. Among them is Tidmarsh, 61, who shoes horses for the Phillips family.

He and his wife get Abbey places. So do saddler David Barnes and his wife. They made the official guest list at the expense of some of the most distinguished members of the London diplomatic corps, since the decision was taken not to invite any official foreign representatives.

Buckingham Palace said the intention is to try to make the wedding an occasion for family and friends. A spokeswoman at the palace said she did not know if any Americans have been invited since the list did not disclose the nationality of guests.

"If there are any Americans, it will be because they are personal friends of the bride or groom," she added.

Perfect season, SCOL title loom for top-ranked Lions

By MIKE FLYNN

It appears nothing short of an upset will prevent Washington C.H.'s Blue Lions from becoming one of the finest football teams in the school's history.

The unbeaten Blue Lions, nearing mythical Class AA championships in both the Associated Press and United Press International high school football polls, are on the threshold of being the winningest football team ever in Washington C.H.

WASHINGTON C.H. discarded a perennial South Central Ohio League bridesmaid label and is scenting gold for the first time in five years after clinching the 46th league championship with a win over Miami Trace in the annual backyard brawl last Friday.

Head coach Maurice Pfeifer's ninth Blue Lion version can add some new pages to the SCOL and school record books when a revived Hillsboro team comes calling at 8 p.m. Friday for the season finale at Gardner Park Stadium.

The game with Hillsboro is just a formality since the Lions locked up their first SCOL football title since 1968 last Friday night. But, several lofty milestones loom for Washington C.H. in Friday's game.

A perfect season and a coveted gold football, symbolic of an undefeated SCOL campaign, are at the top of Washington C.H.'s blueprints for the appointment with Hillsboro. The Lions, 9-0 on the season, can eclipse a 21-year-old performance turned by the 1952 Washington C.H. team by finishing unbeaten and join that legendary Blue Lion team and the 1971 Miami Trace squad as the only undefeated squads in Fayette history.

The Lions will also be hoping to match a 44-year-old school record for shutouts during one season established by the 1919 Washington C.H. team. The stubborn Lion defenders, who have permitted nine opponents a mere 19 points, have fired a total of seven shutouts and are only one away from matching the school record. A new pass interception record is also within reach since the Lions' defensive secondary has plucked off 17 enemy passes.

Twenty-one seniors, perhaps the finest crop ever produced at Washington C.H., will complete their prep football careers in Friday's home show. Donning the blue and white uniforms for the final time will be Chuck Wilson, Mark Johnson, Garth Cox, John Sanderson, Alan Coppock, Duke Willis, Steve Mosley, Chuck Oesterle, Bill Shaw, Kevin Terry, Larry Howell, David Butterfield, Paul Woods, Jeff Willis, Eric Shaffer, Greg McCune, David Rittenhouse, Jeff Tuvell, Dan McDaniels, David Payton and manager David Bryan.

The crop of seniors has spearheaded Washington C.H. to its glittering campaign as Wilson is the SCOL's top pointmaker with 160 points and leading ground gainer with 1,335 yards. Coppock is one of the top passers with a 58.3 per cent completion record and Johnson rates as one of the league's best receivers.

And, let's not forget that the persistent Lion defense is built around a nucleus of those seniors.

Rapidly-improved Hillsboro, coached by Miami Trace product Mike Doyle, has won two of its last three games and will bring a 2-7 all-games record into Friday's encounter.

THE YOUNG Indians stand 2-3 inside this year's SCOL sweepstakes after beating both Highland County rival Greenfield and Madison Plains.

Dave Hastings, a 5-foot-8, 165-pound senior fullback who Doyle says he wouldn't trade for any other running back in the league, is the hub of Hillsboro's offensive punch. Hastings is one of the SCOL's leading scorers along with tight end Roger Jewett, a 6-foot-1, 170-pound junior, who is the favorite target of sophomore quarterback Don Marsh. Pfeifer rates Marsh, a 6-foot-2, 175-pounder, as one of the best young quarterbacks in the league. Speedy Ken Captain, a 5-4, 154-pound sophomore, is the Hillsboro tailback, and Roger Zimmerman, the Indians' monster on defense, is the substitute fullback.

Pfeifer says the Lions will be forced to stop the Indians' inside running game featuring Hastings and the outside threat that Captain provides. The Indians also feature the passing attack and in one game attempted 34 passes.

Lions stretch bulge in UPI

COLUMBUS — Washington C.H.'s unbeaten Blue Lions have stretched their lead in the United Press International's Class AA high school football poll.

The Lions hold a 38-point lead over Cincinnati Reading in this week's poll. Reading is followed by Oberlin Firelands, Minerva, Ironton, Columbus Watterson, Dayton Jefferson, Lima Bath, Akron St. Vincent-St. Mary and Cleveland Benedictine.

Several milestones loom for Lion ace

Defense has been the trademark of the 1973 Washington C.H. Blue Lions football team and all the headlines concerning those merciless defenders sometimes overshadows the team's offensive accomplishments.

The sparkplug of Washington C.H.'s often unheralded offense is senior tailback Chuck Wilson, who has emerged as a bonafide All-Ohio prospect.

Wilson, a 6-foot-0, 181-pounder, is destined for a record-shattering season when the top-ranked Blue Lions entertain a revived Hillsboro team in the season finale Friday night at Gardner Park Stadium.

A second straight 1,000-plus rushing yardage season looms for the hard-running Washington C.H. tailback in Friday's 8 p.m. South Central Ohio League contest. Wilson enjoyed his finest rushing effort of the season with a 235-yard performance in Washington C.H.'s 36-12 win over rival Miami Trace last Friday.

THE SPLENDID performance against Miami Trace paved the way for Wilson. He needs only 117 yards against Hillsboro to match his record-setting performance of a year ago when he tied with Miami Trace ace Tony Grooms for the SCOL rushing lead of 1,452 yards.

Wilson gained the 1,452 yards on 279 carries a year ago. After nine games this season the Lion whiz has stacked up 1,335 yards on just 207 totes and that's an average of 6.4 yards per carry.

Besides the nifty rushing figures, Wilson has already eclipsed his scoring performance of last year when he was the SCOL's top pointmaker. Wilson has piled up 160 points on the basis of 25 touchdowns and five extra point conversions which is 38 more points than he scored last season.

However, Wilson hasn't been the only offense mainspring. Steady senior Alan Coppock has engineered the Lions from his quarterback spot and has completed 58.3 per cent of 67 pass attempts and heaved seven touchdown strikes.

Velvety running back Mark Johnson, the Lions' team captain, has been Coppock's favorite target by grabbing 15 passes for 292 yards. Johnson has also rushed another 250 yards. Plowing fullback Larry Dumford, a junior, has lugged the pigskin 43 times for 280 yards, and junior quarterback Jeff Brown has 202 yards to his credit.

Mike Wagner leads in NFL interceptions

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Wagner loves being in the right place at the right time — mainly when the ball is coming toward him.

The Pittsburgh Steelers' safety had six interceptions for the entire 1972 National Football league season. It galled him a little bit that Jack Ham, a linebacker on the Steelers, had seven.

Wagner is making up for that in a hurry. He's already got six interceptions this season, tops in the league according to NFL statistics released today. And Ham is nowhere to be seen on the thievery list.

Bump, run defenses under fire

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Coach Paul Brown of the Cincinnati Bengals said Wednesday that National Football League receivers are being faced with virtual "fist fights" to get downfield and predicted the bump-and-run defenses will get a long post-season look by rulemakers.

"It's getting to be almost like a fist fight to fight your way downfield," said Brown.

"If you can't get men downfield you're losing one of the trademarks of pro football. What the zone defenses don't do, the bump-and-run makes up for," he said.

Brown called for special drills Wednesday to emphasize to his receivers what must be done to combat the problem posed by defensive backs who are attacking would-be passing targets once the ball is hiked.

"Everybody's got a little different idea of what must be done, and I think you'll see something done before next year," Brown said.

Statistics bear out the decline in completions to primary receivers. The top three receivers in the American Football Conference are running backs, often used as last resorts when downfield targets are covered.

The Bengals suffered a jolt at practice Wednesday when defensive standouts Mike Reid and Tommy Casanova suffered injuries.

Reid apparently reaggravated a nagging back injury while working in the weightroom. Casanova pulled a hamstring.

The extent of their injuries wasn't to be determined until today.

WCH Players of Week

Pfeifer lauds Lion offensive linemen

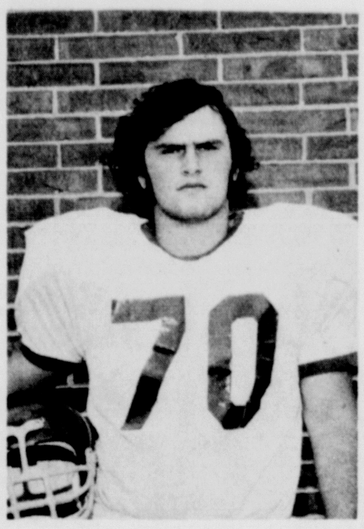

Washington C.H. head coach Maurice Pfeifer was very unselfish this week in selecting the Blue Lion Players of the Week.

Pfeifer, the ninth-year boss who has shepherded the Blue Lions to a spotless 9-0 record, lauded those unsung heroes who fight the battles in the trenches, the offensive line.

The Blue Lion coaching staff singled out senior Garth Cox as the top defensive player for his performance against Miami Trace last Friday night, but Pfeifer bestowed praise upon those steady linemen for the Record-Herald's ninth weekly feature.

Cox, 6-foot-5, 226-pound defensive tackle, figured in on 11 stops in the Lions' 36-12 win and received the team's top defensive efficiency rating.

The Lion offensive line was responsible for opening gaping holes which sprung tailback Chuck Wilson loose for 235 yards in the win over Miami Trace.

World Championship golf tilt minus top players

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Arnold Palmer's here. And Gary Player. And Bruce Crampton and Masters champ Tommy Aaron and the Young Lions Lanny Wadkins and Ben Crenshaw and tough old Sam Snead.

National champions from some 20 countries around the globe are on hand to make a run at one-half million dollars in prize money, the richest golf tournament the world has ever known.

But the brand-new World Open, which offers $100,000 to the winner of the two-week tournament that began its inaugural run today, is in a slightly embarassing position.

The winner will be billed as the World Champion.

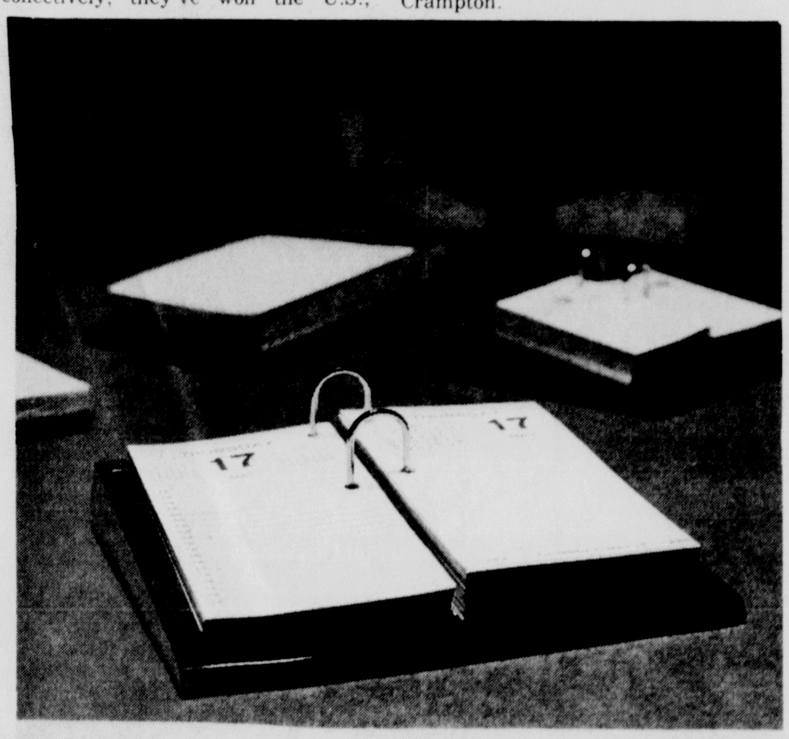

But he'll get that title without the necessity of defeating perhaps the three top players alive today — Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Lee Trevino. U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller also is on the sidelines, suffering from influenza.

The absence of those four — collectively, they've won the U.S., British and Canadian Opens, the PGA, 12 other titles and more than $1 million in prize money this year — has taken some of the gloss and glitter off the event that admittedly is looking for a place alongside the game's Big Four championships. It's sort of like having a Super Bowl in which the American Football Conference champion doesn't appear. Or a World Series without a National League representative.

Even with the absence of some of the game's top players and the lack of national television coverage — Hughes Sports Network cancelled out some time ago — the tournament has drawn an extremely impressive field.

Among the top Americans are such veterans as Palmer, Billy Casper and Gene Littler, youthful standouts Lanny Wadkins and Ben Crenshaw and the incredible Snead, still dangerous at the age of 61.

The foreign threat is very strong and it's among the nonAmericans that the likely favorite rests. That role probably would go to either Player or the sturdy Crampton.

Blue Lions 14th in computer ratings

COLUMBUS — Washington C.H.'s Blue Lions advanced three notches in this week's Ohio High School Athletic Association computer football ratings.

The unbeaten Lions, ranked 17th last week, moved into 14th place in the ratings with 205.88 points. Cincinnati Reading is the Region No. 8 leader with 400.52 points.

Massillon and Steubenville, two long-time feared names in Ohio high school football, joined the computerized regional leaders this week.

Each regional pacesetter automatically qualifies for the state playoffs beginning with the semifinals Friday night, Nov. 16. The state finals are the following Friday.

Massillon, with eight victories and a tie in nine games, took over the lead in Class AAA Region 3 with 533.47 points to 481.10 points for runnerup Cuyahoga Falls Walsh.

Akron Garfield, the Region 3 frontrunner last fall, lost to Akron Ellet and tumbled to third place.

Steubenville Catholic, 7-2 against a schedule that includes a lot of Class AAA competition, surged in front in Class AA Region 7. The Steubenville team has 360.81 points to 346.41 for No. 2 Ironton, the leader a week ago.

Otherwise, the leaders remained the same with one game left for most Ohio teams. The final computer ratings and the state semifinalists will be announced Sunday.

The other Class AAA leaders are Warren Western Reserve, Bowling Green and Cincinnati Moeller and the Class AA pacesetters are Cleveland Benedictine, Lima Catholic and Cincinnati Reading.

In Class A, No. 1 in each region are McDonald, Montpelier, Newark Catholic and Middletown Fenwick.

Bucks top Lakers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Meet the Los Angeles Lakers' "New Faces of 1973."

"We're having trouble because we're reconstructing our team," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman after his club suffered a 109-92 National Basketball Association loss to the Milwaukee Bucks Wednesday night.

Among the new faces this year are center Elmore Smith and forward Connie Hawkins. This new guard has replaced the old guard that included Wilt Chamberlain, Jim McMillian and Keith Erickson.

"You can't replace people like Wilt, McMillian and Erickson and be a winner again overnight," said Sharman, whose team was in the NBA final playoffs last season. "We're in a learning process. I don't think there has been a championship team in this league that hasn't played together for several years."

In the other NBA games Wednesday night, it was Philadelphia 122, Phoenix 115; Capital 111, Houston 97 and Seattle 130, Buffalo 113.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 14 of his 22 points in the first quarter to help the Bucks beat the Lakers for their 10th straight victory.

76ers 122, Suns 115

Fred Carter, Tom Van Arsdale and Steve Mix provided the offensive spark as Philadelphia turned back Phoenix 122-115. Carter topped the winners with 32 points while Van Arsdale had 29 and Mix 20.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Germs, Not Diet, Cause Boils

Painful boils crop out on the back of my neck. I know by my weight that I eat more than I should. Therefore the suggestion of my girl friend that this might be a vitamin deficiency confuses me.

Do you think this could be a factor?

Mr. H.R.R., Ind.

Dear Mr. R.:

Boils and carbuncles at the back of the neck are always caused by bacteria that invade a break in the skin.

The most frequent germ responsible for these infections that begin in the hair follicle is the staphylococcus aureus.

Skin bruised by tight collars and by marked sweating is a good candidate for small breaks in the skin where these germs can set up housekeeping.

Once this happens, they flourish and small, painful abscesses occur singly, or in crops.

Diet itself is not responsible for infection. Germs are. There are many food faddists who insist the foods, and only foods, are the cause of many illnesses.

Undoubtedly, diet plays an important role in the health, but it is not the total answer to all of man's ills.

I want to add incidentally that massive caloric intake may still represent a diet with inadequate vitamins. It would be worthwhile to find out if your diet contains good nutritional balance along with adequate minerals and vitamins.

Scrupulous cleanliness of the skin, followed by a fine powder, may prevent the skin from being bruised and and make it less vulnerable to infection and boils.

Do identical twins have all the same skin characteristics?

Miss J.D., Okla.

Dear Miss D.:

No two people, not even identical twins, have the same palm and fingerprints.

Skin patterns and ridges are unique with each person, and therefore these are used scientifically to differentiate one person from another.

When albumin is found in the urine does it indicate severe trouble?

Mr. P.B.N., Ky.

Dear Mr. N.:

Albumin is not normally found in the urine. Occasionally, because of diet or fatigue, a trace of albumin may be present in a single specimen.

When the test is repeated, the albumin may be absent.

Such an occasional finding is unimportant. When, however, albumin is found regularly the cause must be traced, since its presence may indicate some abnormality in the blood or the kidneys.

Plane crash fatal to 2

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Two men were killed Wednesday when a private plane developed engine trouble during a test flight and crashed while attempting to return to Port Columbus International Airport.

The single-engine craft crashed about 2,000 feet short of a runway after clipping some tree tops and losing both wings, officials said.

The dead were identified as Bruce Taylor Jr., 61, of suburban Groveport, the pilot and owner of the plane, and Roger Patke of Columbus, a mechanic for Dublin Aviation Corp.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said the men had taken the plane out for a test flight and it developed engine trouble shortly after takeoff.

As they attempted to return to the airport, the plane apparently lost power and hit the trees. Both wings were knocked off and the plane was spun completely around. It crashed into the southwest bank of Big Walnut Creek and exploded into flames.

Urge development of U.S. oil shale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Establishment of a government-public corporation to help accelerate development of the nation's oil shale resources was proposed Wednesday by Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, in a House speech.

Vanik said such a corporation, publicly owned but government initiated, could compete also with private industry and thus ensure reasonable consumer oil prices.

Property damage crashes reported

A child drawing his mother's attention away from the road was the cause of an accident at 7:52 p.m., Wednesday for Peggy S. Harter, 28, Rt. 3, the Sheriff's Department said.

The Harter vehicle was traveling north on Mt. Olive Road, two miles west of Washington C.H., when the mishap, which sent the vehicle off the road and into a tree, occurred.

The car was moderately damaged, but there were no injuries, officers reported.

A two-car accident occurred at 9:30 a.m., Wednesday, at the intersection of the CCC-Highway-W and Ohio Rt. 753.

A car driven by Kay L. Black, 28, of New Holland, was struck by a vehicle driven by Norman E. Harper, 47, of 506 E. Paint St. in the intersection, according to the Sheriff's Department.

After the initial collision, the Black auto skidded into a road sign and was damaged severely. The Harper auto was damaged slightly.

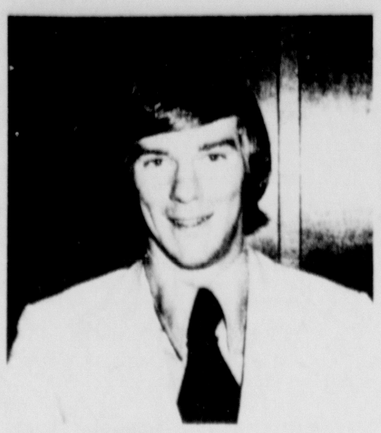

There were no injuries and Harper was charged by sheriff's deputies with failure to yield right of way.

The motion was one of two filed here Wednesday, two days before Boyle's scheduled hearing in Washington, D.C., to bring him here to face charges in connection with the murder of UMW insurgent Joseph Yablonski.

Harry Gondelman, Boyle's local attorney, also filed a disclosure motion seeking whatever evidence the government may have against Boyle.

The Sheriff's Department has apprehended two youths who allegedly stole gasoline from Carter Flo-Lizer, Inc., Ohio Rt. 753-SE, the night of Oct. 25.

A company employe had given the license number of the car used by the thieves to a sheriff's deputy and investigation led to the arrest of two Lucasville youths, ages 16 and 17, who have been charged with petty larceny.

A two-way radio and a cutting torch were stolen from a garage at the Lawrence Mickle home, Rt. 3, sometime between late Tuesday night and early Wednesday morning.

New bumper law to be enforced

Lt. R.E. Kline, Wilmington Post commander of the Ohio Highway Patrol announced Thursday that enforcement of a new motor vehicle bumper height law will begin immediately.

The new law prohibits driving a motor vehicle without bumpers when they were originally standard equipment on the vehicle, and modifying a motor vehicle's body or suspension system so that the height of any bumper on the vehicle varies more than three inches from the original manufactured bumper height.

"It is our hope that compliance to this new law will decrease the level of damage and injury caused by missing or mismatched bumpers in front and rear end collisions," Lt. Kline said.

Rationing on horizon?

Nixon asks energy powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has asked Congress to give him emergency power to ration gasoline and oil, cut working hours, reduce highway speed limits, put the nation on year-round Daylight Saving Time and suspend antipollution programs.

Congressional spokesmen predicted Nixon would get the powers quickly. The President said Wednesday he wants them by mid-December.

In a nationwide broadcast outlining his energy proposals, Nixon set 1980 as a target date for the United States to achieve energy self-sufficiency. He called for research and development programs rivaling the all-out efforts that developed the atomic bomb and put American astronauts on the moon.

The President also departed from his text to say he had "no intention of walking away" from his office despite some demands that he resign.

With petroleum heading for 10 to 17 per cent shortages because of Arab oil cutoffs, Nixon warned that the nation faces "the most acute shortages of energy since World War II."

Consumers of home heating oil must get through the winter with only 85 per cent of the fuel they used last year, Nixon said.

Airline flights will be reduced 10 per cent through federal allocation of jet fuel, Nixon added.

He said a "contingency plan" for gasoline rationing was in preparation, but energy adviser John A. Love and an official fact sheet both said plans were being readied for the rationing of gasoline and heating oil.

Love said a decision on rationing must be made by December or January.

Gov. Robert B. Docking of Kansas, briefed with other governors by the President, said, "I wouldn't be surprised to see rationing after the first of the year."

Nixon said power plants now burning coal will be barred from switching to shortage-stricken oil or gas. Love said this regulation will be issued in about 10 days.

Nixon also asked for legislation allowing him to order power plants to switch from petroleum back to coal if they can do it.

Home heating oil, jet fuel, diesel fuel, kerosene and propane gas already are under mandatory federal allocation controlling their distribution at the wholesale level.

Love said mandatory allocation would be extended soon to all petroleum products under existing presidential authority.

Nixon's actions and requests for new authority were brought on during recent weeks by the Middle East war and the Arab nations' decision to cut off oil to friends of Israel.

Explaining the urgency of the administration's requests, Gov. Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, one of those briefed by the President, said: "I think the people of this country don't want to be blackmailed and don't want to be dependent on Arab oil."

Nixon ordered immediate steps already within his power, urged legislation to grant new powers, and proposed what he called "Project Independence" to get the United States moving under its own power by 1980.

The immediate steps taken by Nixon were:

See speedy action on energy bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional leaders have promised prompt action on most or all of the energy-saving measures requested by President Nixon in his address to the nation.

Senate Interior Chairman Henry M. Jackson said his committee would hold public hearings on emergency legislation today and would report a bill out by Friday. Senate approval could be expected next week, Jackson said.

On the House side, Democratic whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., predicted action on the President's proposals before the December recess. "If he wants a bill, we'll give him a bill," said Rep. Torbert H. Macdonald, D-Mass., chairman of the House subcommittee on power.

In his Wednesday night address, Nixon accused Congress of failing to act on any of the energy measures he had sent to the Hill. The President said it was now "imperative" that Congress pass legislation establishing year-round Daylight Saving Time, authorizing relaxation of clean-air standards, the tapping of naval petroleum reserves and giving the government power to reduce speed limits nationwide and restrict working hours.

Macdonald said Nixon already had the authority to do most of what he asked and accused the President of playing "an absolute shell game" in blaming Congress for inaction.

Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen, D-Tex., said he and other oil-state senators oppose one presidential proposal that would allow the federal government to regulate the intrastate production and use of oil and gas.

Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, said the President's message "did not contain enough specifics in dollars or programs to do the job. The $10 billion mentioned by the President is considerably less than we spent on Apollo and probably only 10 per cent of what is actually needed," he added.

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce said Nixon "has made a good — although belated — beginning in facing up to the energy shortage," and the National Association of Manufacturers said it "supports the general thrust" of the President's message.

Carl E. Bagge, president of the National Coal Association, said the coal industry would do its best to produce the additional coal needed for the President's proposed shift from oil and gas. But he added that it would require some commitment that mines would not be forced to shut down once the immediate crisis is over.

Frank N. Ikard, president of the American Petroleum Institute, offered "strong endorsement" of the President's proposals and added that one additional step not mentioned by Nixon would be to authorize the resumption of offshore drilling in California's Santa Barbara Channel, where production was suspended after a 1969 oil spill.

Manhunt under way in slaying of 9

VICTOR, Calif. (AP) — Authorities say the nine persons slain in a luxury ranch home near here were executed in "professional style." They want to question two men being sought on an Arizona murder warrant.

The victims, including two children, were all shot in the head and left in a bedroom and closet of a new $60,000 home surrounded by vineyards in the San Joaquin Valley 80 miles east of San Francisco. The seven adults had been bound and gagged.

San Joaquin County Sheriff Michael N. Canlis said the bodies of the adult victims were found Wednesday in a semicircle in a blood-splattered closet. He said powder burns indicate the killer or killers pressed high-powered weapons against the heads of some of the victims and pulled the trigger. The bodies of the two children were found in a bedroom.

San Joaquin County Sheriff's Lt. Donald Morrow said two men who are sought on a two-count murder warrant by Phoenix, Ariz., authorities are also wanted for questioning in the Victor case.

Morrow said the crimes are similar, and that one of the two men, Willie Luther Steelman, 28, lived in Lodi, about four miles from where the nine bodies were discovered in the home of the Walter Parkin family.

However, Morrow said, "We have no evidence at this time to show that they have been here." The other man sought on the Arizona warrant is Douglas Gretzler, 22, of New York City.

The victims were identified as Parkin, 33, who owned a food market two miles away; his wife, Joanne, 31; their children, Lisa, 11, and Bobby, 9; Richard A. Earl, a neighbor and accountant; Earl's wife, Wanda; their son, Ricky, 15; their daughter, Debbie, 18; and Mark Lang, 20, who was identified as Debbie's boyfriend.

Canlis said an undetermined amount of cash is missing from a floor safe in Parkin's market, and that there may be a connection between the slayings and the theft. He said there is no evidence that force was used to open the market safe.

Carol Jenkins, 18, a roomer in the Parkin home, discovered the slayings. Canlis said she told deputies that she came home after a date at about 3 a.m. Wednesday and went directly to bed, suspecting nothing.

But he said she was awakened at 6 a.m. by two friends of Lang, who were knocking on the door because he had not come home the night before and his car was parked in front of the Parkin house.

Then she discovered the bodies of the two children on a bed in the master bedroom, and called authorities. Canlis said investigators found the other bodies.

Gilligan orders conservation in state agencies

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan ordered today all state agencies to turn down their lights and their thermostats to save as much energy as possible.

And, in another gesture he said was designed to comply with President Nixon's call to conserve energy, Gilligan said he would allow the lease on his gas-eating limousine to expire.

The governor met with reporters after a special cabinet meeting, during which he outlined steps state government can take to cut down fuel use.

Among the steps ordered by the governor were:

—Reduction of lighting in state buildings at night to the lowest possible levels commensurate with safety and security requirements.

—Elimination of unnecessary daytime lighting at state buildings. He estimated most large buildings are overlighted by 15 per cent.

—Reduction of temperatures in state buildings to 68 degrees during the day, 65 degrees at night and 60 degrees on weekends.

War power bill veto overridden

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress has enacted over President Nixon's veto a bill limiting the power of the president to wage undeclared war.

The action Wednesday was the first successful override of a presidential veto in nine tries this year.

Termed unconstitutional by President Nixon, the bill bars the president from committing U.S. troops to combat for more than 60 days without specific approval from Congress. Congress can terminate such an engagement sooner by majority vote in the House and Senate.

Backers of the war powers measure, first introduced three years ago, attributed the vote to overwhelming public support in the wake of the Vietnam war.

The House voted 284 to 135 to override, four more than the two-thirds needed.

The Senate completed the action by 75 to 18, or 13 more than required.

In the House, 86 Republicans voted to override and 103 were against. Among Democrats, 198 were for and 32 against overriding.

In the Senate, 25 Republicans voted against the President's position and 15 supported it. Fifty Democrats voted for overriding and three against.

After the vote, Nixon said the bill "seriously undermines this nation's ability to act decisively and convincingly in times of international crisis."

Sen. John Tower, R-Tex., said that to involve Congress, with its cumbersome procedures, in war-making decisions would cause "rejoicing in the streets of Moscow."

Tower expressed hope that the constitutionality of the bill will be challenged in court "at the earliest possible opportunity."

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., leader of Senate backers of the bill, denied that the bill changed the constitutional powers of either the president or the Congress, but simply provided "a methodology" by which the president and Congress can concur in war-making decisions.

Javits said recent events involving the President may have been a factor in the override, but Sen. Charles H. Percy, RIll., said there should be no interpretation that any vote in the House or Senate was influenced by Watergate-related incidents.

The congressional action, Percy said, reflected "a feeling deeply felt by the American people that there should be no further undeclared wars without the concurrence of Congress."

Rep. Gerald R. Ford, R-Mich., House Republican leader and vice president-designate, urged the House not to turn against the President at a time of diplomatic effort to attain a Middle East peace.

Booster repaired

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space agency technicians begin replacing eight defective stabilizing fins on the Skylab 3 rocket today, hoping to avoid an additional launch delay.

Discovery of hairline cracks in the fins forced officials Wednesday to postpone the launching of the three astronauts by five days, from Saturday until next Thursday. Officials said the cracks most likely were caused by salt air corrosion.

The technicians planned to work around the clock in hopes of completing the job in time to start the final countdown on the Saturn 1B rocket Monday.

But Skylab program director William C. Schneider said, "We want to get well into the changeout before we make a definite decision. It's a reasonable bet we'll launch on the 15th, but it's certainly not a sure thing."

The Saturn 1B rocket is to loft astronauts Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson toward a rendezvous with the Skylab space station, now orbiting unmanned 270 miles high.

Jaworski free to sue President

WASHINGTON (AP) — Newly appointed Watergate special prosecutor Leon Jaworski said today he had been given assurances by the White House that he had the right to "sue the President," if necessary, in conducting his investigation.

Jaworski told a House Judiciary subcommittee the assurances were given to him by Alexander Haig, President Nixon's chief of staff, before he agreed to accept the assignment to replace Archibald Cox as special prosecutor.

"I wanted assurances beyond those that had been received by Cox," Jaworski said.

He said Haig used the words "sue the President" as an example of the complete independence Jaworski would have.

"Haig discussed the matter with the President and then told me I had that absolute assurance," Jaworski said.

Jaworski was questioned about his belief that he had absolute independence to carry out the investigation in view of Nixon's press conference statement on Oct. 26 that he would not provide presidential documents to a special prosecutor.

Nixon determined not to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, responding to mounting calls for his resignation, vows he has "no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do."

Nixon voiced his determination to hold onto his office in "a personal note" at the end of a television-radio address to the nation Wednesday night on energy problems. Speaking without notes, he said:

"... I would like to give my answer to those who have suggested that I resign.

"I have no intention whatever of walking away from the job I was elected to do. As long as I am physically able, I am going to continue to work 16 to 18 hours a day for the cause of a real peace abroad, and for the cause of prosperity without inflation and war at home."

While talk of possible resignation or impeachment has mounted sharply in recent days, Nixon seemed to place no great urgency on finding a way out of his current predicament, speaking of it as a long-range operation.

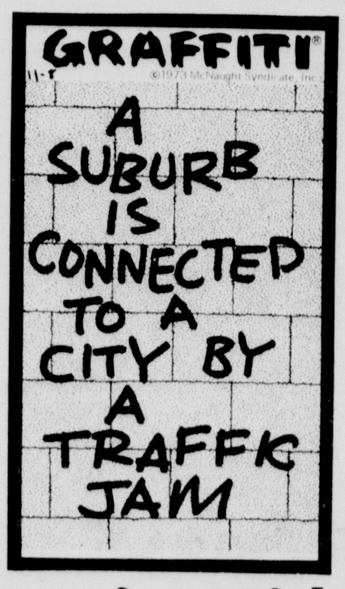

"I am confident that in the months ahead," he said, "the American people will come to realize that I have not violated the trust that they placed in me when they elected me as President of the United States in the past, and I pledge to you tonight that I shall always do everything that I can to be worthy of that trust in the future."

Since the leadership crisis exploded, presidential aides also have talked in terms of weeks and months, rather than days, in discussing Nixon's plans to rebut his critics.

Speaking of Watergate and related matters, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said earlier Wednesday:

"We are giving consideration to a number of steps that the President will be taking here in the coming weeks and months to clarify this matter and to put it into perspective."

The White House announced Wednesday the hiring of an additional legal consultant, Miami attorney Samuel Powers Jr., to help handle Watergate-related questions. Ziegler said there will be a further expansion of Nixon's legal team because "you cannot deal with over a hundred lawyers with five." The spokesman said the objective is to meet promptly and "in an orderly and effective way" the requirements of various investigative units including the Watergate special prosecutor's office, federal grand juries and the Senate Watergate committee.

U.S. and European allies seek to patch up quarrels

BRUSSELS (AP) — The United States and its main European allies, at odds over the Middle East, are struggling to preserve the North Atlantic alliance to serve its basic purpose — joint defense against any Soviet threat.

Both U.S. and European diplomats are keen to keep the North Atlantic Treaty Organization alive. They point with satisfaction to its success in keeping them together at current conferences with the Soviet bloc on security, cooperation and reduction of forces.

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger is sending a deputy to receive his Nobel Peace Prize on Dec. 10 while he attends his first meeting of NATO foreign ministers in Brussels. A major topic will be a new statement on relations among the allies, a less pretentious version of the New Atlantic Charter Kissinger proposed last April.

The North Atlantic Council, made up of the allies' permanent representatives at NATO headquarters, has been meeting regularly to put the statement together. One diplomat at NATO headquarters, beset by recriminations among the allies on Middle East policy, suggested, "Events of the last few weeks certainly indicate that redefining the alliance might be a good idea."

The October Arab-Israeli war has underlined one thing: It is hard to get the alliance to operate beyond its original aim of defense against the Soviets and impossible to do so on short notice in a situation where the allies see their interests differently.

The European allies, especially France and Britain, argued that the United States does not depend on the Arabs for its oil but they do. So the United States could afford to support Israel, but they couldn't.

That is why only Portugal — and, in the beginning, West Germany — gave the United States any help in sending arms to Israel. Then the West Germans also refused after the United States embarrassed them by bringing an Israeli ship into Bremerhaven to load arms.

Weather

Indicate compromise near in Middle East

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger ended his mission to Egypt today and a top aide completed talks with Israeli leaders amid indications that a compromise had been reached on the Middle East crisis.

Kissinger flew to Jordan and Saudi Arabia after spending a day in talks with President Anwar Sadat in Cairo. Kissinger's assistant in charge of Middle East affairs, Joseph J. Sisco, emerged from talks with Premier Golda Meir in Jerusalem and told newsmen: "I feel optimistic." He had gone to Israel unexpectedly from the Cairo sessions Wednesday, apparently bringing with him details of the Kissinger-Sadat meetings.

One Israeli source close to Mrs. Meir said while Sisco was meeting with the Israeli leaders: "The talks are not going badly for Israel."

Earlier, another authoritative Israeli source indicated that Israel had accepted a compromise proposal worked out between Kissinger and the Egyptians.

The source gave no details, but the plan appeared to focus on how to continue supplying food and water to the Egyptian 3rd Army, encircled by the Israelis in the Sinai Desert.

In the background of these reported movements toward peace, however, were charges Wednesday from Israel that Egypt was preparing a new attack along the Suez Canal. The Egyptians said the situation on the canal front was "tense and explosive" and that their army was in position to crush the Israelis.

Kissinger's peace-seeking tour continued with a quick visit to King Hussein of Jordan in Amman and then a trip to Saudi Arabia, the big oil producer in the Middle East, for conferences with King Faisal in Riyadh.

Sisco met in Israel not only with Mrs. Meir but also with Deputy Premier Yigal Allon and Defense Minister Moshe Dayan. An Israeli communique said the discussions took place "in a good and constructive atmosphere."

There were indications that Sisco's mission was chiefly concerned with arrangements to prevent a resumption of fighting along the canal, rather than peace negotiations.

State Department spokesman Robert J. McCloskey said Kissinger and his aides in their talks Wednesday with the Egyptians "focused a good deal of attention on the immediate situation on the ground.... The form of eventual negotiations has not been settled." And when asked if the Americans were optimistic that the tension along the Suez front would be reduced, he replied, "We will perhaps know better after we have conversations with Israel."

McCloskey gave no indication of what was being proposed, but he denied that Sisco had been sent to pressure the Israelis.

Deaths, Funerals

Arden E. Bock

Arden E. Bock, 73, near Jeffersonville, died at 11 p.m. Wednesday in the Madison Elms Nursing Home, London, where he had been a patient for the last three years.

He was born in Vinton County but had spent most of this life in Fayette County. He was a retired farmer.

Rebozo sues newspaper

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — C.G. "Bebe" Rebozo, a close friend of President Nixon, has filed a $10 million libel suit against the Washington Post.

Attorneys for Rebozo filed the suit in federal court Wednesday, charging the Post libeled the Key Biscayne banker in an Oct. 25 article that claimed Rebozo cashed $91,500 in stolen stocks in 1968 after being told they were stolen.

Rebozo's suit charges the story was false and malicious.

The Post article was based on the sworn statements of an insurance investigator that are contained in a Miami court file.

George H. Riley Jr., the investigator, testified under oath that he told Rebozo on Oct. 22, 1968, that 900 shares of IBM stock accepted as collateral for a loan by Rebozo's bank were stolen.

The Post said that more than a week after Riley's visit to Rebozo, 300 of the IBM shares were sold for $91,574.

Rebozo's suit charges that Riley could not have told him on Oct. 22, 1968, that the stocks were stolen.

He said that E.F. Hutton and Co., the brokerage firm from which the stocks were stolen, and the Fidelity and Casualty Co. of New York, Hutton's insurer, did not have such information until Dec. 5.

Watergate panel hears fund raiser

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon's chief campaign fund raiser among the Spanish speaking is coming before the Senate Watergate committee to give his version of a charge he offered federal favoritism for a $100,000 campaign contribution.

The new allegations came before the Senate Watergate committee Wednesday. The committee is probing the financing of last year's presidential campaigns and took testimony from Florida home builder John J. Priestes.

The committee scheduled an appearance for today of Benjamin Fernandez, the man named by Priestes.

Wednesday night, in a televised address to the nation, the President said neither the continuing political crisis nor demands for his resignation will drive him from office.

Following the President's speech, however, Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., predicted that Nixon will be forced to resign because "of the pressure from the press primarily ... and also from the public and Congress." Mills said he believed the President was sincere in saying he would not resign, but predicted that Nixon will do so "within a short period of time."

In a separate development, it was reported that Larry E. Williams, a former fund raiser for Watergate committee Sen. Edward J. Gurney, has agreed to plead guilty to two felony charges and testify for the government in a probe of Gurney's finances.

The Miami Herald also reported that Jim Groot, a former Gurney administrative assistant, has told investigators he handled envelopes from Williams for Gurney containing thousands of dollars in cash.

He said the money was spent mostly for travel and office expenses.

At the Watergate hearings, Priestes named Fernandez, head of the Nixon campaign's Hispanic Finance Committee, as the man who told him his legal problems with the Federal Housing Administration might be solved if he contributed $100,000 to the campaign.

Priestes said Fernandez, who will testify today, arranged a meeting with former Commerce Secretary Maurice H. Stans, the head of the Nixon campaign's finance committee.

He said Stans indicated he would discuss the Priestes problem with Secretary George Romney of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

In a statement read into the committee record, Stans denied any favors were ever arranged for Priestes.

Synthetic gas made necessity

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP) — Columbia Gas System officials say they will have to rely on synthetically produced gas if they are to meet industrial commitments.

The comment came during testimony before the West Virginia Public Service Commission Wednesday on a request by Columbia to increase rates to its industrial customers.

Columbia's main gas supplier, Columbia Gas Transmission Corp., has estimated its annual deficiencies will range from 84 billion cubic feet of gas in 1973-74 to 316 billion cubic feet in 1977-78 if it relies only on supplies from Louisiana and Southwest pipelines.

The transmission corporation supplies gas to more than 75 affiliated companies in seven states, including West Virginia, Kentucky, Maryland, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Virginia.

Columbia Gas representatives told the PSC they plan to alleviate any deficiencies in gas to its West Virginia customers by using other sources such as synthetic gas from a refining plant under construction near Green Springs, Ohio, a plant to be located near Marcus Hook, Pa., and another to be located near Baltimore as well as a liquified natural gas facility at Cove Point, Md.

Paul R. Bigley, vice president and chief engineer for the utility, said use of synthetic gas will allow Columbia to keep its deficiences to four per cent this year instead of the previously anticipated 7.7 per cent.

Sy Orlofsky, president and director of Columbia LGN Corp., of Wilmington, Del., blamed the Federal Power Commission for the energy crisis.

He said the FPC's control of wellhead prices was a major cause of the current shortage. "Natural gas has been artificially priced by the FPC at a value below its true market value," he said and as a result it has inhibited the exploration and drilling activities required to find new supplies of gas.

businesses were asked to achieve the equivalent of a 10-degree thermostat reduction by reducing working hours or heating.

—The drafting of regulations to bar power plants from switching from coal to petroleum.

—Fuel allocations to reduce air flights 10 per cent.

—An order to lower federal agency thermostats and forbid the 500,000 federal vehicles from being driven faster than 50 miles an hour except in emergencies.

—A recommendation to the Atomic Energy Commission to speed the licensing of nuclear power plants and an order to the Transportation Department to give priority processing to grant requests for purchase of mass transit buses.

Love said the President probably would not submit separate draft legislation but would work with Congress to develop legislation already introduced by Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash.

Jackson, chairman of the Senate Interior Committee, predicted Senate passage of such legislation next week. House Democratic Whip John J. McFall, D-Calif., said it could be adopted by Congress by the time it recesses, around Dec. 15.

Nixon's legislative requests included:

—Authority to relax environmental programs by granting one-year waivers to power plants and factories from air and water quality standards.

—Authority to take emergency actions without first preparing and reviewing their environmental impact.

—Authority to limit commercial working hours, and to set a speed limit of 50 miles an hour on interstate highways.

—Clear authority to ration fuels.

—Approval to increase production from the Elk Hills Naval Petroleum Reserve in California, with any proceeds earmarked for development of another naval reserve on Alaska's north slope, the scene of major commercial petroleum discovery.

—Authority for regulatory agencies to alter transportation schedules, for the Federal Power Commission to suspend price regulation on new natural gas and for the Atomic Energy Commission to issue temporary operating licenses for atomic power plants.

Ford probers reject testimony

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Rules Committee has rejected the testimony of a former lobbyist who claims to have paid cash to Vice President-designate Gerald R. Ford in exchange for "an ear at court."

But the former lobbyist, Robert N. Winter-Berger, said he stands by his story, even though conceding that his original version was wrong.

"We did not consider him to be a credible witness," Rules Committee Chairman Howard W. Cannon, D-Nev., said Wednesday after the panel spent a full day with WinterBerger behind closed doors.

Cannon said the committee will review the transcript of Wednesday's session before determining whether to ask the Justice Department for a perjury investigation of the former lobbyist.

Cannon said Winter-Berger's allegations had been the only negative testimony against Ford. The committee is considering Ford's nomination to succeed Spiro T. Agnew, who resigned.

The chairman said it is conceivable that the committee will vote by late next week on referring the Ford nomination to the full Senate. Only one more day of public hearings on Ford is expected in the Rules Committee; the House Judiciary Committee plans to open hearings on the nomination next week.

By a unanimous vote, the Rules Committee agreed to make public next week the transcript of Winter-Berger's testimony, and decided against having the former lobbyist testify in public.

Cannon said Winter-Berger's oral testimony contradicted his sworn affidavit on several points, including the allegation that the former lobbyist gave Ford, the House Republican leader, $15,000 in cash in the late 1960s.

In addition, Cannon said, Winter-Berger's tax records made clear that the $15,000 could not have come from his own account.

Ford has denied ever receiving money from Winter-Berger, who claims to have been a close associate of the Michigan congressman.

Winter-Berger told reporters that he stands by his affidavit and everything he wrote about Ford in the book, "The Washington Pay-Off."

He said he paid the $15,000 "because I was getting an ear at court from Jerry Ford." But he could not recall any favors received from Ford.

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Alaska, one of the nation's energy hopes, is itself short on energy, says a state power official.

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Ohio Public Utilities Commission Chairman Edmund J. Turk says it appears the energy crisis is "going to be with us a long time."

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation and the Ohio Civil Service Employes Association signed a work agreement Wednesday covering employes at eight prisons.

The pact covers overtime, grievance procedures, labor-management conferences and promotion and transfer procedures, but not salaries, spokesmen said.

State studies energy action

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The director of the state Environmental Protection Agency says President Nixon's energy proposals are "on the right track."

But Ira Whitman admits some reservations about the impact specific proposals may have on Ohio.

"Ohio already has proposed a two-year extension of the deadline by which coal burning industries must meet emission limits. We hope the President's proposals mean we will be able to implement the extension," Whitman said.

Car pools and increased use of mass transit are particularly attractive proposals because they help fight air pollution, Whitman said.

But Whitman said reducing state speed limits from 70 to 50 could wreak havoc with some state departments, including his own.

"My people have to cover 88 counties, and cutting speed is going to mean longer hours or less work. Either one could be expensive," the director said.

Whitman also said reducing office air temperatures is feasible, but that he is leery of replacing 100-watt light bulb with a 40-watt bulb.

"The success of a program to conserve energy may depend on our implementing it with common sense," he said.

Meanwhile an executive of the Ohio Petroleum Marketing Association called the President's proposals "too little, too late."

"I don't think he laid a glove on the problem," said OPMA vice president Roger Dreyer.

Dreyer said the proposals should have come two years ago.

"We've been converting from coal to oil for two years now and that's the crunch," he said.

Dreyer said the President should have pushed hard for an immediate start on the Alaska pipeline, more offshore drilling and construction of tanker ports.

Rationing is a "dead certainty" since the President offered no concrete proposals to overcome it, he added.

"The administration really mismanaged the energy crisis because it had its mind on other things—like Watergate," Dreyer said.

Stock market opens higher

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices were higher today and brokers said President Nixon's address to the nation had helped lift some of the uncertainties that have been depressing the market.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was ahead almost a point near opening and advancing issues held a broad lead over decliners on the Big Board.

Boeing, down ½ at 18¾, was the Big Board volume leader, followed by AMF down ⅝ at 27½; Cenco, Inc., unchanged at 15¼; and Gulf up ⅛ at 23⅛.

Stock market prices closed up Wednesday following seven consecutive sessions of heavy losses.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials closed up 7 at 920.08 and advancing issues led decliners 797 to 616 in moderate trading volume of 16.57 million shares.

Analysts said the rally basically was technical in nature after the heavy losses. They said Nixon's scheduled address to the nation almost might have helped the rally.

The latest weather map shows a cold front from northern Lake Huron through lower Michigan to northwest Indiana. The front is being pushed southeast and will be well east and south of Ohio this evening. Hostages escape, men surrender

WADENA, Minn. (AP) — Two jail escapees surrendered today after their three hostages slipped away from them during the night, authorities said.

The two escapees, one an accused murderer, apparently fell asleep in the farmhouse where they had held Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Wegscheid and their 15-year-old son hostage since Tuesday night, an FBI spokesman said.

There were no reports of any injuries. The two gunmen, who had threatened to resort to whatever means necessary to escape, had been holed up in the farmhouse for 36 hours. They released three other Wegscheid children Wednesday night.

The FBI spokesman said deputy sheriffs captured the two gunmen but gave no further details.

The two gunmen escaped from a Wadena jail Monday night after wounding a jailer with a gun.

John P. Morgan, who had been jailed on murder charges in a double slaying, told police earlier today he would resort to any means necessary to escape.

"If I have to, I'll tape a gun to Mr. Wegscheid's neck to assure that police don't try anything on the trip to the airport," Morgan, 37, said. "That way, if I'm shot, my reflex action will trigger the gun and my hostage will be killed, too."

The other gunman was William L. Winans, 18, who had been jailed on a burglary charge.

The fugitives had been negotiating with law enforcement officials on details of a plan to have them flown to freedom today in a Minnesota Highway Patrol plane.

A snowstorm thwarted the escapees' plans to flee by plane Wednesday. They had said they expected to fly out of Wadena today under conditions they had negotiated with authorities for the release of Mr. and Mrs. Wegscheid and their son, Ed.

Wadena, a town of less than 5,000 persons, is about 170 miles northwest of Minneapolis.

John H. Roszmann to join Washington C. H. law firm

The law firm of Kiger and Ulrich, 132 S. Main St., is expanding to include another attorney, it was announced Thursday.

James A. Kiger, senior member of the firm, said that John Henry Roszmann, 32, son of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin H. Roszmann, 1235 Dayton Ave., will become associated with the Kiger and Ulrich office about Nov. 22. Roszmann received the degree of juris doctor from the Chase Law School, Cincinnati, this year and has successfully passed the Ohio bar examination.

Born in Cincinnati, he attended Washington C.H. schools through the junior year, is a 1960 graduate of Staunton Military Academy, Staunton, Va., and received a bachelor of science degree from Ohio State University before entering law school.

A resident of 3549 Burch Ave., Cincinnati, he and his wife, the former Christine Schilling, daughter of a Cincinnati surgeon, will move to Washington C.H. later this month. They have two children, Elizabeth, 9, and Claire, 3.

JOHN H. ROSZMANN

ROSZMANN worked his way through Chase Law School at nights while an employe of the Kroger Company.

"We are very pleased to bring Mr. Roszmann into the firm", Kiger said, pointing out that the new attorney was selected from among 17 applicants on the basis of background and academic standing. "Washington C.H. is a growing city and we wish to grow with it," Kiger added.

Kiger, a graduate of the University of Kentucky and the University of Cincinnati, opened his law practice here 12 years ago. He presently is city attorney, has served two terms as president of the Fayette County Bar Association and has been admitted to practice before all courts, including the United States Supreme Court.

Ulrich, who joined the firm last year, is a graduate of Loyola University of Chicago and the University of Toledo.

Bankruptcy suits filed by dual firm

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Bankruptcy papers have been filed by two Cincinnati firms which earlier this week sued the Ohio Director of Commerce for $100 million and charged state officials were trying to drive them out of business.

Bankruptcy petitions were submitted Tuesday by Welfare Finance Corp. and its subsidiary National Finance Co.

The firms filed a $100 million damage suit Monday against Commerce Director Dennis Shaul.

The petitions state the two companies are unable to meet debts due to the actions of the Ohio Division of Securities.

The companies filed registrations in 1970 to sell $490 million worth of certificates. Last August the firms boosted their interest rate to 8 per cent on $10 million worth of certificates.

The Division of Securities ordered a halt in September of all sales on the 8 per cent certificates. Suspension of all previously registered and approved certificates of both companies was made last month.

Arab oil cutoff sparked crisis

WASHINGTON (AP) — "It is no longer a problem," said Arkansas Gov. Dale Bumpers after meeting with President Nixon on the fuel shortage. "It is a crisis of major proportions."

"We are heading toward the most acute shortages of energy since World War II," Nixon told the American people in a nationally televised address Wednesday night.

Just three weeks after Arab oil nations cut off oil shipments to the United States, Americans have begun to realize just how serious the fuel situation may be this winter.

Nixon, seeking emergency powers from Congress to cut down on energy demand and preserve petroleum supplies, recognized the Arab oil weapon in his speech, saying it will mean more than two million fewer barrels of oil daily by the end of the month.

Petroleum supplies will be at least 10 per cent and maybe 17 per cent short of needs, the President said.

A few weeks ago, however, few people inside or outside the government saw the situation in the same grim light that Nixon saw it in his speech.

Before the Arab nations decided to wield the oil weapon, the administration was saying the nation would be able to survive the winter despite an already tight supply situation.

It didn't become clear to the administration until about a week ago just how serious the shortage will be.

Emerging from a meeting with the White House energy adviser John A. Love last Thursday, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., said the "crisis is much worse than all of us had anticipated a week ago."

Love conceded to reporters Wednesday night: "We have an emergency now." He and Nixon said the administration is going ahead with developing plans to ration gasoline.

The arithmetic of the crisis has changed dramatically in a few short weeks.

Less than a month ago, U.S. officials were saying that the nation gets only about 6 per cent of the oil used by Americans from Arab nations. But that amount, it turns out, is in direct shipments.

If direct and indirect shipments are figured, the shortages range between 10 and 17 per cent, according to Nixon. Some of his experts say it could be as high as 21 per cent.

Administration experts had expected an oil shortfall of between 100,000 and 800,000 barrels a day before the Arab oil cutoff was announced.

But they said the cutoff threatens the nation with a loss of between 2 million and 2.5 million barrels of oil a day on top of that. The nation uses about 17.4 million barrels daily.

The potential shortage could be as high as 3 million barrels daily if the Pentagon is forced to use only domestic oil sources for its supplies. The military now gets about half its supplies — or 300,000 barrels daily — from foreign sources.

Experts said the shortage would be more acute if the United States decides to help out its European allies, also hurt by the Arab oil weapon.

Frank Sinatra sets appearances

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Entertainer Frank Sinatra has signed on for two appearances at Caesars Palace hotel here in his latest emergence from a self-imposed retirement.

In recent weeks, Sinatra taped a television special and appeared at a live performance at Fresno, Calif. He also has a new album and an upcoming television special.

Sinatra will make his first appearance here for one week starting next Jan. 25. The date for the second and the financial arrangements were not announced.

Saxbe nomination not yet submitted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nomination of Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, to be attorney general, announced by President Nixon a week ago, has yet to be submitted to the Senate.

And, at the moment, there is a good deal of uncertainty about when it will be.

The hitch is over which is to come first—his nomination or legislation designed to make him eligible for the Cabinet post.

The Constitution provides that a member of Congress may not be appointed to an office for which the salary was increased during his term.

Saxbe was in the Senate in 1969 when Congress passed legislation increasing the salaries of all Cabinet members from $35,000 to $60,000 a year.

In an effort to get around this barrier to Saxbe's nomination, the Justice Department is reported to have drafted a bill to cut the attorney general's salary back to $35,000.

Chairman James O. Eastland, D-Miss., of the Senate Judiciary Committee, told a reporter he has been advised the department wants the bill passed before Saxbe's nomination is submitted.

This is on the ground that it would be inappropriate to nominate him for an office for which he is ineligible.

Saxbe's nomination would be handled by Eastland's committee, but the pay-cut bill would be handled by the Senate Post Office and Civil Service Committee of which Sen. Gale McGee, D-Wyo., is chairman.

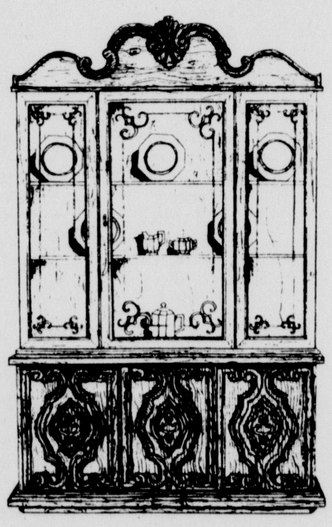

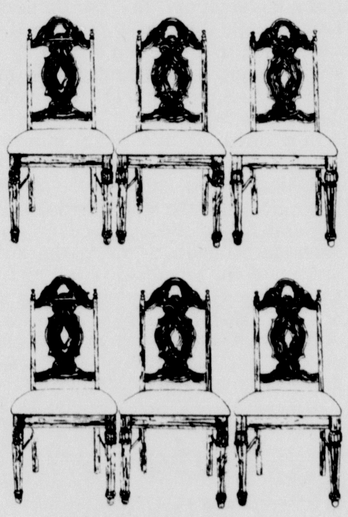

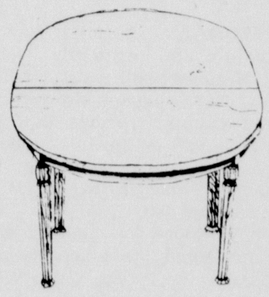

McGee's committee met in closed session yesterday, and aides said later he took the position he was not going to do anything about reducing the attorney general's salary until a nomination is submitted.

Saxbe's press secretary said the senator is just sitting and waiting to see what happens. He said he understood efforts were being made to see what could be worked out.

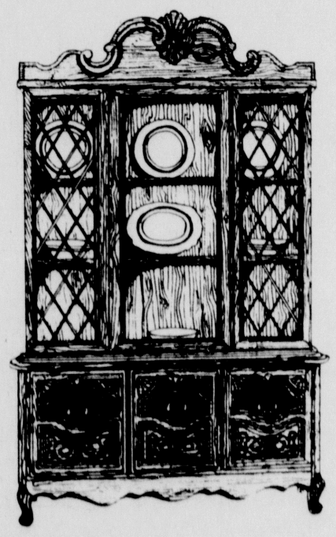

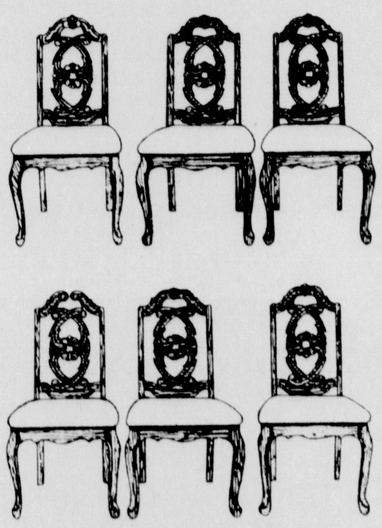

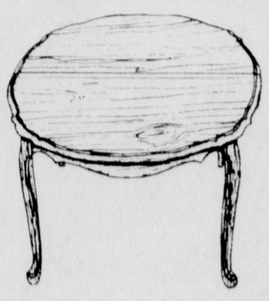

The impasse has made moot a controversy that erupted last week over whether the Judiciary Committee should interrupt its hearings on legislation for a court-appointed special Watergate prosecutor to consider Saxbe's nomination.

Noise: minibikes to jets

It is only in recent years that the public has been made aware of noise as not merely a nuisance but a health hazard. We have been told that prolonged exposure to sound above certain levels may cause temporary or even in some cases permanent hearing loss. There also are research indications that excessive noise may cause nervous troubles ranging from irritation to psychological damage.

Two items in the roster of harm done by noise came to attention recently. The Acoustical Society of America was told by Dr. Samuel R. Lane of the University of California at Los Angeles that jet transport passengers may be adversely affected by the noise of the big engines. In the magazine American Family Practice, Dr. R. Peter Oppenheimer writes that minibike riders may suffer damage to their hearing.

Oppenheimer notes that prolonged exposure to noise above 84 decibels will produce a hearing loss. At full throttle, he says, minibikes' noise ranges from an average of 92.4 decibels if muffled to 96.4 without a muffler. That much noise over a period of time may bring permanent hearing loss, he warns.

As to riding in commercial jets, Dr. Lane finds that cabin noise varies between 75 and 91 decibels, with the average at 80 to 90. That much racket over a period of several hours markedly dulls the hearing. Ear plugs, anyone?

The great oil fantasy

Logically speaking, there is nothing more difficult than proving a negative proposition. That is, demonstrating that if something didn't exist, something else wouldn't happen. The classic story in this regard is of a man who insisted on snapping his fingers every five minutes, day and night. His family finally took him to a psychiatrist, who inquired why he persisted in this eccentric behavior.

"I am," he said, "preventing the United States from being overrun by the deadly king cobra."

The psychiatrist chuckled genially and observed, "Look, except for those in zoos, nobody has ever seen a king cobra in this country."

"Naturally," the determined chap replied. "Why do you think I keep snapping my fingers?"

RIGHT NOW we are being exposed to a massive propaganda campaign which is founded on roughly the same irrefutable logic. We, and the Europeans and Japanese, are all going to revert to huddling around log fires because of the existence of Israel. Indeed, with one honorable exception, our alleged allies refused to cooperate in resupplying Israel because they are convinced that the Arab states will cut off their oil. To paraphrase Tallyrand, this was worse than immoral — it was stupid.

Without denying for a minute that the Arab-Israeli confrontation provided a catalyst for action, the plain fact is that the Arab oil producers are operating under principles formulated by that distinguised Moslem economist, Ibn Adam Smith. The key one, as any good capitalist can tell you, is that when a producer has a buyer on the rack, he turns the crank.

To put it differently, does anyone really believe that King Faisal, the Iranians, and assorted sheikdoms on the Persian Gulf have for generations been the world's leading philanthropists? That they have been selling oil well below obtainable market prices to the Japanese and the West because they are infatuated with our collective charm?

To ask the question is to answer it. The price of crude has been set in terms of the international market, and in the last decade there has been a startling growth in demand. The European and Japanese economies literally float on Arab oil, and suddenly over the past few years demand has jumped spectacularly. Prices have leaped accordingly.

THIS, as I observed recently, would have been predictable if Israel were located in Australia. Whenever items in the world market have been in short supply, those nations with the requisite resources — and national independence — have raised the ante to the limit. (An exception was last year's "great grain robbery" — in Sen. Jackson's phrase — where the United States summarily abandoned capitalism in favor of something called "detente."

But, as is well known in Asia, Americans are inscrutable.)

At any rate, let's keep our categories straight. The Arab oil producers are not idiots, dervishes or socialists. They are extremely hard-eyed characters who would feel right at home with the National Association of Manufacturers. All they had to do was to look at the supply-demand statistics and make the completely rational capitalist decision: nail the buyer to the wall. The existence or non-existence of Israel has in fundamental terms as much to do with this calculation as the phases of the moon.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

Young voters lead impeachment drive

WASHINGTON — The ground swell across the country for the impeachment of the President or, failing that, for his resignation is a new phenomenon quite unlike the mass protests of the past. The young on the campuses are not burning down ROTC buildings or trashing university libraries.

Instead they are organizing teach-ins and seminars on the dilemma of a government headed by a crippled President. Many of the young are those who worked for Sen. George McGovern until they were disillusioned in the last phase of the campaign.

Their attitude today is different. Deeply concerned over the future of the country, they are determined not only on a serious inquiry into every aspect of the constitutional crisis but on pursuing through legitimate channels the drive to remove the President from office.

AT YALE UNIVERSITY, where a confrontation of massed thousands once threatened to burn down the campus, students and faculty members met to plan their program of letter writing, petitions and fund raising. Within three days 3,200 students had signed petitions calling for the President's impeachment. The chairman of the Liberal party of the Political Union reported that spontaneous activity had begun in the graduate, divinity and medical schools.

All eight Ivy League college newspapers printed an identical editorial headed: "Nixon Must Go."

"We will settle for nothing less than impeachment of the President," the editorial said. "Mere resignation is not enough." Students were urged to take part in peaceful rallies at courthouses throughout the country "to protest the clear and present danger to democracy in these United States."

The same thing has been happening on other campuses with petitions, letters and telegrams pouring in to Congress. This might be discounted as merely another manifestation of the smart aleck young on the Eastern seaboard, although the phenomenon is by no means confined to the East.

IN MIDDLE AMERICA — geographically and politically — the ground swell takes another direction. A popular lecturer doing one-night stands across the country reports that indignation centers on the President's huge tax deductions, reducing his payments for each of two years to reportedly under $800.

The White House has neither confirmed nor denied these reports and has declined to make public the President's income tax returns. A deduction of $570,000 came from the gift of his presidential papers to the National Archives, although the timing of the gift in relation to the law is in question.

Meeting hundreds of people each week who attend his popular illustrated lectures, my friend reports that while they may not be clear about the issue of the tapes they boil over on taxes. Why should he, with his salary of $200,000 and those other sources of income, get away with that, they ask.

MUTTERINGS of a tax strike can be heard. Probably no more than part of the angry talk, it nevertheless illustrates how deep is the blow to confidence in the integrity of the government. The federal income tax, with Draconian enforcement by an efficient service, has been considered, despite a few flagrant exemptions for the very rich, to be sacrosanct.

Those electing to stick by the ship, such as Acting Attorney General Robert Bork who in that capacity fired Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, are feeling the whiplash of anger. On leave from the faculty of the Yale University Law School, Bork was denounced for this action in a petition signed by 160 students and some faculty. The total Law School enrollment for various degrees is 585.

How much of this rising mutter of discontent gets through to the President? The answer is precious little. He is still the loner, finding solace at Camp David or Key Biscayne, and a loner surrounded by men who either are unable or unwilling to tell him the truth. With one or two exceptions they are dependents who do his bidding.

It is one thing to say this cannot endure. But it is quite another thing to say how it will end.

Ohio Perspective

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Unlike some other states, Ohio has escaped internal competition over where to locate its new medical schools.

"Everyone who has asked for a medical school got one," said William B. Coulter, vice chancellor for administration of the Ohio Board of Regents.

He pointed out that with the addition of the Wright State and Northeast Ohio Medical College—both recently created by the legislature—the state will have six medical schools. The combined enrollment of the existing four is about 2,300, and they have entering classes totaling about 700 a year, Coulter said.

The regents' official said Ohio has more medical schools, more widely dispersed, than most other states. He attributed that fact to the state's many large cities—eight with more than 100,000 population.

The two new schools expand the network even further, since each will be a consortium to serve three universities.

Wright State at Dayton also will serve Central State and Miami universities.

The northeast school will serve the University of Akron along with Kent State and Youngstown State universities.

Legislation creating the schools was politically popular in the General Assembly, Coulter said, "because it was stated that they would stress family practice, the greatest area of need in the medical profession."

The existing schools—the University of Cincinnati, Ohio State University, Case Western Reserve of Cleveland, and the Medical College of Ohio at Toledo—more or less lean toward specialty, the trend of the profession in recent years.

Dr. Robert Conley of Wright State said "we have a community-based medical school, and we are designing it so the community will participate and benefit."

He said that with the opportunity to start with the establishment of departmental units, it will be possible to structure in the emphasis on family practice.

Wright State or the Northeast Ohio College could get the benefit of a new Veterans Administration program to help establish eight new medical schools across the country.

Federal legislation still being implemented authorizes the VA to pay 90 per cent of faculty salaries at the eight schools for the first three years of a seven-year program, and 50 per cent during the remaining four. The new Ohio schools probably won't get their first students until about two years.

Conley said Wright State is "very much interested. We've watched the legislation from the beginning, but we want to see what the regulations and criteria are." He said these are being considered by the U.S. Office of Budget Management.

DEAR WORRIED: Laws differ, but your neighbor should find out if he's within the law to be without clothes even on his own property in view of the neighbors. (What could they charge him with? Indecent exposure, or being an attractive nuisance?)

DEAR ABBY: A woman wrote that she had been married 27 years, and all she was good for was sex. One is struck by her incapacity to realize that she must be one fantastically creative, imaginative, responsive female to have made sex so exciting for the same man for 27 years.

She says she's "the world's worst cook and housekeeper, and not good at anything except sex"-as if sex was a bad thing to be good at.

One could easily change the letter around. A woman may have written in saying all she was good for was cooking, and that's the only reason her husband married her, and now they are both overweight, and their lives are devoid of everything except the pleasures of eating. That would be worse, wouldn't it?

Or she might have said she was the world's greatest housekeeper, but since she didn't have a passionate nature, her husband went out and paid prostitutes, or kept mistresses to fulfill his sexual needs. Sadder, but more believable, right?

I was married for years to a man who found my sexual nature both irritating and intimidating. Since he really didn't enjoy either physical or emotional intimacy, and since he mostly wanted me to be an excellent cook and housekeeper (neither of which I am or ever will be), our relationship was singularly lacking in closeness, friendship, and love.

Luckily, I since have left that marriage and have found a man who appreciates a woman who is passionate, responsive, and sexually creative.

After six years of this fulfilling relationship, please tell that poor woman for me that I have been there too-both ways. And believe me, this way is better!

DEAR WANTS: First: There is nothing "dumb" about your question-in fact, no question is "dumb" if it's sincere, so never hestitate to ask. The male is fertile on a nonstop basis throughout his reproductive life.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Johnny Hart, as a goodly number of kids, college students and general citizens know, draws the "B.C." comic strip, which is sort of a hipsters' "Flintstones."

Come Nov. 19, he'll have his first full-length cartoon feature on television, a half-hour effort on NBC called "B.C., The First Thanksgiving."

Most of it concerns a turkey who is uneasy at the idea of being dined on. Hart approaches interviews about the show approximately the same way the turkey contemplates the ax.

"I'm trying to get into the Guiness Book of Records as the worst interview of all time," he unhappily explained. Then he started laughing. "So you might as well prepare yourself."

Hart, a 41-year-old native of Endicott, N.Y., isn't a hostile witness. It's just that, well, a guy who draws ants that talk and anteaters that go "Zot!" as they dine is apt to be a bit strange upstairs.

In his defense, we'd point out that he's a great fan of the old "Roadrunner" cartoons, breaks up at the mention of Dudley Do-Right of the Royal Mounted Police and considers jazz trumpeter Jack Sheldon, a regular on the Merv Griffin show, one of the most naturally funny men of all time.

Hart, in short, is a normal cartoonist. His "B.C." strip has been nationally syndicated for nearly 13 years, but he's been a professional cartoonist since he was 19.

"I guess originally it was the only thing that I knew how to do," he said. "I started out just working nights and studying other people's drawings, then trying some of my own."

He continued drawing, even during a Korean war stint with the Air Force, but despite some success in magazines he didn't really hit until he happened to see Charles Schulz' "Peanuts" strip.

That prompted "B.C." and the rest is history. Now he wants to do more animated cartoons for television, but only on an irregular basis while continuing his strip.

"I don't like the idea of doing it for television every week, because you have to take so much away from it," he said, referring to time considerations that force reduction in cartoon detail.

"I'm of the old school. I like the full animation, like in the old days with the Warner Brothers stuff.

"But that's what I'd like to do," he said. "I think I have a talent for that. I think I have a good feel for sound, which you can't get on a page. I drive myself crazy trying to do it on a piece of paper, but, jeez, it's difficult."

Unlike many successful cartoonists, Hart still draws his own strip, seven days a week,365 days a year.

Chinese emigration at flood tide

HONG KONG (AP) — China is allowing more legal emigration than at any time since the Communists took over the mainland in 1949. This has created a serious housing and welfare problem for already overcrowded Hong Kong because the emigrants have nowhere to go from here.

Building up throughout most of the year, the influx hit what some Hong Kong officials privately call "ear crisis" stage late in October.

Some 7,000 Chinese with legal exit visas crossed the border into Hong Kong in October, and 2,191 crossed in the first five days of November.

Since the first of the year, more than 46,000 Chinese have been permitted to leave China. In all of 1972, there were about 5,800. And in 1971, 2,369.

These figures do not include the "illegal" Chinese refugees who flee China in fishing junks or other small coastal craft or by swimming to Hong Kong. Government officials and social workers estimated these at between 12,000 and 15,000 a year — but no one knows for sure. Once in Hong Kong, the "illegals" lose themselves in hillside squatter hut areas and jammed tenement buildings.

Social service officials say virtually all of the 46,000 legals emigrants so far this year are still in Hong Kong because they have no onward visas to enter other countries. There is a general feeling here that many will not be able to get these visas. "They are here. It looks like they are going to have to stay here. And if the influx continues at this pace, we are going to have very serious difficulties indeed in caring for them," said one social service official.

Officials here say they they don't know for sure why China has permitted so many more legal exits this year.

These officials do point out, however, that a considerable number are overseas Chinese from Southeast Asian countries who returned to China in the 1960s.

There are indications that many of these had become disillusioned with life in China and have wanted out for several years — but no explanation of why China has suddenly agreed to let them depart at this time.

Many came originally from Indonesia, Malaysia, Cambodia, and South Vietnam. When they left for China they lost their citizenship or residence rights in those countries.

"And," said one Hong Kong official, "those countries don't seem to want them back and other countries don't want them — and so Hong Kong has to absorb them."

Restructuring of securities industry not an easy project

By JOSH FITZHUGH
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — How does one go about restructuring the nation's sprawling securities industry into a modern, centralized model of efficiency?

Not easily, as it turns out. Efforts toward such a central market have raised a long list of interlocking issues that have surrounded the whole subject with controversy.

Almost everybody favors the idea of a central market linking the separate exchanges and markets into one coordinated network. But when it comes down to the specifics of who will take what role in that market, agreement has been scarce on Wall Street and in Washington.

Here is a capsule look at some of the major questions that remain to be resolved:

ACCESS: One group, led by the government, wants access to the central market for everyone in the industry. This would include specialists, who match orders auction-style on the exchanges, and dealers, who make markets by buying and selling from their own accounts. It would include all exchanges and markets, particularly the so-called "third market," where dealers serve banks and pension funds by trading in large blocks of stock listed on the exchanges.

The New York and American Stock exchanges and Securities Industry Association, by contrast, prefer a market operating through market-making specialists only.

The government says dealers should compete directly to offer potentially better prices and to provide the liquidity to absorb large blocks. The big exchanges, however, say the inclusion of dealers would destroy the auction market and turn brokerage houses into dealer firms, thereby creating a conflict of interest as one firm serves both as broker-agent and buyer-seller.

James Needham, chairman of the New York Stock Exchange, wants the whole network to adopt the exchange's rule prohibiting market-makers, the entities which set prices, from dealing directly with institutions, as dealers do.

IMPLEMENTION: The Securities and Exchange Commission says the first step toward a central market is a composite tape to disclose all transactions. By showing discrepancies in prices in various markets, "the implementation would necessarily precipitate some restructuring of the way securities are traded today," the SEC claims.

The Big Board wants equal regulations and standards established before the tape begins operation, however. And the SIA feels that central administrative facilities are essential before any trading can be conducted over the network.

As conceived now the composite tape would reveal the price, quantity and location of all trades. Those who feel the system would create chaos if implemented, because of the price differences, say the SEC is using the tape principally as a threat to get the industry in line. Denying this, the SEC's central market architect, John Liftin, says, "All it will do is disclose what already takes place."

OPERATION: Who will run and pay for the national communications network is still in question. Some feel that the present Amex and NYSE could together handle the reporting of trades, while the NASDAQ system now in use in the over-the-counter market could provide a means of reporting bid and asked quotations.

The Big Board and Amex would like their present joint automation venture to run the total network, while the government, particularly Congress, is for a neutral or quasi-governmental body.

As to the cost of the communications network, estimates run anywhere from $50 million to $150 million depending on whom you talk to and whether they like the government's approach. "The cost will be astronomical and it's being forced down our throats," said Virgil Sherrill of Shields & Co., head of the SIA's central market committee.

LISTING: Presently stocks on many companies are listed on exchanges, while the securities of thousands more remain unlisted and are traded only in the over-the-counter market. And some of the listed stocks also are traded away from the exchanges in the "third market."

The Big Board and the SIA believe "publicly owned companies should have the option of choosing where to trade their securities," according to Sherrill. The government and the SEC would permit trading wherever competitive reasons make it profitable for the specialist or dealer to handle a given stock.

FIXED RATES: Nearly 200 years ago the New York Stock Exchange began to set the commissions that member firms could charge investors. This fall the SEC asserted its insistence on an end to all fixed rates by April 30, 1975.

Though the SEC decision has recently been termed a "fait accompli" by the Big Board's Needham, there is still much controversy on Wall Street over abolition of fixed rates, with some saying the decision may yet be reversed.

A House committee which studied the industry concluded that "the resolution of the commission rate issue is the key to resolving most of the major questions concerning the shape of our nation's securities markets."

In a recent report to directors, the Big Board's staff said fixed rates are necessary because without them the auction market would be undermined. Only the large brokerage firms would survive, the staff argued, and they would find it economically advantageous to withdraw from the NYSE and other exchanges. The core of this argument, the staff said, is that "open competition amongst a multiplicity of brokerage firms could not be sustained."

Those who favor competitive rates say fixed rates breed inefficiency and distortion. They contend that fixed rates and the exchanges' steps to safeguard them encourage an unhealthy exclusivity on Wall Street.

Women's Day of Prayer observed by Baptists

Women from the Baptist Churches of Fayette County met together in the First Baptist Church of Bloomingburg on Monday evening for the annual Baptist Women's Day of Prayer.

Mrs. Arthur Stewart of the host church presented "Introduction-Purposes" and gave the purpose of the Women's Department of the Baptist World Alliance and reminded all of the privilege of joining women on six contenents as they encircled the golbe with prayer.

Following the singing of a hymn, Mrs. Marvin Crosswhite from Second Baptist Church of Washington C.H., read the message from the president, Mrs. R. L. Mathis. She stated that the "Baptist Women's Day of Prayer is the link that binds all together the world around . . . on this day to forget all lines that might tend to divide them."

The very inspirational message was read by Mrs. Lois Stills from Second Baptist Church of Jeffersonville. The message, "The city that was, but is no more" was written by Olivia S.D. de Lerin, executive secretary of the Women's Missionary Union of Mexico and president of the Latin American Baptist Women's Union.

"The city that was, but is no more" was an expression that was heard on Dec. 24, 1972, after the earthquake in Managua, Nicaragua, because in 30 seconds the city was completely destroyed like Hiroshima in World War II."

As Olivia de Lerin visited the Baptist churches she learned that many buildings were destroyed but with no loss of loves. She found it refreshing to see the people working instead of sitting down feeling sorry for themselves. She said she would never be able to tell all that she had seen or heard, but could tell of the experience with the people of Nicaragua, and how her faith and trust had been strengthened.

Mrs. Robert Bachelor of First Baptist in Washington C.H. read the offeratory and Mrs. John Baker of the same church gave the prayer.

Following the commitment service by ladies of the host church, all joined hands in a circle for the closing hymm, "Blest Be the Tie that Binds." Mrs. Leona Terry was pianist.

Refreshments and a social hour followed. Due to illness, ladies from Immanuel Baptist Church were unable to participate.

Phi Beta Psi donates to Research

The Active Chapter of Phi Beta Psi was entertained with an original skit entitled "Tradition", written, produced and enacted by the pledges, Mrs. John Bryant, Mrs. Don Kirk, Mrs. Jim Kirk, Miss Fonda Fichthorn, Mrs. Richard Stinson, Mrs. Charles Tye and Mrs. Shirley Wisecup. Mrs. Paul V. Johnson's home, 506 Damon Dr., provided the setting.

Mrs. James McCoy announced that a profit of $197.00 from the rummage sale will benefit Cancer Research. According to Mrs. Willis Coffman, the third annual Antique Show will be March 28-31 at the Mahan Building. A new feature will be a craft bazaar booth in conjunction with the Fayette County Unit of the American Cancer Society.

The Christmas and initiation party will be December 3 at Lafayette Inn. Inactive members are urged to phone Mrs. Don Wald 335-8398 or Mrs. Gene Elliott 335-5869 for reservations and details.

Mrs. William Hendren and Mrs. James Ward assisted Mrs. Johnson with refreshments.

Meatless supper: turn hot cooked cornmeal mush into a shallow baking dish and top with tomato sauce and grated cheese. Bake in a moderate oven until bubbly hot. Use homemade tomato sauce prepared with canned tomatoes, onion, green pepper, celery, carrot and seasonings.

'Drugs in Fayette County' is topic at Alpha CCL meet

Sgt. Bill Crooks of the Sheriff's Department was guest speaker Wednesday evening when members of Alpha Child Conservation League assembled in the home of Mrs. Merrill Lynch. His topic, "Drugs and Drug Abuse in Washington C.H. and Fayette County" was most interesting.

Sgt. Crooks had on display several packages of marijuana, amphetamines, heroine, barbiturates and hallucinogens which, at the time had been confiscated in the mail from the local post office, or had been found on various persons. He stated that if the drug addicts alone were taken from the streets, this would prevent nearly 75 per cent of the murders and burglaries, for most of these are done by drug users, or sniffers.

He also stated that drugs have been found in most of the junior high and senior high schools around the area, but the use seems to be leveling off or at least is at a standstill, instead of on the increase. A question and answer period followed.

Mrs. Allen McClung conducted the meeting and Mr. Russell Liston introduced the speaker. Mrs. George Naylor presented devotions, and read the articles, "I'm Thankful," "Let Not Your Heart be Troubled" and "Don't Give Up."

Members brought items to be used by the elderly who meet each week at First Presbyterian Church through the sponsorship of the Community Action Program.

Reports were made by Mrs. Paul Ream, Mrs. John Murphy, Mrs. Robert Minshall and Mrs. Frank Dill. The group voted to send a cash donation to the American Field Service chapters at Miami Trace and Washington Senior High Schools, and to prepare two Thanksgiving baskets for two elderly couples. Members of this committee are Mrs. Naylor, chairman, Mrs. Lynch and Mrs. Charles Hurtt, Cash for this project may be taken to Mrs. Naylor at the Colonial Paint Store or a committee member, before Nov. 20.

A new money-making project was announced by Mrs. Frank Dill which will run through next April.

Assisting Mrs. Lynch during the social hour were Mrs. William Fletcher and Mrs. Naylor.

Mrs. Dill will be hostess for the Christmas party, Dec. 5. Assisting her will be Mrs. Homer Chaney and Mrs. Russell Liston. A $1.00 gift exchange will be a feature.

Those present were Mrs. McClung, Mrs. Liston, Mrs. Murphy, Mrs. Hurtt, Mrs. Fletcher, Mrs. Homer Chaney, Mrs. Marcus Crago, Mrs. Minshall, Mrs. R.B. McCoy, Mrs. Willard Greer, Mrs. Robert Climer, Mrs. Richard Waters, Mrs. Fulton Alkire, Mrs. Naylor, Mrs. Ream, Mrs. Harold Foster, Mrs. John Murphy, Mrs. Robert Fries, and Mrs. Tom Porter, of Chillicothe, Mrs. Lynch's daughter, who was a guest.

Prevention of Blindness studied by Lioness Club

Mrs. Paul V. Johnson, president, began the Lioness Club meeting held Tuesday evening with the traditional opening of singing America and the Pledge of Allegiance. Devotions were given by Mrs. Ben Roby.

Following dinner, Mrs. Michael Rigilo introduced Scott Donaldson and Virginal Benton who spoke in behalf of the work being done by the Ohio Society For Prevention of Blindness. Mr. Donaldson emphasized the importance of having eyes examined to avoid glaucoma and ran a film of an opthamologist examining a patient for glaucoma, showing the case with which one could under go the examination. He also stressed the necessity of parents checking on the vision of small children, giving tests at home to detect any impairment. He distributed home kits for this purpose.

Mrs. Johnson called for the standing committee reports and Mrs. Ralph Cook announced the annual Christmas party was scheduled for Dec. 8 at the Washington Country Club and would feature a buffet dinner and dancing to the music of Luther Bolen orchestra.

A silver serving tray was displayed and will be presented to the Washington Country Club from the Lioness Club in commemoration of the 50th anniversary of the Country Club.

A board of directors meeting will be held Nov. 13 at the home of Mrs. Phil Morrow.

The committee for the evening was Mrs. Wesley Cox, Mrs. Michael Riggilo and Mrs. Richard Willis.

Guests introduced were Mrs. Fred Domenico and Polly Watson. Mrs. Robert Leeth was accepted as a new member.

Mrs. Randy R. Kelley (Frances Yoakum) was guest of honor at a layette shower at Anderson's Restaurant. Hostesses were Mrs. Shirley Marshall, Mrs. Dawne Warner, Mrs. Dorothy Aleshire, Mrs. Sandy Smith and Mrs. Marcia Young.

The gift table was decorated in pink and blue and centered with a stork. Each guest wore a nametag in the shape of a baby bootie. Cake, ice cream, punch and nuts were served to the guests.

Games were won by Mrs. Ann Kelley, Mrs. Georgett Kelley and Mrs. Hazel Walker. They were presented planters.

Towmotor Corp. faces UAW strike deadline

The deadline was given to the local firm in accordance with the national deadline set against the Caterpiller Tractor Co. Towmotor is a Caterpiller subsidiary.

Campaign financing bill dying?

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — It may be that the complexity of the problem as well as partisan bickering will result in the current special session of the legislature adjourning without a campaign finance bill.

Leaders have not given up hope, despite a fourth fruitless meeting Wednesday of a six-member conference committee seeking to resolve Republican and Democratic differences.

Rep. Vernal G. Riffe Jr., D-89 New Boston, speaker pro tem of the House, said that while no bill from the special session is "a possibility," he thinks a decision on whether to quit trying may come today or Friday.

He said there is no plan "at this time" to name a new conference committee—a normal move when a joint committee becomes deadlocked. "That hasn't been formally discussed, but I'm sure there's been some talk about it," he said.

Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, conference committee chairman, hinted he will not keep the members through any prolonged deadlock. "If we can't agree, I'll ask for a new committee," he said.

Although the committee has not discussed key issues, deliberations so far make it clear that numerous procedural problems are involved in legislation to limit campaign spending and require reporting of contributions and expenditures.

Rep. Alan E. Norris, R-27 Westerville, a committee member, said "many people just don't realize the complexities of this type of legislation Even if we could agree on a vehicle, it would take two weeks to do the drafting," he said.

The committee has to decide such things as who must file financial statements, when and with whom, how much can be spent on campaigns for the various offices, and also such imponderables as how limiting campaign expenditures could have the effect of "locking in" incumbents.

Organized crime said most serious

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The author of three major federal crime control measures said organized crime is the most serious form of law-breaking in the country, yet citizens are unconcerned.

G. Robert Blakey, professor of law at Cornell University, said organized crime influences our economic institutions, creates public corruption and causes 50 per cent of the street crimes — robberies to get money for narcotics.

"Yet our attitude towards organized crime is strangely ambivalent," he said. "A majority of our people probably do not believe that the Mafia exists. Others, particularly liberals, feels organized crime only services our moral failings."

He added, "Touched by corruption, many political leaders also minimize its significance."

Blakey, who wrote the Organized Crime Control Act of 1970, the Omnibus Crime Control Act of 1970 and the Crime Control Act of 1973, addressed the Ohio Crime Prevention Conference in its third day. The conference ends Friday.

Earlier Wednesday, Herbert Edelhertz of the Battelle Human Affairs Research Center of Seattle said organized crime has entered legitimate business.

Even so, Edelhertz said, the Mob continues to operate in its traditional manner. "They don't change their spots," he added.

He said organized crime figures use stolen airline tickets to travel, stolen credit cards to have "business lunches," and equip their motels with stolen furnishings, like television sets.

Japanese trade delegation in Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A trade delegation from Japan will visit three Ohio cities this weekend to examine potential industrial locations, the Department of Economic and Community Development said Wednesday.

Two representatives of the Osaka, Japan, Chamber of Commerce will arrive in Cleveland Friday, visit Akron Friday and Saturday and spend Saturday evening and Sunday in Cincinnati.

THIS IS A MUSHROOM — Known as a Kozi-Broda, Polish for goat's beard, this 15-pound mushroom was found near Eagle, Wis., by Arthur Iczkowski. He's from Milwaukee.

Penelope the gorilla pregnant

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Penelope has been up to her amorous ways again.

The 19-year-old lowland gorilla, already the mother of three, is expecting again, the Cincinnati Zoo announced Wednesday.

The father, for the fourth time in four years, is 475-pound King Tut, who at 24 takes these things in stride.

Penelope and King Tut are believed to be the world's oldest pair of the endangered lowland species. They are among 10 gorillas at the zoo, which currently is tied with Basel, Switzerland for the most lowland gorilla births. Both zoos have six.

Penelope is a gift to the zoo from the famed Dr. Albert Schweitzer, who sent her to Ohio after Cincinnati school children presented him with a herd of goats.

Edward Maruska, zoo director, said the birth is expected in May.

He also said that the zoo's other producing pair, Hatari and Matari, may be expecting their fourth.

State fluoridation law faces test

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The City of Cincinnati, caught between a state order and a court injunction, plans to carry out a mandate from the voters by testing Ohio's 1969 fluoridation law in the First District Court of Appeals.

The action, to be filed soon, will ask the court to rule on the constitutionality of the mandatory fluoridation statute.

Tuesday night, for the third time since 1953, Cincinnatians defeated a referendum on fluoridating city waters.

In 1971 a Hamilton County Court judge ruled the state fluoridation law invalid and enjoined the city from complying with it.

Last August the state Environmental Protection Agency ordered the city to fluoridate. Solicitor Thomas Luebbers then appealed to the state Environmental Board of Review, and lost. Luebbers had said prior to the Tuesday voting that if the referendum passed he'd appeal no further.

But it lost, 50,444-36,969.

Philip Olinger, assistant to Luebbers, said Wednesday he was working on a notice of appeal against the board of review's finding and would probably file it today.

Olinger said the contradictory orders of the state and the county court left the city "not knowing where to turn."

"If the referendum vote had been in favor of fluoridation we would not have been as much in need of testing the law," Olinger said Wednesday.

Atty. Harvey Immerman, whose complaint last summer prompted the state's fluoridation order here, said he believes the state appellate court will uphold the validity of the fluoridaton law.

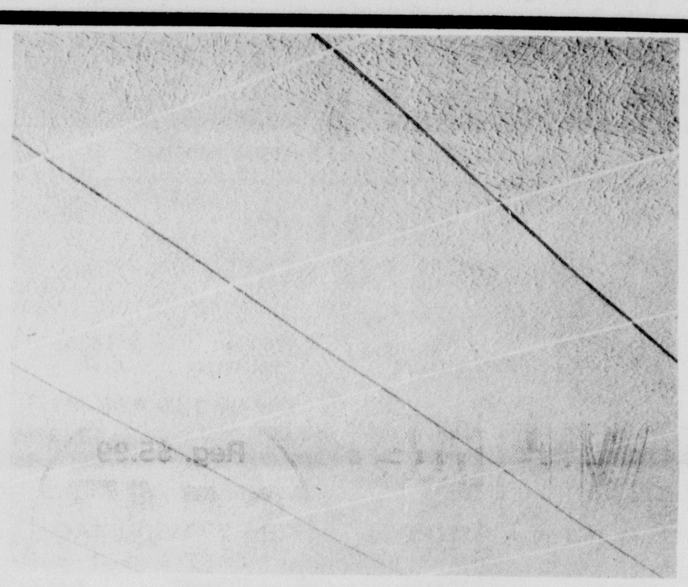

But J. Julian Bowman, president of the Citizen's Committee Against Fluoridation, said "the moment it gets into court it's laughable." He called fluoridation "the hoax of the century," and said his group will expand its efforts to other Ohio cities.

The anti-fluoridationists contend that sodium fluoride is a poison that has caused many deaths that are on record. They claim the scientific community has not adequately researched fluoridation.

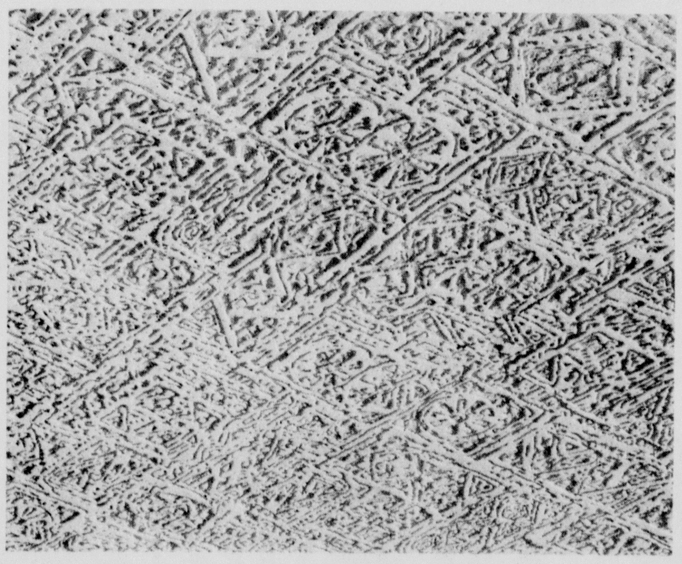

And they say fluoridation violates the constitutional rights of people to decide what is taken into their bodies.

Olinger said that if the appellate court upholds the fluoridation law the City Council still will have to vote on whether to go along.

If they or the anti-fluoridationists decide to keep the fluoride battle going, it could go all the way to the Ohio Supreme Court, he said.

JANE WACKMAN

BRENT THOMPSON

Seniors of Week

BY CHERIE WILSON

The first featured senior this week is Jane Ann Wackman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wackman, 442 Broadway.

The first half of Jane Ann's day is spent taking American Government, Shorthand II, Office Practice and COE courses and the rest is spent working at the Washington Savings Bank. She is a member of Senior Y-Yeens, AFS and COE and is also a 4-H Club member. Swimming, sewing, cooking, horseback riding, watching the Blue Lion football games and tennis are listed as Jane Ann's hobbies.

She plans to attend Columbus Business University following graduation. Her comments were, "I have enjoyed all my years at WSHS and I'm very proud of the Blue Lion football team."

BRENT THOMPSON, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Stackhouse, 515 W. Elm St., is the second featured senior.

Brent, who plans to attend Purdue or Ohio State to study electronics or nuclear physics following graduation, is taking American Government, physical education, Humanities, Fundamentals of Writing, Advanced Math, NJROTC II and Physics. He is a member of AFS, Hi-Y, National Honor Society, the Sunburst staff, and is president of band and the Rotciteers.

His comments were, "At the end of school last year I hoped that my senior year would go as fast as my junior year did, but now that I am a senior I hope this year will be slow so I can remember all of it. Good luck to the underclassmen, I hope that their next years are as great as mine have been."

Dabblers busy

The Dabbler's Art Club, with the help of many volunteers enrolled in the art classes, has been busy with community projects.

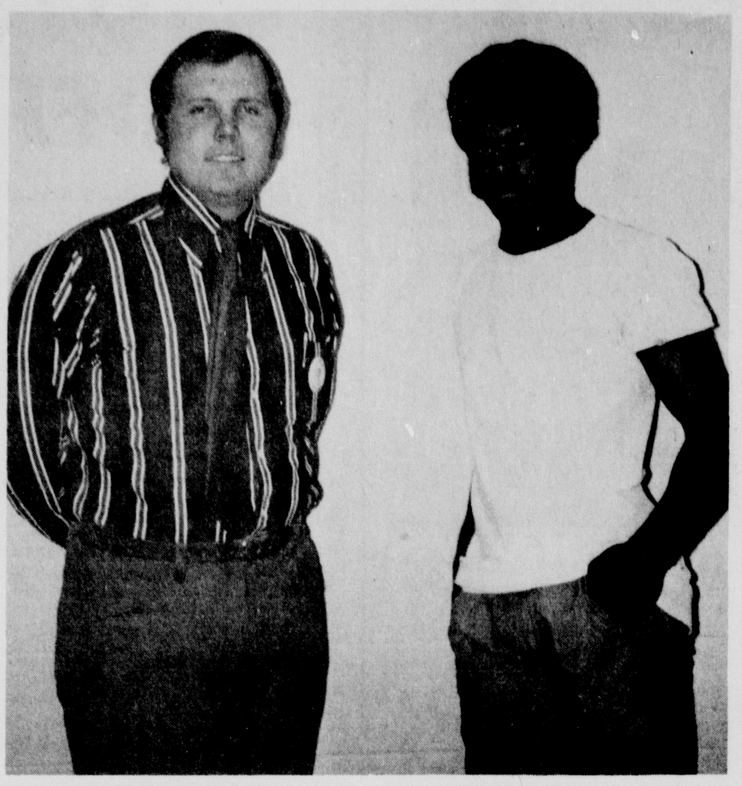

Posters for Fayette Memorial Hospital's skating party, a turkey and ham supper at the New Holland United Methodist Church, and others for the Mother's Circle have all been done during the month. The Dabblers have decided to make seasonal greeting cards for a nursing home. The President of the club is Greg Huysman, vice president is Jeff LeMaster, treasurer is Vicky Straley and the secretary is Jeff Henry.

LETTERMEN LEADERS — Mr. Jon Creamer, left, an assistant Washington C.H. football coach, and Chuck Wilson, right, are the leaders of the WSHS Lettermen's Club this year. Creamer is the club advisor and Wilson is president.

Lettermen's Club has busy schedule

BRIAN GALLOWAY

The Lettermen's Club is one of many clubs at Washington Senior High, but few can boast a more complete schedule of activities.

These atheletes, some of Ohio's best, and their advisor, Mr. Jon Creamer, are very active. Their activities and projects include hanging of pictures on the wall outside the gym, sponsoring the annual student-faculty basketball game, selling booster buttons, sponsoring the homecoming bonfire, and attending professional sporting events. Their next activity will be a vist to "Big Time Wrestling" in Dayton.

The president is Chuck Wilson. Other officers include vice president Bill Shaw and treasurer Chuck Oesterle. Coach Creamer, when asked how this year's club was in comparison to the Lettermen's clubs of previous years, replied, "This year's club is more active and more exciting because of the quality of the leaders and the enthusiasm of the members."

He also said that having many members of Ohio's No. 1 Class AA football team in the club created more enthusiasm and interest. The only requirement for membership is that you must earn at least one varsity letter in any sport. The Lettermen's Club has about 30 members.

Council hoping to be a pacesetter

The 1973-74 Washington Senior High School Student Council is planning to be a pacesetter for future councils.

The Student Council president is Keith Stimpert, whose hard work is shown in fine results. The executive committee also consist of Mike Kimmet, Teri Mount, and Jill Willis. Mr. Gibbs is this year's new advisor with Mr. Moore being the assistant advisor.

So far this year council has undertaken traditional duties. The Homecoming festivities, they sponsored, ranked atop as to match the number one football team. Council held a Who's Who Assembly, plus ran all elections concerning class officers and the Homecoming Court. Other traditional duties that they will carry out during the school year are a Valentine Dance, sock hops, gym night, and Student Council elections.

The council has set high goals in hope of great accomplishments. One primary goal is to better student communication. Another goal is that of general improvement for the student body.

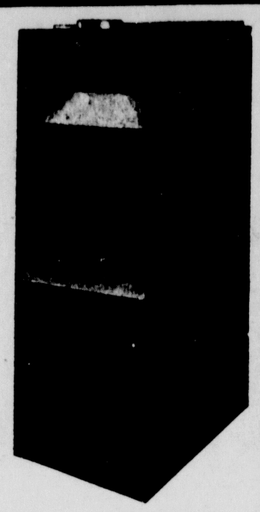

The opportunity for changes this year appear to be quite good. Mr. Gibbs, the advisor, commented to support this by saying, "This year's council is extremely good and leadership is excellent. Council will work for some changes, but due to leadership and quality of the people on council, they will go about it in an appropriate manner.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, NOV. 9

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)
Shun a tendency to sidestep obligations in favor of more pleasurable activities. Set your sights high, establish day's pattern early.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)
Control emotions. There will be tendencies to exaggerate, to lose temper. Be especially tactful in dealings with marital and or business partners.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)
Avoid any tendency toward vagueness. Set sights calculatingly on your target and aim for it unerringly. Stellar influences helpful.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)
Finalize pending matters, tie up loose ends, but do not rush anything that requires longer study and more attention. Work on agreements.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)
Don't rest on past laurels. You can meet and, in spots, surpass competition. Be careful not to push too hard or at the wrong time, however.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)
Try not to set too fast a pace—either for yourself or others. You could find that you've expended a lot of time and energy to no useful purpose.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)
Your competition will be strong now, but there is plenty of room for your talents. Display them with discriminating taste. There are benefits in the offing.

SCORPIO
(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)
Some good news or friendly cooperation should aid you in perfecting long-range plans. Study new trends, developments.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)
Keep at whatever you are doing since you seem to be close to achieving a special desire. Your intuition can be of great help.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)
Generous influences should help you to capitalize on your ideas instead of keeping them in the thought stage. A novel touch, a delicate approach will pay off.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)
Do not start anything without knowing if you can follow through. All efforts and ambitions must be carefully directed now. Don't follow new trends blindly.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)
Your intuition—AND your self-confidence—at a peak. Grasp any opportunity to show your ability. Travel plans favored.

YOU BORN TODAY are a mentally alert, enthusiastic individual, endowed with tremendous drive and initiative. Scorpio is a Sign of both creativity and practicality, so you can be equally adept in business interprises or an artistic career. You are gregarious, a born organizer and leader. Impulsive at times and quickly aroused to anger, you are, however, as quick to forget your resentments and hostilities, and usually "bend backward" to make up for hasty management. Also, there is no field of art which is closed to you—and some aspect of it should be taken up, even if only avocationally.

Observances Friday, Saturday

Veterans groups slate memorials

A second Veterans Day observance here this year is now well along in the planning stages.

The first one, on Oct. 22 by proclamation by Congress, created hardly a ripple on the surface with holidays by a few business places and a few flags fluttering.

The three veterans organizations—American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and Veterans of World War 1—refused to go along with Congress' Veterans Day. Instead, they took the stand that Veterans Day should continue to be observed on Nov. 11, the date the Armistice ending World War 1 was signed (at 11 a.m. Nov. 11, 1918) in Paris.

Eventually that first Armistice Day became Veterans Day, and was generally observed as such, until the date was changed to the fourth Monday in October by Congress, presumably to create a longer weekend holiday. That's where the veterans organizations here (with support of the national organizations) balked.

So, the second Veterans Day will be observed here Friday and Saturday.

CLAYTON STARR

CLAYTON STARR, public relations director of the Ohio American Legion, will come here from his Columbus headquarters to address a student assembly at 8:20 a.m. at Miami Trace High School, at 9:30 a.m. at Washington Senior High School and at 11 a.m. at Washington Junior High School.

Starr, who became the Ohio Legion Department publicity director and editor of the Legion newspaper in 1965, also is the staff liaison officer for the Americanism committee. He is a 2½-year Navy veteran of World War 11.

The American Legion's Paul H. Hughey and Homer Lawson posts, the VFW Burnett-Ducey and O.E. Hardway posts and Fayette County Barracks of Veterans of World War 1, will combine to pay tributes to the veterans at the annual memorial service at the monument on the Courthouse lawn at 8 p.m. Saturday.

Members of all three organizations are to meet and the Legion Home and march from there to the monument. Plans call for one of the city high school bands and the Company C firing squad to join the marchers.

At the monument, officers of the Legion and Auxiliary, headed by Cmdr. Harold Dixon, will conduct the memorial ritual and the Rev. Cloyce C. Copley, a past commander of the Brunett-Ducey VFW post and chaplain of the state World War Veterans organization and Fayette County barracks, will deliver the eulogy. After Taps and a salute to the dead by the firing squad, the veterans will return to the American Legion home.

Udall says Americans 'energy pigs'

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va. (AP) — Former Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall says Americans are "energy pigs" whose nation is operating on misguided assumptions that the energy crisis is a shortterm problem.

Udall told a University of Virginia audience Monday night that the energy crisis is so severe "you can expect your first cold shower in about 60 days."

For Americans to dream of relying on Arab oil or to depend on increased drilling in the United States are foolish, shortsighted solutions, he said. Udall said the United States already is the most-drilled country in the world and oil supplies are becoming increasingly inaccessible.

He said energy conservation is the only practical long range solution and that Americans must prepare themselves for the end of the era of cheap energy.

He predicted the demise of the automobile culture and called for the rejuvenation of public transportation.

He also warned of the possibility of gasoline rationing in a few months, and he predicted gasoline prices probably would reach $1 a gallon for the average motorist within a year.

Big synthetic molecules or polymers appear in everything from artificial wigs to nonstick frying pans.

The price of registering a cattle brand in Mattoon, Ill., still remains at 15 cents after 101 years.

School leaders assess defeat of bond issue

Members of the Fayette County Board of Education and school administrators have expressed disappointment that the proposed junior high school bond issue was defeated at the polls Tuesday.

Superintendent Guy M. Foster said the 47 per cent favorable vote was much improved over the 36 per cent favorable vote of May 1970, but the new proposal was edged by approximately 200 votes. Voters in five precincts passed the issue. Approving the issue were the precincts of Concord, Madison Mills, Lower Paint, Union East and Union South.

Foster suggested that the improved voting record could be attributed in large part to the dedication of many citizens in the community "who really made it their business to tell the story." He feels that the promotion committee, headed by Phil Grover and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Vanzant, did an excellent job in directing the campaign in an honest, professional fashion. The various subcommittees and interested workers are all to be congratulated and their effort was appreciated, Foster said in speaking for the board of education.

In reviewing the campaign efforts, the administration feels that, generally speaking, the proposed building plan and improvements for the elementary schools seemed basically sound to the citizenry. Although various reasons were given for voicing disapproval, no one reason seemed to be shared by a large segment of the voters, Foster pointed out.

What is the next step? Foster said he expects the total citizens committee to meet with board members and administration to review the results of the election. From this meeting will come direction for future efforts to improve the elementary schools in the Miami Trace School District, he said.

Chest $7,892 short of goal

The Fayette County Community Chest is now only $7,892 short of the $27,000 goal. This includes the $993.25 contributed in cash and pledges during the past week to bring the total up to $19,108.16.

Chest President Lee Lynch is sticking to the hope that the Chest will be filled—hopefully to overflowing—within a week. The directors at a meeting two weeks ago set their sights on Nov. 15 for completion of the campaign, which started more than a month ago.

That objective is considered attainable—if the solicitation is completed by four segments of the campaign. Of the 46 employe groups, 21 have not yet reported; of the 300 business, industry and professional groups 100 remain to be heard from; only a "few" contributions have been received from the mail solicitation in the rural area, and no reports have been received from the campaign in Bloomingburg and Jeffersonville.

Lynch repeated that anyone who was in advertently missed in the canvass may mail a contribution to the Community Chest, Post Office box 598, Washington C.H., Ohio 43160 or leave it in person at the chamber of commerce office.

Support for 10 local organizations' programs next year will come from the Community Chest.

Student auto ban proposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A national organization of high school principals called today for a sharp reduction in the use of student cars.

The National Association of Secondary School Principals, meeting here, said it anticipates a positive response from high school students.

Carey M. Pace Jr. of Columbus, president of the organization which claims 35,000 members, said hundreds of thousands of gallons of gasoline could be conserved each day if students would use available buses and other public transportation.

Bloomingburg women plan holiday event

BLOOMINGBURG — With the annual pre-election supper behind them, the women of the Bloomingburg Presbyterian Church are concentrating on their next major project — Christmas Walk '73.

Scheduled for 10:30 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday, Dec. 1, this event features handmade Christmas decorations and gifts displayed and for sale in three homes near the church. Novelty items, baked goods and a wide variety of candy may be purchased in the church social room. Lunch will be served.

Homes decorated this year include those of Mrs. Howard Foster, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Biddle and Mrs. Alice Cory.

Tickets in advance are $1; at the door on the day of the walk, $1.25.

Set big jet use on Florida trips

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — United Air Lines says it hopes to gain a 12 per cent greater passenger capacity on its flights to and from southeast Florida this winter by using larger aircraft.

United spokesmen said Wednesday that by Dec. 13 the airline will begin flying Boeing 747s to Miami from the Great Lake cities. Also added will be wide-body DC10 trijets.

The airline said it plans to increase its daily seating capacity into and out of Miami from 796 to 1,255.

'Mowery Memorial Fund' established

A resolution establishing a "Delmar Mowery Memorial Fund" was adopted at a meeting Wednesday night of the Miami Trace Athletic Association.

Mr. Mowery, a mathematics teacher, athletic director and former head basketball coach at Miami Trace High School, died Saturday of an apparent heart attack.

Principal Curtis E. Fleisher said the fund will be handled through a special account established within the high school activities account.

A special committee was appointed to study and make recommendations as to the appropriate memorial in tribute to Mr. Mowery who compiled an astounding record while coaching Miami Trace basketball teams. The committee will report to the athletic association and recommendations will be made to the Fayette County Board of Education for approval.

The committee consists of two head coaches, a board of education member, the booster club and Student Council presidents and Fleisher.

Fleisher said any individual or organization wishing to make a donation may send contributions to the high school in care of the "Delmar Mowery Memorial Fund."

Harrisburg seats vacant

HARRISBURG, Ohio (AP) — Harrisburg Mayor Delbert Johnson says he probably will have to fill four vacant village council seats by appointment because nobody was elected to the posts in Tuesday's election.

The appointment plan is tentative, pending advice from the county prosecutor, Johnson said.

The problem was created by a new state law that requires write-in candidates to file as candidates before an election.

Traditionally, this tiny village south of Columbus has had write-in elections for councilmen.

Johnson said the system had its advantages, one being that voters in the village of 400 had to know the candidates' names, not just recognize them.

This year, as usual, no one filed as a candidate. But, unexpectedly, no one filed as a write-in either. The result was that no one was elected.

The warm chinook wind of southern Alberta, Canada, can cause the temperature to rise as much as 80 degrees in a single day.

Sentence suspended after larceny plea

A young Washington C.H. man has waived his right to trial and pleaded guilty to grand larceny before Common Pleas Judge Evelyn W. Coffman.

Walter D. Aills Jr., 1218 Rawlings St., was sentenced to 1-7 years in the Chillicothe Correctional Institution, but Judge Coffman, then suspended the sentence, placing the youth on probation for three years.

Aills was arrested by the police Sept. 28, shortly after he broke into Knisley Pontiac on Columbus Avenue. A nearby resident had reported seeing someone come from the firm carrying away two automobile tires which were latter recovered from Aills' car.

Stamps In The News

AP Newsfeatures

By SYD KRONISH

Dr. David Livingstone, the celebrated explorer and missionary who was responsible for opening huge areas of Africa to civilization, is honored on two new stamps by Botswana.

The stamps commemorate the 100th anniversary of Livingstone's death. Both adhesives are inscribed "Centenary of the Death of Livingstone — 1873-1973."

The 3-cents depicts a profile of Dr. Livingstone, seeming to follow one of his many expeditions on Lake Ngwami. The 20-cents portrays a full-face view of the man, while in the background is pictured the historic meeting of Livingstone and Stanley.

Many books and even a motion picture have delved into the life of Livingstone, his quest for the source of the Nile and his meeting with Henry M. Stanley after being out of touch with the world for three years.

Some observers have claimed that Livingstone was never lost and Stanley's reports of finding him were blown up out of proportion.

Nevertheless, Dr. Livingstone is known throughout the world and the new stamps from Botswana continue his fame via the hobby of stamp collecting.

SPEAKING of collectors, if you belong to a stamp club and wish to have a beautiful selection of stamp frames for displays or exhibitions, you can do so at no cost.

The World Wide Philatelic Agency is making available displays of such countries as West Germany, France, New Zealand, Indonesia, Republic of China, Tunisia and Israel. Most of the frames measure 3 by 4 feet. All are acetate covered and light enough to be leaned or tied against a pillar.

Requests should be made in writing, well in advance of the date desired, to the World Wide Philatelic Agency, 116 W. 32nd St., New York, N. Y. 10001.

AUSTRIA'S new stamp commemorating the centenary of the birth of opera star Leo Slezak will look very familiar to many Americans. The stamp bears a portrait of Slezak who appeared on many stages throughout the world. But the picture will remind those who see it of Slezak's son, Walter, noted actor in American films.

The elder Slezak gained fame not only as a magnificent tenor but also as a writer and a philatelist.

The 4-schilling stamp has a drawing of the actor's mask in the background. The inscription above the portrait is: "Leo Slezak 1873-1973."

IF BUTTERFLIES are free, then the new government of Lesotho is glad to publicize its myriad varieties of the species at no cost. Seven butterflies of Lesotho are featured on a new series of stamps from that country.

The 4-cents shows the Mountain Beauty, 5-cents Christmas Butterfly, 10-cents Painted Lady, 15-cents Yellow Pansy, 20-cents Blue Pansy, 25-cents African Monarch and the 30-cents Orange Tip.

Thus, stamp collectors can become butterfly collectors just for the price of the stamps, which are available at your local dealer.

MANY LAPLANDERS live in Norway where their handicraft is on display and for sale in numerous stores.

Some of these Lappish works are seen on the latest set of stamps from Norway.

The 75-ore shows a segment of a knife carved from reindeer antlers. The 100-ore illustrates a detail from a woven ornamental belt. The 140-ore depicts a detail from the tin embroidery of a woman's handbag.

The musk ox, which once existed in many northern countries, today survives wild only in the Canadian Arctic and Greenland.

Net farm income estimate to rise

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department will issue a new estimate on Friday of 1973 net farm income — and there is evidence it could top the currently estimated $24 billion.

Two developments this week point to a possible boost in the income estimate.

Farm exports, which have an important bearing on producer income, were predicted Tuesday to reach a record high of $19 billion for the fiscal year ending next June 30, up nearly 50 per cent from 1972-73.

The export estimate, although hinted for some weeks earlier, is much higher than many USDA experts believed possible.

Another hint was in a speech by Don Paarlberg, the department's director of economics, who told a crop production conference in Minneapolis Tuesday night that 1973 net farm income will be "in the range of $24 billion to $26 billion."

The department's Outlook and Situation Board will issue Friday a summary of a "Demand and Price situation" report telling the latest official estimate of 1973 net farm income and how various commodity prices are shaping up going into next year.

Paarlberg, in his speech, also indicated some of the department's thinking about 1974 and predicted it would likely be "the third good year in a row, albeit not as good as 1973."

The export situation not only has been a major factor in boosting farm income but has raised prospects of wiping out U.S. trade deficits entirely for the 1973-74 fiscal year.

Compared with $19 billion worth of farm products expected for export this year, agricultural imports are esstimated at only $8.9 billion. The difference means a surplus of about $10 billion.

Thus, according to USDA, the $10 billion advantage in farm exports could eliminate entirely any overall U.S. trade deficit this fiscal year. In 1972-73, despite a $5.6 billion farm export advantage over imports, the total U.S. trade deficit — the difference between all exports and imports — was $3.5 billion.

Court gets fraud suit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Thirty-one corporations and individuals were accused of scheming to defraud stock holders in a $64 million damage suit filed in federal court Wednesday.

The action is against the Ohio Real Estate Investment Co., the Ohio Real Estate Equities Co., the U. S. Capital Corp., their trustees and related companies.

Among the defendants is Ohio Commerce Director Dennis Shaul. The suit claims he and other Ohio officials had knowledge of the fraud, but failed to take action to stop it.

The class action suit in behalf of the corporations' stockholders alleges conflict of interest in violation of the Federal Securities Exchange Act among some of the corporate officers.

Plaintiffs listed in the suit are Gene E. and Mary E. Devoe of South Vienna, Clark County; Chester W. and Ruby F. Webb of Wilmington, Harry H. McQuigg of Zanesville and Theron Richards of Bay Village.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Concerned citizens and civic-minded groups seeking to better their communities now have a new, valuable reference to consult, a manual which focuses, clearly and sharply, on what they can do and how to go about it.

The book, "Help Your Community . . through Photography," (published by Eastman Kodak, Rochester, N. Y., $5.95), is a 160-page guide illustrated with more than 300 photographs. It discusses selection of suitable camera and film; gives tips on taking effective photos for picture stories, slide and movie presentations; describes special techniques and equipment; shows how to survey community resources and problems photographically, and explains how to use photos for publicity and promotion drives in newsletters, trade journals, annual reports, posters, photo contests and exhibitions.

What can a group do which has little or no money for photography?

Search for volunteer photographers and borrow cameras from the staff, relatives and friends of the group in all the haunts they frequent. Try to find a donor who will contribute a camera or someone who has bought a new camera and who may be persuaded to donate his old one.

Promote fund-raising projects to raise money for equipments. Consult the local Internal Revenue Service for possible tax deductible status for contributions.

WHEN A GROUP plans to buy a camera, it should consider these factors:

Will it be used by one person or by several people over a period of time? Will it require a fast lens for indoor pictures without flash? Are the pictures for publicity and display purposes? Will the camera be used by handicapped people?

Are accessories — wide-angle, telephoto, close-up lenses — available for possible future plans?

Answers to these questions will determine whether the camera can be a simple nonadjustable type, an automatic model or one with manual adjustments and whether it requires a fast lens or takes a film size that will produce good enlargements.

SOME BASIC RULES for taking effective pictures:

Plan the photos for the group's needs by deciding how and when they will be used. Have a committee or the chairman prepare a set of file cards listing each picture planned and what it should show. This procedure saves time and guesswork on the photograper's part.

At the same time he or she must be encouraged to shoot spontaneous pictures that present themselves at the scene and which add human interest or pictorial elements.

When taking pictures, always ask for permission and get a signed release from each recognizable person shown. When possible, a touch of humor adds pleasant relief to programs of serious nature.

Be accurate when dealing with social problems and make sure the photographs do not exaggerate the facts or lead to false conclusions. Inaccuracies may lead to later controversy which can weaken your group's position.

MORE INTERESTING pictures are made by including action, people doing things from an unusual viewpoint or by stressing personal feelings or emotions. Try to use positive, constructive photos which emphasize people's or children's abilities, not their weakness. Move in close to fill the picture frame because close-ups of expressive personalities have great visual appeal. And vary camera angles to present a different or offbeat perspective.

At times, for personal or legal reasons, it's necessary to conceal a person's identity in a picture. The usual way is to create valid activity with the person's back to the camera or with his face obscured by an appropriate prop or machine.

Sometimes, only a part of the subject need be shown — hands, feet, etc. — for storytelling impact. Another approach is to make a silhouette with the subject in meaningful action.

It can add mood or drama to a photograph.

Keep in mind the end result of photography . . . the pictures were taken to be used. A worthy cause and good pictures are wasted if people are not made aware of them, and the cause will not get the public support it deserves. Here are some ways to produce results:.

CHOOSE the best vehicles to show pictures, taken: slide shows, movies, news media, trade publications, newsletters, project record reports or exhibitions.

Some photographs can get extra mileage by a variety of uses: as a snapshots in the project record book, as a slide in a presentation and as a dramatic enlargement in an exhibition.

Edit the pictures severely to show only the best ones. The message becomes stronger and makes more of an impact. If necessary and possible, revise, update and improve the presentation.

Show the pictures to as many people as possible, as often as possible and in as many places as possible . . . until your objective is reached. Educating the public is a slow process which requires patience and persistence.

When the cause is a good one, however, the continuing effort is worthwhile and the community will eventually "get the picture."

HELPING HANDS for an infant's frail feet is an effective human interest picture. It is an example of good public service photography by the United Way of America from "Help Your Community ... through Photography."

Manual tells how to get more tips

VERMILION, Ohio (AP)—A restaurant operator here has written a training manual telling waitresses the history of the word 'tip'' and how to get them.

The booklet is proving popular. Its first 10,000 copies have been sold and a revised edition is being printed.

Ed Solomon, proprietor of McGarvey's restaurants here and in Sandusky, worked up the 71-page textbook over two years with the aid of four of his best waitresses, who shared a total of 50 years of experience.

Pictures and diagrams show proper place settings and waitress serving positions plus a number of French terms used in the food industry and other restaurant jargon.

School systems in Lorain, Willougby, Toledo and Milan have ordered it. A Fremont vocational school is using it.

And Solomon uses it to train newcomers to his staff of 30 waitresses.

Such training pays off, he says: "By training the waitress, you can increase your sales without increasing your overhead.

"Some restaurant owners spend millions of dollars to build their operations and then won't spend 10 cents to train their waitresses," he adds.

Salt water has leached from the soil into the Salton Sea and inadequate outlets make the "sea" waters more briny than the ocean.

Village blacksmith among honored guests

LONDON (AP) — Village blacksmith Bert Tidmarsh will be in Westminster Abbey next week to watch the wedding of Princess Anne.

But foreign ambassadors, like Walter H. Annenberg of the United States, will have to find out about the ceremony secondhand as far as is known.

The guest list of 1,500 for the Nov. 14 marriage of Queen Elizabeth's only daughter to Capt. Mark Phillips has provoked some dismay among the diplomatic corps, according to sources at foreign embassies.

Only Commonwealth countries — former British possessions — have been invited to send their official representatives. Even they were not on the original list, some sources say.

Many on the list live in the tiny Wiltshire villages around Great Somerford, Phillips' home town in western England. Among them is Tidmarsh, 61, who shoes horses for the Phillips family.

He and his wife get Abbey places. So do saddler David Barnes and his wife. They made the official guest list at the expense of some of the most distinguished members of the London diplomatic corps, since the decision was taken not to invite any official foreign representatives.

Buckingham Palace said the intention is to try to make the wedding an occasion for family and friends. A spokeswoman at the palace said she did not know if any Americans have been invited since the list did not disclose the nationality of guests.

"If there are any Americans, it will be because they are personal friends of the bride or groom," she added.

Perfect season, SCOL title loom for top-ranked Lions

By MIKE FLYNN

It appears nothing short of an upset will prevent Washington C.H.'s Blue Lions from becoming one of the finest football teams in the school's history.

The unbeaten Blue Lions, nearing mythical Class AA championships in both the Associated Press and United Press International high school football polls, are on the threshold of being the winningest football team ever in Washington C.H.

WASHINGTON C.H. discarded a perennial South Central Ohio League bridesmaid label and is scenting gold for the first time in five years after clinching the 46th league championship with a win over Miami Trace in the annual backyard brawl last Friday.

Head coach Maurice Pfeifer's ninth Blue Lion version can add some new pages to the SCOL and school record books when a revived Hillsboro team comes calling at 8 p.m. Friday for the season finale at Gardner Park Stadium.

The game with Hillsboro is just a formality since the Lions locked up their first SCOL football title since 1968 last Friday night. But, several lofty milestones loom for Washington C.H. in Friday's game.

A perfect season and a coveted gold football, symbolic of an undefeated SCOL campaign, are at the top of Washington C.H.'s blueprints for the appointment with Hillsboro. The Lions, 9-0 on the season, can eclipse a 21-year-old performance turned by the 1952 Washington C.H. team by finishing unbeaten and join that legendary Blue Lion team and the 1971 Miami Trace squad as the only undefeated squads in Fayette history.

The Lions will also be hoping to match a 44-year-old school record for shutouts during one season established by the 1919 Washington C.H. team. The stubborn Lion defenders, who have permitted nine opponents a mere 19 points, have fired a total of seven shutouts and are only one away from matching the school record. A new pass interception record is also within reach since the Lions' defensive secondary has plucked off 17 enemy passes.

Twenty-one seniors, perhaps the finest crop ever produced at Washington C.H., will complete their prep football careers in Friday's home show. Donning the blue and white uniforms for the final time will be Chuck Wilson, Mark Johnson, Garth Cox, John Sanderson, Alan Coppock, Duke Willis, Steve Mosley, Chuck Oesterle, Bill Shaw, Kevin Terry, Larry Howell, David Butterfield, Paul Woods, Jeff Willis, Eric Shaffer, Greg McCune, David Rittenhouse, Jeff Tuvell, Dan McDaniels, David Payton and manager David Bryan.

The crop of seniors has spearheaded Washington C.H. to its glittering campaign as Wilson is the SCOL's top pointmaker with 160 points and leading ground gainer with 1,335 yards. Coppock is one of the top passers with a 58.3 per cent completion record and Johnson rates as one of the league's best receivers.

And, let's not forget that the persistent Lion defense is built around a nucleus of those seniors.

Rapidly-improved Hillsboro, coached by Miami Trace product Mike Doyle, has won two of its last three games and will bring a 2-7 all-games record into Friday's encounter.

THE YOUNG Indians stand 2-3 inside this year's SCOL sweepstakes after beating both Highland County rival Greenfield and Madison Plains.

Dave Hastings, a 5-foot-8, 165-pound senior fullback who Doyle says he wouldn't trade for any other running back in the league, is the hub of Hillsboro's offensive punch. Hastings is one of the SCOL's leading scorers along with tight end Roger Jewett, a 6-foot-1, 170-pound junior, who is the favorite target of sophomore quarterback Don Marsh. Pfeifer rates Marsh, a 6-foot-2, 175-pounder, as one of the best young quarterbacks in the league. Speedy Ken Captain, a 5-4, 154-pound sophomore, is the Hillsboro tailback, and Roger Zimmerman, the Indians' monster on defense, is the substitute fullback.

Pfeifer says the Lions will be forced to stop the Indians' inside running game featuring Hastings and the outside threat that Captain provides. The Indians also feature the passing attack and in one game attempted 34 passes.

Lions stretch bulge in UPI

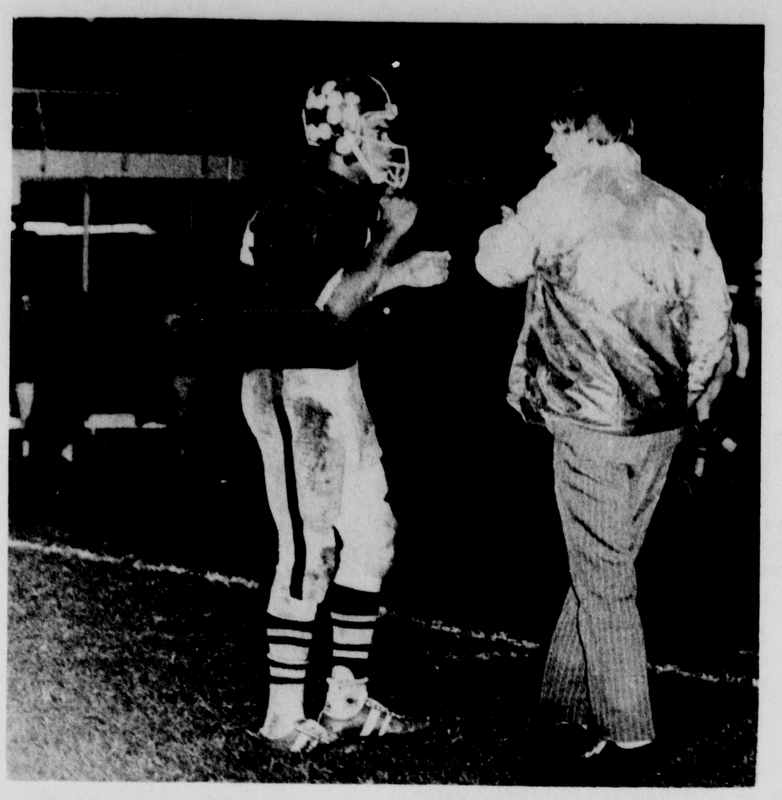

COLUMBUS — Washington C.H.'s unbeaten Blue Lions have stretched their lead in the United Press International's Class AA high school football poll.

The Lions hold a 38-point lead over Cincinnati Reading in this week's poll. Reading is followed by Oberlin Firelands, Minerva, Ironton, Columbus Watterson, Dayton Jefferson, Lima Bath, Akron St. Vincent-St. Mary and Cleveland Benedictine.

MT ticket talk

Tickets for Friday night's game between Miami Trace and Madison Plains are priced at $1.50 for adults and students at the gate.

Students wishing to purchase tickets will have the opportunity today and Friday. The tickets are priced at $1, which is the regular South Central Ohio League gate price.

Several milestones loom for Lion ace

Defense has been the trademark of the 1973 Washington C.H. Blue Lions football team and all the headlines concerning those merciless defenders sometimes overshadows the team's offensive accomplishments.

The sparkplug of Washington C.H.'s often unheralded offense is senior tailback Chuck Wilson, who has emerged as a bonafide All-Ohio prospect.

Wilson, a 6-foot-0, 181-pounder, is destined for a record-shattering season when the top-ranked Blue Lions entertain a revived Hillsboro team in the season finale Friday night at Gardner Park Stadium.

A second straight 1,000-plus rushing yardage season looms for the hard-running Washington C.H. tailback in Friday's 8 p.m. South Central Ohio League contest. Wilson enjoyed his finest rushing effort of the season with a 235-yard performance in Washington C.H.'s 36-12 win over rival Miami Trace last Friday.

THE SPLENDID performance against Miami Trace paved the way for Wilson. He needs only 117 yards against Hillsboro to match his record-setting performance of a year ago when he tied with Miami Trace ace Tony Grooms for the SCOL rushing lead of 1,452 yards.

Wilson gained the 1,452 yards on 279 carries a year ago. After nine games this season the Lion whiz has stacked up 1,335 yards on just 207 totes and that's an average of 6.4 yards per carry.

Besides the nifty rushing figures, Wilson has already eclipsed his scoring performance of last year when he was the SCOL's top pointmaker. Wilson has piled up 160 points on the basis of 25 touchdowns and five extra point conversions which is 38 more points than he scored last season.

However, Wilson hasn't been the only offense mainspring. Steady senior Alan Coppock has engineered the Lions from his quarterback spot and has completed 58.3 per cent of 67 pass attempts and heaved seven touchdown strikes.

Velvety running back Mark Johnson, the Lions' team captain, has been Coppock's favorite target by grabbing 15 passes for 292 yards. Johnson has also rushed another 250 yards. Plowing fullback Larry Dumford, a junior, has lugged the pigskin 43 times for 280 yards, and junior quarterback Jeff Brown has 202 yards to his credit.

Mike Wagner leads in NFL interceptions

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Wagner loves being in the right place at the right time — mainly when the ball is coming toward him.

The Pittsburgh Steelers' safety had six interceptions for the entire 1972 National Football league season. It galled him a little bit that Jack Ham, a linebacker on the Steelers, had seven.

Wagner is making up for that in a hurry. He's already got six interceptions this season, tops in the league according to NFL statistics released today. And Ham is nowhere to be seen on the thievery list.

Bump, run defenses under fire

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Coach Paul Brown of the Cincinnati Bengals said Wednesday that National Football League receivers are being faced with virtual "fist fights" to get downfield and predicted the bump-and-run defenses will get a long post-season look by rulemakers.

"It's getting to be almost like a fist fight to fight your way downfield," said Brown.

"If you can't get men downfield you're losing one of the trademarks of pro football. What the zone defenses don't do, the bump-and-run makes up for," he said.

Brown called for special drills Wednesday to emphasize to his receivers what must be done to combat the problem posed by defensive backs who are attacking would-be passing targets once the ball is hiked.

"Everybody's got a little different idea of what must be done, and I think you'll see something done before next year," Brown said.

Statistics bear out the decline in completions to primary receivers. The top three receivers in the American Football Conference are running backs, often used as last resorts when downfield targets are covered.

The Bengals suffered a jolt at practice Wednesday when defensive standouts Mike Reid and Tommy Casanova suffered injuries.

Reid apparently reaggravated a nagging back injury while working in the weightroom. Casanova pulled a hamstring.

The extent of their injuries wasn't to be determined until today.

WCH Players of Week

Pfeifer lauds Lion offensive linemen

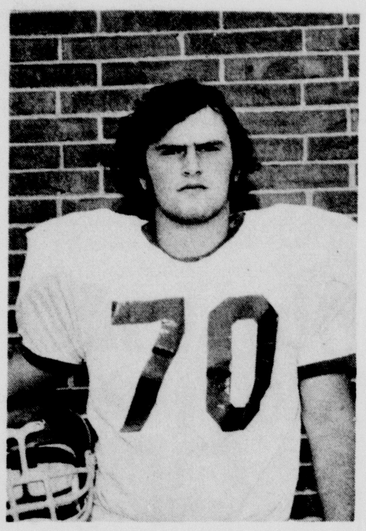

Washington C.H. head coach Maurice Pfeifer was very unselfish this week in selecting the Blue Lion Players of the Week.

Pfeifer, the ninth-year boss who has shepherded the Blue Lions to a spotless 9-0 record, lauded those unsung heroes who fight the battles in the trenches, the offensive line.

The Blue Lion coaching staff singled out senior Garth Cox as the top defensive player for his performance against Miami Trace last Friday night, but Pfeifer bestowed praise upon those steady linemen for the Record-Herald's ninth weekly feature.

Cox, 6-foot-5, 226-pound defensive tackle, figured in on 11 stops in the Lions' 36-12 win and received the team's top defensive efficiency rating.

GARTH COX
Defensive Ace

The Lion offensive line was responsible for opening gaping holes which sprung tailback Chuck Wilson loose for 235 yards in the win over Miami Trace.

World Championship golf tilt minus top players

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Arnold Palmer's here. And Gary Player. And Bruce Crampton and Masters champ Tommy Aaron and the Young Lions Lanny Wadkins and Ben Crenshaw and tough old Sam Snead.

National champions from some 20 countries around the globe are on hand to make a run at one-half million dollars in prize money, the richest golf tournament the world has ever known.

But the brand-new World Open, which offers $100,000 to the winner of the two-week tournament that began its inaugural run today, is in a slightly embarassing position.

The winner will be billed as the World Champion.

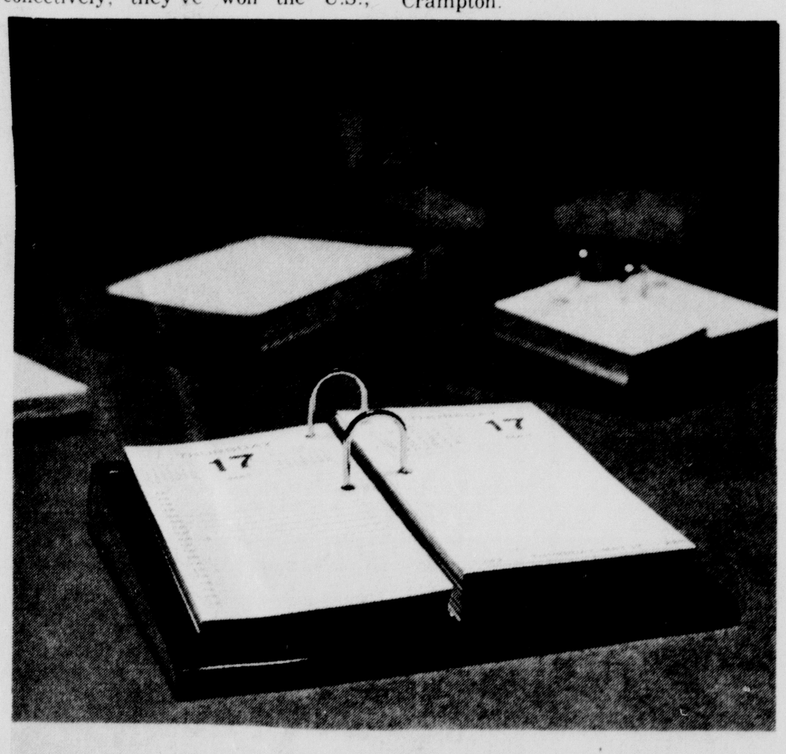

But he'll get that title without the necessity of defeating perhaps the three top players alive today — Jack Nicklaus, Tom Weiskopf and Lee Trevino. U.S. Open champion Johnny Miller also is on the sidelines, suffering from influenza.

The absence of those four — collectively, they've won the U.S., British and Canadian Opens, the PGA, 12 other titles and more than $1 million in prize money this year — has taken some of the gloss and glitter off the event that admittedly is looking for a place alongside the game's Big Four championships. It's sort of like having a Super Bowl in which the American Football Conference champion doesn't appear. Or a World Series without a National League representative.

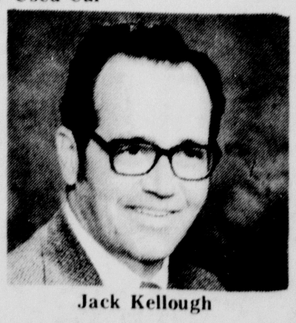

Even with the absence of some of the game's top players and the lack of national television coverage — Hughes Sports Network cancelled out some time ago — the tournament has drawn an extremely impressive field.

Among the top Americans are such veterans as Palmer, Billy Casper and Gene Littler, youthful standouts Lanny Wadkins and Ben Crenshaw and the incredible Snead, still dangerous at the age of 61.

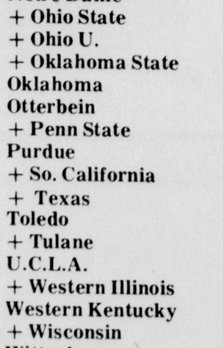

The foreign threat is very strong and it's among the nonAmericans that the likely favorite rests. That role probably would go to either Player or the sturdy Crampton.

Blue Lions 14th in computer ratings

COLUMBUS — Washington C.H.'s Blue Lions advanced three notches in this week's Ohio High School Athletic Association computer football ratings.

The unbeaten Lions, ranked 17th last week, moved into 14th place in the ratings with 205.88 points. Cincinnati Reading is the Region No. 8 leader with 400.52 points.

Massillon and Steubenville, two long-time feared names in Ohio high school football, joined the computerized regional leaders this week.

Each regional pacesetter automatically qualifies for the state playoffs beginning with the semifinals Friday night, Nov. 16. The state finals are the following Friday.

Massillon, with eight victories and a tie in nine games, took over the lead in Class AAA Region 3 with 533.47 points to 481.10 points for runnerup Cuyahoga Falls Walsh.

Akron Garfield, the Region 3 frontrunner last fall, lost to Akron Ellet and tumbled to third place.

Steubenville Catholic, 7-2 against a schedule that includes a lot of Class AAA competition, surged in front in Class AA Region 7. The Steubenville team has 360.81 points to 346.41 for No. 2 Ironton, the leader a week ago.

Otherwise, the leaders remained the same with one game left for most Ohio teams. The final computer ratings and the state semifinalists will be announced Sunday.

The other Class AAA leaders are Warren Western Reserve, Bowling Green and Cincinnati Moeller and the Class AA pacesetters are Cleveland Benedictine, Lima Catholic and Cincinnati Reading.

In Class A, No. 1 in each region are McDonald, Montpelier, Newark Catholic and Middletown Fenwick.

Bucks top Lakers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Meet the Los Angeles Lakers' "New Faces of 1973."

"We're having trouble because we're reconstructing our team," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman after his club suffered a 109-92 National Basketball Association loss to the Milwaukee Bucks Wednesday night.

Among the new faces this year are center Elmore Smith and forward Connie Hawkins. This new guard has replaced the old guard that included Wilt Chamberlain, Jim McMillian and Keith Erickson.

"You can't replace people like Wilt, McMillian and Erickson and be a winner again overnight," said Sharman, whose team was in the NBA final playoffs last season. "We're in a learning process. I don't think there has been a championship team in this league that hasn't played together for several years."

In the other NBA games Wednesday night, it was Philadelphia 122, Phoenix 115; Capital 111, Houston 97 and Seattle 130, Buffalo 113.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar scored 14 of his 22 points in the first quarter to help the Bucks beat the Lakers for their 10th straight victory.

76ers 122, Suns 115

Fred Carter, Tom Van Arsdale and Steve Mix provided the offensive spark as Philadelphia turned back Phoenix 122-115. Carter topped the winners with 32 points while Van Arsdale had 29 and Mix 20.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Germs, Not Diet, Cause Boils

Painful boils crop out on the back of my neck. I know by my weight that I eat more than I should. Therefore the suggestion of my girl friend that this might be a vitamin deficiency confuses me.

Do you think this could be a factor?

Mr. H.R.R., Ind.

Dear Mr. R.:

Boils and carbuncles at the back of the neck are always caused by bacteria that invade a break in the skin.

The most frequent germ responsible for these infections that begin in the hair follicle is the staphylococcus aureus.

Skin bruised by tight collars and by marked sweating is a good candidate for small breaks in the skin where these germs can set up housekeeping.

Once this happens, they flourish and small, painful abscesses occur singly, or in crops.

Diet itself is not responsible for infection. Germs are. There are many food faddists who insist the foods, and only foods, are the cause of many illnesses.

Undoubtedly, diet plays an important role in the health, but it is not the total answer to all of man's ills.

I want to add incidentally that massive caloric intake may still represent a diet with inadequate vitamins. It would be worthwhile to find out if your diet contains good nutritional balance along with adequate minerals and vitamins.

Scrupulous cleanliness of the skin, followed by a fine powder, may prevent the skin from being bruised and and make it less vulnerable to infection and boils.

Do identical twins have all the same skin characteristics?

Miss J.D., Okla.

Dear Miss D.:

No two people, not even identical twins, have the same palm and fingerprints.

Skin patterns and ridges are unique with each person, and therefore these are used scientifically to differentiate one person from another.

When albumin is found in the urine does it indicate severe trouble?

Mr. P.B.N., Ky.

Dear Mr. N.:

Albumin is not normally found in the urine. Occasionally, because of diet or fatigue, a trace of albumin may be present in a single specimen.

When the test is repeated, the albumin may be absent.

Such an occasional finding is unimportant. When, however, albumin is found regularly the cause must be traced, since its presence may indicate some abnormality in the blood or the kidneys.

Plane crash fatal to 2

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Two men were killed Wednesday when a private plane developed engine trouble during a test flight and crashed while attempting to return to Port Columbus International Airport.

The single-engine craft crashed about 2,000 feet short of a runway after clipping some tree tops and losing both wings, officials said.

The dead were identified as Bruce Taylor Jr., 61, of suburban Groveport, the pilot and owner of the plane, and Roger Patke of Columbus, a mechanic for Dublin Aviation Corp.

The Ohio Highway Patrol said the men had taken the plane out for a test flight and it developed engine trouble shortly after takeoff.

As they attempted to return to the airport, the plane apparently lost power and hit the trees. Both wings were knocked off and the plane was spun completely around. It crashed into the southwest bank of Big Walnut Creek and exploded into flames.

Urge development of U.S. oil shale

WASHINGTON (AP) — Establishment of a government-public corporation to help accelerate development of the nation's oil shale resources was proposed Wednesday by Rep. Charles Vanik, D-Ohio, in a House speech.

Vanik said such a corporation, publicly owned but government initiated, could compete also with private industry and thus ensure reasonable consumer oil prices.

New bumper law to be enforced

Lt. R.E. Kline, Wilmington Post commander of the Ohio Highway Patrol announced Thursday that enforcement of a new motor vehicle bumper height law will begin immediately.

The new law prohibits driving a motor vehicle without bumpers when they were originally standard equipment on the vehicle, and modifying a motor vehicle's body or suspension system so that the height of any bumper on the vehicle varies more than three inches from the original manufactured bumper height.

"It is our hope that compliance to this new law will decrease the level of damage and injury caused by missing or mismatched bumpers in front and rear end collisions," Lt. Kline said.
